RICHMOND INSURANCE COMPANY,

RICHMOND, INDIANA,

Office over Citizens' Bank.

REASONS FOR INSURING IN THIS COMPANY.

1. It is a Home Company—all Premiums are kept and paid out here, instead of being sent to Eastern cities. More than $500,000 annually are paid by the State of Indiana to Foreign Insurance Companies, all of which might be kept at home, by insuring in Home Companies.
2. The Cash Capital is $100,000, and the Stockholders are responsible to the assured for $100-000 more, making the sum of $200,000 pledged for the payment of losses.
3. As this Company confines its operations chiefly to a few counties in Eastern Indiana, and to Fire Insurance exclusively, and avoids specially hazardous risks; and as Eastern Companies of large capital extend their risks all over the Union, and take large specially hazardous risks—it is relatively stronger and more reliable than any of them.
4. United States Bonds are deposited by this Company with the Auditor of State to secure the payment of losses—foreign Companies have not a single dollar deposited with the Auditor. Their capital is out of the State—our is at home, subject to all demands upon it.
5. Risks are taken at as low rates, and on as favorable terms, as by any other responsible fire Insurance Company. Losses will be adjusted and paid promptly, and liberality and good faith observed toward all; and as evidence of this, it is sufficient to state, that the Stockholders are known throughout Eastern Indiana to be men of the highest responsibility and integrity.

PREFACE.

It is with mingled feelings of solicitude and pleasure that we offer this work to the people of Wayne County—solicitude, lest it should not meet the expectations of our patrons who have so patiently waited through many months for its completion—pleasure, in the consciousness of having labored faithfully to make it worthy of their approval, and that the finished copy is much more perfect than any thing we have formed in the ideal.

Perfect, did we say? There never was a perfect directory, and there never can be, except in a community of drones. Where men are alive and active in the prosecution of all kinds of business, as they are in this county, it is utterly impossible to make a perfect directory.

This book, we know, has many imperfections, but we are surprised that it has not more, and so will our readers be, when we inform them that more than twenty men have been employed at different stages of its progress, in collecting and compiling the information, and that not one of them, except the writer, had ever seen a single line prepared for the purpose before.

THE CITIZENS' DIRECTORY.

The idea of a directory for an entire county is a new one in this part of the country, and so far as we know—and we think we have correct information on the subject—it is the first directory aiming to give the name, business, place of business, and residence of every man over twenty-one and of every widow and unmarried woman over eighteen years of age that has ever been published west of the State of New York.

The value of a work of this kind will be best known to those who consult it most. The farmer who wishes to transact business with a citizen of any of the villages, towns or cities in the county, can consult the book before leaving home, make a note of the facts obtained, and go direct to the parties he wishes to visit. The same may be said of those residing in the towns and cities in regard to farmers and to each other. The sketches of old and prominent citizens in this part of the work might have been extended almost indefinitely, but so many other duties pressed upon us as to prevent our doing more.

BUSINESS DIRECTORY.

The classification of trades and professions, and all the various kinds of business under their appropriate heads, will be found quite convenient for reference, and will give a much better idea of the business and resources of the county than could be obtained in any other way.

THE MAP

Should be consulted especially with regard to townships where there are towns or villages of the same name in other parts of the county. For example, the village of Franklin is in Dalton township, in the north-western part of the county, while the township of Franklin is in the north-eastern part. The village of Washington is in Green township, but the township of Washington is in the south-western corner of the county. Jacksonburg in place of being in Jackson, is in Harrison township. The villages of Abington and Boston are in townships of their respective names. For designating the localities of the county generally, the map is a valuable and indispensable accompaniment to the book.

SOLDIERS' REGISTER.

During the progress of the war through which we have just passed, there has been no lack of publications recording the deeds of those who have held official positions in the army, but from the vast numbers of those in the ranks it seemed impracticable to notice each separately over a large scope of country. More than a year before the close of the war the writer of this conceived the idea of taking a territory of such extent that he could record the deeds of each one, and embody them in a single volume of moderate dimensions. He commenced such an enterprise for a single county, in another state, at a time when it was thought all the men necessary to suppress the rebellion were in the field. Another call for 300,000 men being issued soon after, it was found necessary to suspend the work indefinitely. This, then, is the first time we have found it practicable to carry out our plans. We have found considerable difficulty on account of the mustering out of our vast armies at the time we were collecting the information. To obviate any difficulty on this account, we have in almost every case given the date of taking the information, stating where the soldier was at the time.

Our aim has been to record the deeds of all according to such information as we could obtain. We have taken not only the names of all who went from the county, but in addition, have taken the names of all whom we find residing in it, though they may have lived in some other state at the time of their enlistment. Of nearly twenty-five hundred men whose history we have recorded, one hundred of them may not have belonged to the county, leaving about twenty-four hundred as the number furnished by Wayne county in suppressing the rebellion. This number would be almost double if enlistments were counted in place of men, for we believe a majority of those whose history we give enlisted twice, while quite a large number volunteered three, and some from four to five times. Of those twenty-four hundred soldiers we think it safe to say that they served on an average two years each, making the services of Wayne county in putting down the rebellion equal to four thousand eight hundred years for one man, or four thousand eight hundred men for one year.

In order to set forth in a clear light the cost in human life that has already been paid by the county, exclusive of an equal or perhaps larger number who have brought home the germ of disease in their systems, that will after months and years of suffering result in death; and excluding also those who have been maimed and made cripples for life, we have prepared a by culling the names of the dead from the sketches we have given of all in the "Soldiers' Register." Here you have the names of more than three hundred and fifty of your fathers, sons, husbands, brothers, and lovers, who four short years ago were moving among you with as fair prospects for the enjoyments of life and the society of friends, as you who remain. They, loving their country more than life, went forth and gave themselves as willing sacrifices that the nation might not die, as die it certainly would, had they refused to go. Look upon this roll and form new resolves that you will guard well the temple of Liberty that they have bequeathed to you, sealed with their own blood. We bespeak the services of the reader in assisting us to place the name of every deceased soldier from this county upon that roll. See page 428.

THE RECORD OF BATTLES

Will be quite convenient for reference, and with a large number of persons it is as full as they will find time to read.

It was our intention to have given brief sketches of all the Indiana regiments, but at the time we made the effort it was utterly impossible to obtain the information from the office of the Adjutant General.

THE REVIEW OF EVENTS,

We think, will prove quite interesting to those who feel like contemplating the changes that have taken place within a few months, equal to what would have required scores of years at any other time in our history.

We expected to have given short descriptive and statistical sketches of the towns, villages, and cities in the county, but as the work has already grown to nearly twenty per cent. larger than we promised in our prospectus, we think our patrons will excuse us from giving any thing further.

To those who wish to compare the business of the various localities, we could not in any event do better than to refer them to the Business Directory and Business Cards. We can say this for the entire county, that for fertility of soil, health, and desirable locations for residences, and the morality, intelligence and patriotism of its inhabitants, it is not excelled by any county in the state, if indeed in the West. As to the business enterprises in which her citizens are engaged, they are being prosecuted with a vigor unparalleled in any former period of her history. We might have added to the topics of interest almost indefinitely, but as there must be a limit to all human enterprises, we close the record.

October, 1865. J. C. P.

We hereby certify that we have printed and bound fifteen hundred copies of this work, for Messrs. POWER, ZELLER & Co., of Richmond, Indiana.

Wayne County Turnpike Co.—William Parry, President and Treasurer; Cornelius Ratliffe, Secretary. This company owns all that part of the old Cumberland or National road running through Wayne county, the length of which is twenty-two miles. This road was graded and bridged by the United States government before the country was settled to any great extent, which caused farms to be opened, and towns and villages to be built first along the line of the road. This accounts for the fact that this road is called Main street, where it passes through Richmond, Centerville, Pennville, Germantown, and Cambridge City; and where it passes through Dublin it is called Cumberland street in honor of the original name of the road.

Williamsburg & Centerville—Daniel King, pres't; David J. Jones, sec'y; Levi M. Jones, treas.—distance ten miles—all finished.

Railroads.

Cincinnati, Connersville and Indianapolis Junction.—This road, running from Cincinnati up the Whitewater valley, through Connersville, enters Wayne county on its southern line, near the center of Washington tp. It has three stations in the county, Beeson, Milton, and Cambridge City, at the latter of which it forms a junction with the Indianapolis and Columbus Central. This is a new road, just completed in June last, and passes through the richest township of land in the county, in which township is situated the town of Milton, containing about twelve hundred inhabitants, among whom may be found some of the most energetic and gentlemanly business men in the state; and now, that this town is for the first time put in communication with the outer world by railroad, we predict for it a prosperous career.

Chicago and Great Eastern.—This road, recently called the Cincinnati and Chicago Air Line, connects the cities of Chicago and Cincinnati. Entering Wayne county on the western side, near the center of Jefferson township, it passes through Hagerstown, Washington, Olive Hill station, and Richmond. From Richmond it runs over the Richmond, Eaton, Hamilton and Cincinnati road, to the latter city. The only station on the road, after passing Richmond, is Neel, a station but little used. It is where the railroad crosses the National Road.

Dayton and Western.—This road connects Richmond, Ind., and Dayton, Ohio,—forty miles distant,—in almost a direct line. It has no station except Richmond in the county. The track of this road, and that of the Indianapolis and Columbus Central, occupies the same road-bed to New Paris, Ohio, a distance of six miles.

Indianapolis and Columbus Central.—In connecting the capitals of Ohio and Indiana, this road runs through Wayne county from east to west, passing Richmond, Centerville, Pennville, Germantown, Cambridge City, and Dublin.

Projected Railroads.

Louisville & Lake Erie—intended to connect Louisville, Ky., with some point on Lake Erie, passes through Wayne county from south-west to north-east, running through Cambridge City and Jacksonburg, leaving the county on the northern line of Green township. This road is graded, in part, all the way through the county, and will be completed at no distant day.

Richmond and Fort Wayne—is intended to unite Richmond and Fort Wayne, and by connecting with the Chicago and Great Eastern at Richmond, form a continuous line from Fort Wayne to Cincinnati. This road was laid out and partly finished several years ago. The project has recently been revived, and measures are on foot to push it forward to completion.

Remarks.—By consulting the map, it will be seen that there are two very important railroad centers in Wayne county—Cam-City and Richmond. Both these cities are surrounded by highly-cultivated farms, well supplied with excellent water power, and are consequently both excellent points for manufacturing and merchandising, or any other kind of business. No other county in the state, except, perhaps, Marion, is so well provided with the means of transportation as Wayne. There is not a farmer in the county but may load his wagon in the morning, drive to a railroad station, dispose of his produce, and return to his home before night.

BURK, LEWIS retired res w s Franklin, 1 door n Main, Richmond.

Mr. Burk was born near Lexington, Fayette County, Kentucky, March 23, 1799, and came, with his parents, to Indiana in 1809. In 1813 he returned to Kentucky on a visit, and remained there to learn the trade of a blacksmith. He came back to Richmond in the fall of 1816. Among the first jobs of work he did after his return, was to cut a set of logs for a blacksmith-shop, for which he received seventy-five cents, doing three days' work in one. Twenty-five cents per day were all the wages he could obtain working at his trade, so he turned his hand to the work of a stone-mason, building chimneys, laying foundations for houses, &c.; and in the the season, he worked at harvesting; for mason and harvest work he was accustomed to receive fifty cents per day.

In 1817 he commenced business for himself by renting a set of tools, and opening a shop about three miles south of Richmond, near where Burgess Chapel now stands. From there he went to Centerville to work as a journeyman at $15 per month. His employer dying soon after, he took the shop on his own account until the spring of 1824 or 5, when he returned to Richmond, having been married to Miss Maria Moffett Nov. 27, 1823. He continued blacksmithing in Richmond until 1827 or 8, when he was obliged to give it up on account of failing health.

Mr. Burk had never received any education until he commenced business for himself, when he found it indispensible, and engaged the services of a Mr. White, who was teaching near his shop south of Richmond. With the assistance of this gentleman, he was enabled in a short time to keep his accounts properly. From the time he quit blacksmithing, he was engaged successively and successfully in the grocery, tavern, and livery-stable business until 1830, when he bought a drove of horses, and went to Philadelphia. Returning in March, 1831, he again engaged in hotel keeping until 1835, when he went to farming and trading. In 1839 he was elected to represent Wayne County in the lower house of the State Legislature. In 1841 he was elected to the State Senate, and again in 1842.

In 1852 he commenced the management of the Wayne Bank for Mr. Beckel, of Dayton, Ohio, and in 1853 bought Mr. Beckel out, and went into the banking business on his own account, which he continued until July 13, 1863, when the First National Bank of Richmond was organized. From 1861 to 1864, he was Post Quarter-master of Camp Wayne, Richmond. Mr. Burk has always been one of the most liberal public-spirited men, lending a helping hand to any and every movement calculated to develop the resources of the country, or to elevate the tone of society politically, morally, and religiously; and we may add last, though not least, his benefactions to the poor and needy have not been grudgingly dealt out, but have been well-timed, judicious, and liberal. He is now possessed of ample fortune, enjoys excellent health, and seems to be gliding smoothly down the stream of life. May his days be long in the land, and his end peace.

FINLEY, JOHN mayor, office in Warner Building, e s Pearl n Main, res n w cor Pearl and Market, Richmond.

Mr. Finley was born in Brownsburg, Rockbridge county, Virginia, January 11, 1797, his father being a merchant of that place. He was sent to a country school, and learned to "read, write and cipher as far as the rule of three," and says it required ten years to acquire that much education. He served an apprenticeship as tanner and currier and then emigrated west. He visited Richmond first in 1821, but did not decide to make it his residence until 1823, and in 1826 was married at Yellow Springs, Ohio, to Miss Rachel H. Knott, who died soon after. He was again married at Indianapolis, April 9, 1830, to Miss Julia Hanson, with whom he has traveled down the journey of life to the present time. From 1831 to 1833-4 he was connected with the Richmond Palladium, as editor and proprietor, in whole or in part. Mr. Finley is one of the few men upon whom official honors set naturally, and the people recognizing that fact, have called upon him to fill many places of public trust. He was three years a member of the Indiana Legislature, and three years Enrolling Clerk in the State Senate, after which he served seven years as Clerk of the Wayne Co. Courts, commencing in March, 1837. In January, 1852, he was elected Mayor of the city of Richmond, entering at once upon the duties of his office. He has been annually re-elected to the present time, and it is generally conceded that he is Mayor for life, although it may be thought necessary for the people to go through the form of an election once a year. In all the positions of life he has occupied, Mr. Finley has found time to cultivate his literary tastes, especially as a poet. His pieces have been received with very general favor. Among those thought to be the best may be mentioned: "A Wife Wanted," "To My Old Coat," "To a Skeleton," "What is Faith," "Bachelor's Hall," and "Hoosier's Nest." Mr. Finley's "Bachelor's Hall" has been widely circulated in England as well as in America, with the name of Thomas Moore attached. The "Hoosier's Nest" formed part of a New Year's Address, written in 1830, for the Indianapolis Journal. It has been published without his name in a majority of the newspapers of the United States, and quoted in England as a graphic specimen of backwoods literature. The poems above named may be found in the "Poets and Poetry of the West," by Coggeshall. We are pleased to learn that Mr. Finley's poems have been collected, and are now in the hands of a publisher.

"LIBERTY, EQUALITY, FRATERNITY!"

INDIANA TRUE REPUBLICAN!

ISAAC H. JULIAN, Editor.

OFFICE OF PUBLICATION, NO. 67 MAIN ST.,

(OLD BROAD AX BUILDING.,)

RICHMOND, - - - - - - - INDIANA.

"THE TRUE REPUBLICAN" has closed its Seventh Volume. Now that

"Wild War's deadly blast is blawn,
And gentle Peace returning," the Union saved, the Nation, we trust, to be regenerated, and our brave soldier-boys coming home to relieve the anxious fears and gladden the hearts of their friends, it may be fairly anticipated that there will be a great falling off in the circulation of the Daily Papers, and a proportionate increase of that of the Local Weeklies. This would certainly be but just, for it is a notorious fact that the Dailies have grown rich, and the Weeklies poor, in consequence of the War. We deem the occasion a fitting one, therefore, to bring our humble sheet more prominently before the public, sectionalizing what we have to say as to its PECULIAR CLAIMS upon the support of the people, and its BUSINESS CAPABILITIES, as follows:

I.

1. Of present existing papers, "THE TRUE REPUBLICAN" is the Pioneer of Anti-Slavery principles in Indiana. During the greater part of its existence, it was the ONLY distinctively Anti-Slavery paper published in the State, and, as such, was the focus of opprobrium from all other quarters. It was just as firm and decided when Anti-Slavery principles were every-where spoken against, as it is now that the whole country has declared in their favor. And while it appears probable that Slavery in this country will soon be numbered among the things that were, yet the difference of moral and political light, which led some people to sustain it, and others to oppose it, will still remain with reference to all other questions of Human Rights, and we give our Anti-Slavery antecedents as the best guaranty as to where we shall be found on all such questions. We shall advocate the EQUAL RIGHTS OF ALL MEN, irrespective of Race, Color, or Condition; and, of course, shall urge giving the Right of Suffrage to all the Nation's loyal friends and defenders, holding that a black patriot is infinitely superior to a white rebel. The "TRUE REPUBLICAN" is to-day THE MOST RADICAL NEWSPAPER IN THE STATE, pre-eminently, and will so remain. And it is the ONLY Radical Republican paper of Wayne County.

OVER.

2. It differs from some of its neighbors, which make a much greater "spread," and assume "city airs," in having a LEADING POLITICAL MISSION, FIXED POLITICAL AND GENERAL PRINCIPLES, and CAREFUL LITERARY MANAGEMENT. It is not made up of small-beer "items," a re-hash of stolen editorials, long, wishy-washy volunteer puffs, and scraps gathered at random from ordinary sources. It appeals to intelligent readers, who know that a newspaper, like a book, is not to be judged by its size, but by the matter and spirit of it.

3. It will remain, as it has been, a power in the politics of the country, the steady advocate of Popular Rights and Advancement, the friend of Free Discussion, giving large space to Home Affairs, to interesting Local and General Correspondence, a Select Miscellany, &c. Located now in the chief and central town of Eastern Indiana, it aspires to a wider patronage and leadership, and solicits the kindly aid of those who approve its principles and course.

4. We believe it is conceded to be a better paper now than it has ever been. It will be enlarged and improved from time to time, as its friends may signify their desire that it should be, by an increased patronage. We think this a very fair proposition. All we ask is that people may make themselves acquainted with it, and give it such a support as they may deem it to deserve.

II.

1. The "TRUE REPUBLICAN" has superceded the "BROAD-AX," has succeeded to its subscription list, "good will," and material, and is published at its old stand, No. 67, Main Street, Richmond, Indiana.

2. The "TRUE REPUBLICAN" is not a new paper. It is the same paper which was published for six years and a half (up to the beginning of the present year) at Centerville, Indiana, by I. H. JULIAN, its present editor.

3. By the combination of the two subscription lists, the "TRUE REPUBLICAN" has become the best advertising medium in Eastern Indiana. Its circulation throughout the country and country towns is MORE THAN TWO TO ONE of that of any other paper published in Richmond, or Wayne County. It circulates, too, to a large extent, in a different channel from the other local papers, and among a class of people second to none other, pecuniarily or otherwise.

4. In like manner, by the combination of the two offices, the TRUE REPUBLICAN JOB PRINTING OFFICE is the largest, and, in many respects, the most complete of any other in this city. It is prepared to do as good general work as any other office, and challenges trial, and guarantees satisfaction in this department. Orders for Job Work and Advertising solicited by mail, through our agents or otherwise. Work returned promptly in the same way, free of charge.

5. We publish or circulate our paper on Thursday Morning, and, in order to meet the mails, must go to press by Wednesday noon. Communications, therefore, should be in on Monday, and Advertisements and Business Notices by Tuesday evening, to insure insertion the same week.

Terms, Payable Invariably in Advance.

DR. B. MULLER,

Physician and Surgeon,

Gives especial attention to all

Chronic and Private Diseases.

A thorough education at the best Medical Colleges and Hospitals in Europe, and the experience of ten years practice in this country, will enable him to promise relief, and in many cases cure diseases that have heretofore been considered incurable.

Office and Residence No. 64 South Pearl Street,

RICHMOND, IND.

Testimonial from Citizens of Richmond, Indiana.

I have been under the treatment of physicians in England, Canada, and the United States, none of whom did me any good, and all finally told me they could not cure me. Since I have been under the treatment of Dr. Muller, my health is better than it has been for many years.

HOLLOWAY, D. P.—Holloway & Davis Richmond.

David P. Holloway was born in the month of December, 1800, under a buckeye tree, in what is now the suburbs of Waynesville, Warren County, Ohio. His parents were emigrating to Indiana Territory, and pitched their tent for the night on the spot above named, and when the morning dawned, a young "Buckeye" had joined the group, ready to move on with them to the "Hoosier" land of promise. The family settled in this county, east of Richmond. The boyhood days of Mr. Holloway were spent on the farm with his father. At an early age he commenced learning the art of printing in one of the first offices ever started in Richmond. After working a short time there, he went to Cincinnati, Ohio, and served a regular apprenticeship in the office of the "Cincinnati Gazette," while it was under the editorial management of that distinguished writer, Charles Hammond. The "Richmond Palladium" having been established by Nelson Boon in 1830, and in consequence of the ill health of Mr. Boon—which resulted in his death—the paper went into the hands of Mr. Larsh; but at the end of its first year's existence, Mr. Holloway bought the office, and commenced editing and publishing the paper on his own account; and, with the exception of one year—1835—continued with it to the present time. In 1843 he was elected to represent Wayne County in the lower house of the State Legislature for one year, and in 1844 was elected to the State Senate for six years. In 1849 he was appointed by President Taylor Examiner of Land Offices, and in 1856 was elected to represent this district in the United States Congress. In 1861 he was appointed by President Lincoln Commissioner of HOOVER, DAVID, sen., res e s Richmond and Newport pike, 1½ miles n Richmond, Wayne tp.

Mr. Hoover is a native of North Carolina, and came, with his father's family, first to Warren County, Ohio, and then to Indiana Territory, in what was then a part of Dearborn, but now Wayne County, arriving in 1806. He has lived to see what was then an unbroken forest covered with farm-houses, towns and villages, and changed from an abode for savages to homes for the highest civilization and refinement. In the early history of this county, he was called upon to fill various offices, such as Clerk, Judge, &c. From the knowledge of events thus acquired, he wrote and published a "Memoir" of himself, in which much of the history of the county is interwoven. Judge Hoover is in the eighty-fifth year of his age, but from his uniform good health, it would not be surprising if he should live to be a centinarian.

spects. Having commenced the world as a mechanic, he soon became an editor and legislator, and was equally at home in either. He has always been on the side of right; and as a temperance lecturer, has been considered a host in himself. When the rebellion commenced he offered his services as a soldier, but being physically unable for duty in the field, he could not idly fold his hands, but took the stump and worked nobly in arousing patriots to action, and in moving the benevolent to care for the families of soldiers.

JULIAN, JACOB B.—Julian & Julian—res e s Main Cross bet Water and Plum, Centerville.

JULIAN, GEORGE W. atty and Representative in Congress from the Fifth District of Indiana, res s s Main bet Second and Third, Centerville.

Mr. Julian was born near Centerville, May 5, 1817. His parents were natives of North Carolina, whence they emigrated near the beginning of the present century, and were among the earliest settlers in Indiana Territory. The family is of French extraction, the first of them in America having settled on the eastern shores of Maryland at an early period of our history, and on account of Indian troubles there, removed to North Carolina soon after Braddock's defeat. The father of Mr. Julian was prominent among the pioneer citizens of Indiana. In 1822 he was a member of the State Legislature. He died the year following, when George was six years of age; he, with five others, being left to the care of their mother. His early life was one of privation; but he soon proved that he was possessed of industry and perseverance, sufficient to overcome all obstacles in the way of improving his mind, his only educational priveleges being those of common schools, laboring a part of the time for support. It is said that when the great National Road was being graded through this county George was engaged upon it, receiving for his services sixty-five cents per day. After having sufficiently qualified himself, he engaged in teaching a county school. During his first school his manhood was put to a severe test by an effort of the "big boys," re-enforced by some of the hands on the National Road, to compel him to "treat" on Christmas day, a custom then prevalent in the West. He came out of the contest victorious. While teaching a school in Illinois in 1839 he commenced studying law, and was admitted to practice in 1840. In 1845 he was married to Miss Annie A. Finch, and in the same year was elected to the State Legislature. During that session a bill for the abolition of capital punishment was before that body. Mr. Julian was one of the warmest advocates of the measure. He also, very early in his public life, took a stand in favor of universal freedom as the right of all men, and his advocacy of those principles would have done credit to the most thorough antislavery man of New England origin. His early political affinities were with the Whig party; but upon the nomination of General Taylor for the Presidency, in 1848, his antislavery principles were too deep-rooted to advocate his election; he consequently attended the Buffalo convention, and was appointed an elector for his district, on the ticket with Van Buren and Adams. In 1849 he was elected to represent the Fifth District in Congress, in which body he fully sustained his reputation as an advocate of freedom. In 1852 he was nominated by the Pittsburgh Convention for the office of Vice-President, on the ticket with John P. Hale, for President. In 1856 he was Vice-President and Chairman of the Committee of Organization in the Pittsburgh Convention, which nominated John C. Fremont for President, and William L. Dayton for Vice President. In 1860 he was again elected to Congress, and was placed upon the joint Committee of both Houses on the Conduct of the War; also, on the Committees of Public Lands and Public Expenditures. In 1862 was re-elected to the Thirty-eighth Congress, and was again elected in 1864, as a representative in the same body, serving on the same committees as in the previous sessions. Soon after his election in 1862, Mr. Julian had the misfortune to lose the wife of his early years, who had always been in full sympathy with his political views, and a safe counselor in all his trials. She is said to have been remarkable for her personal beauty, and a friend of every form of practical philanthropy. In January, 1864, he was married a second time, to a daughter of the late Hon. Joshua R. Giddings. In personal appearance Mr. Julian is very tall and commanding, being something more than six feet high, and well proportioned, and as he is yet in the meridian of life, bids fair to live long enough to write his name still higher upon the scroll of fame.

MEREDITH, SOLOMON far s s Columbus & Indiana Central R. R., adjoining Cambridge City on the south-east.

Mr. Meredith was born May 29th, 1810, in Guilford County, N. C. At the age of nineteen years, he left his native place, and came to Wayne County, Indiana, traveling the entire distance on foot, and arriving May 5th, 1829. He commenced cutting cord-wood soon after his arrival, his wages amounting to about six dollars per month. Of this scanty income he used a portion for the improvement of his mind, and as an evidence of his success, it is only necessary to mention the fact that he was elected Sheriff of Wayne County in 1834, only five years after his arrival, and was re-elected in 1836. During his second term of office he was married, and at the expiration of the term was enabled to engage in mercantile pursuits, which he prosecuted successfully until 1845, at which time he was elected as a representative of Wayne County in the State Legislature, and was re-elected in 1847, and again in 1848.

In April, 1849, when Zachary Taylor became President of the United States, he appointed Mr. Meredith United States Marshal for the District of Indiana, the duties of which office he continued to discharge until April, 1853. The Constitution of Indiana having been changed so as to authorize the holding of bienniel sessions of the Legislature, Mr. M. was once more elected to a seat in that body in 1854 for two years. During the time he was discharging all these official duties, he found time to engage in agricultural pursuits, and has probably done more than any other man in south-eastern Indiana to improve its live stock, having imported many rare breeds, particularly of sheep and cattle. From 1850 to 1859 he was largely engaged in railroad enterprises, being a part of that time Vice-President, Director, and Financial Agent of the Indiana Central.

In 1859 he was elected Clerk of Wayne County for four years. In the month of July, 1861, he was appointed Colonel of the Nineteenth Regiment, Indiana Infantry, and upon his acceptance of this position, it was thought by many that the office of County Clerk was vacated. To obviate any difficulty on that score the people of the county re-elected him, in October following, to the same office, desiring to leave it to the military authorities to say whether he should hold two offices of trust and profit at the same time or not. He was in possession of both offices until he was promoted to the office of Brigadier-General, when to avoid further difficulty, he resigned the office of Clerk, and Samuel B. Schlagle was elected in his stead—Soldier.

JOSEPH INGELS,

Manufacturer of the New and Improved

HOOSIER GRAIN DRILL,

MILTON, WAYNE CO., - - INDIANA.

Commencing the year 1865, with the prestige of success it has met with in former years, it would seem that its reputation is sufficiently established, and

ITS MERITS SO WIDELY KNOWN,

As to render further notice superfluous.

It has Received the FIRST PREMIUMS at all the

STATE AND COUNTY FAIRS

Wherever it has been exhibited, and came in

COMPETITION WITH OTHER DRILLS.

The improvements in my Drills, which render them so popular in the estimation of all who have seen or used them, and so

EFFECTIVE AND COMPLETE IN THEIR OPERATION

in all kinds of

GRAIN AND GRASS SEED,

Are secured to me by LETTERS PATENT, and can not be found elsewhere; and I can assure all Farmers who are in want of GRAIN DRILLS, that I am now offering to them both in construction and operation, that was ever made.

THE BEST AND MOST COMPLETE GRAIN DRILL,

Orders thankfully received, and punctually attended to.

MORRISSON, ROBERT, Sen. retired res n w cor Sixth and Broadway, Richmond.

Mr. Morrisson is a native of North Carolina, and emigrated to Indiana Territory in 1810—the same year in which a part of Dearborn county was laid off and organized as the county of Wayne. At the time of his arrival, Mr. Morrisson was about 24 years of age, possessed of but a small portion of this world's goods; but, being in the full vigor of manhood, he entered upon the business of life, and although at times meeting with losses and disappointments, his success has been greater than is usually allotted to men. He has been enabled to amass an ample fortune, which he uses as one who feels that he is acting as a steward in the service of a higher power. His character for benevolence is coeval with his prosperity. It has been manifested in innumerable ways not always known to the public; but the crowning eleemosynary act of his life was the founding of a library, and donating it, not to the city of Richmond, but to Wayne township, including, of course, the city. His expenditures, from time to time, in connection with this institution, have been something near twenty thousand dollars. It is under the control of a library committee, with provision for its perpetuation. Although the liberal donor is bending under the weight of years—being now nearly eighty—he is in the enjoyment of excellent health, and looks as though he might yet live many years to enjoy the respect and esteem of thousands of citizens, on the very ground he assisted so largely in rescuing from its wild state.

MORTON, O. P. Governor of the State of Indiana; res, previous to entering on the duties of his office, Centerville.

Oliver Perry Morton was born August 4th, 1823, at Salisbury, the first county-seat of Wayne County. The town is now extinct, but its location may be seen on the map accompanying this work. Both his parents dying when he was quite young, the care of him devolved upon his grandmother and two aunts. Very early in life, he was put to the hatting trade, with his brother, but never did much at the business. In 1837 he was sent to Centerville to attend the Wayne County Seminary, under Prof. S. K. Hoshour. After leaving the high school of Prof. Hoshour, he entered Miami University, at Oxford, Ohio. In the University he made great progress in his studies, and developed those rare talents that have distinguished him as a debater, and contributed so largely to his success in public life. He left the University without graduating, returned to Centerville, and commenced the study of the law, giving all his energies to the task of preparing to enter upon the practice of his profession. He was married May 15, 1845, to Miss Lucinda Burbank, of Centerville. In 1846 he was admitted to practice, and by his untiring industry and perseverance, together with his convincing eloquence, he rose rapidly in his profession, and soon acquired a lucrative practice. In 1852 he was appointed Judge of this Judicial District for one year, being the unexpired term of his predecessor. Mr. Morton, previous to 1854, acted with the Democratic party, but when that party repealed the Missouri Compromise, with the evident intention of extending Slavery, he resolved to sever his connection with it, and from that time to the present, has acted with the Republicans. In 1856 he was the candidate for Governor on the Republican ticket, and made a thorough and vigorous canvass of the State, in opposition to Ashel P. Willard, the Democratic candidate; and, although he failed to be elected, he came out of the contest with a well-consolidated party, its principles clearly defined, and himself strengthened in the conviction that he had done right in leaving the old party. In 1860 he was nominated for Lieutenant-Governor on the ticket with Henry S. Lane for Governor, and was overwhelmingly elected in November of that year. On the 14th of January, 1861, Mr. Morton was duly qualified, and entered upon the discharge of his duties as Lieut-Governor. He held the office but two days, when he became Governor of the State, in consequence of the Legislature, in joint session, having elected Gov. Lane to the office of United States Senator for six years. At this time the Southern leaders were marshaling their hosts for the impending conflict. Gov. Morton saw the whole situation at a glance. He knew that they were diabolically in earnest, and he visited Washington for the purpose of impressing his convictions upon the authorities there, and counseling them to prepare for the worst, and it is believed that his visit was not void of good results. Having returned to the capital of his own State before the attack on Fort Sumter, he was at his post to give command when the gale of treason struck the ship of State. Six regiments, the quota of Indiana on the call for 75,000 men, were raised in an incredibly short time, and were armed and equipped, and moving for the scene of action before those of any other Western State. Newspapers of other States vied with each other in eulogizing the Governor of Indiana for his energy in bringing soldiers into the field. The idea of sending State agents to look after the welfare of the soldiers, originated with Governor Morton; and although others imitated his example, the agents of Indiana invariably distanced all others. Among his first acts after the attack on Sumter, was to call the Legislature to assemble on the 25th of April. In his message to that body, he informed them that the six regiments called for were not only in the field, but that men enough to organize as many more were in camp awaiting authority from that body to organize them, in anticipation of furture calls from the General Government. His wishes were at once complied with, and means provided for putting the State on a war footing. From such a beginning he never grew weary, but was always ahead of the demands of the President, so that the Governor of Indiana was cited as an example worthy of imitation by all in authority, from Maine to California. When the time came for another gubernatorial election in November, 1864, all loyal men were so well satisfied that Morton emphatically was the right man in the right place, that they thought of none other, and he was again elected by an overwhelming majority for another four years. Thus he who as Chief Magistrate of our State sent forth the first men to meet the hosts of treason is again at his post to welcome the the battle-scarred veterans on their return, with the plaudit, "Well done, good and faithful servant." May he and they long live to enjoy the blessing all have so nobly contributed to achieve.

QUINN, Rev. WILLIAM PAUL bishop of the African M. E. Church in the United States of America res with Harrison Medlind, Richmond.

Mr. Quinn was born in Hindostan, January 1, 1813. His father and an uncle were mahogany [illegible] the uncle being one of the most wealthy men in that country. The subject of this sketch says that from infancy the cruelties practiced by the Hindoos upon each other, both in peace and war, were peculiarly revolting to him. This repugnance was strengthened at about the age of seventeen years, by hearing the preaching of Elizabeth Walker, a celebrated Quakeress, who went from England on a mission to Hindostan. He does not profess to have been converted under her preaching, but was so thoroughly convinced of the truth of her doctrines, especially with regard to wars, drunkenness, and the like, that he began not only to defend, but to advocate them among his acquaintances, which caused his father to disown and finally to banish him from the country, with the penalty of death, if he ever returned. He soon found friends among the sailors, and by that means obtained a passage to Gibraltar, and from there to Sheffield, England, where he came under the notice of Elias Hicks and his brother Samuel, by whom he was brought to the home of Elias, on Long Island, New York, about the year 1831 or '32. It was not long after this that he found his way into Maryland, where he was converted, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church at New Hope, Cecil county. He was very soon licensed to exhort, and not long after to preach. At the General Conference of the African M. E. Church which met in Philadelphia about the year 1835, he was appointed as a missionary to the colored people in the Western States, particularly in Ohio and Indiana. He organized the African M. E. Church on South Marion street, Richmond, September 23, 1836. In 1848, he organized a church in Dublin, and another in Newport, and still another at Cambridge City, in 1864, all among the colored people. He has been a bishop eighteen years, and during that time has visited all of the nine annual conferences of his church alternately with bishops Payne, Campbell, and Wayman. It is impossible to present even a glance at the manifold trials and triumphs of his life. He has been in all the perils enumerated by St. Paul, the incidents connected with some of which he can relate in a style very amusing to his auditors. He has often been assaulted by ruffians, sometimes to gratify their prejudices against men of color, and at others because he had acquired an extensive reputation as a pugilist before his conversion. He has also been assaulted by robbers. In all of these encounters he has been able to satisfy his antagonists at a single trial. This is not surprising to those who have seen him. A more perfect specimen of manhood is seldom seen, being 6 feet 3 inches high, and, as he says, "weighs two hundred and fifty-six pounds before dinner." He is but 52 years of age, and his eye has not become dim, nor his natural force abated. May he long live to be a blessing to his people and the world.

RATLIFF, CORNELIUS, Sr. far e s Williamsburg pike, 1½ miles n w Richmond, Wayne tp.

He was born in North Carolina in 1799, and came with his parents to Indiana Territory in 1810, when this was a part of Dearborn county, and his father entered the land on which he now resides, consequently their home was within one and a half miles of the boundary between the possessions of the whites and Indians, during the war of 1812, and they had more Indians than whites for neighbors. The white settlers generally removed to forts for protection, but their family remained at home and pursued their daily avocations. The Indians would visit and trade with them, saying: "You Quaker, no shoot Indians." There is a tradition in the family, that the grandfather of the subject of our sketch came over from England in the same ship with William Penn, and was present at the treaty with the Indians under the old Elm, where Philadelphia now stands. Cornelius Ratliff has done more than any other one man to supply this part of the country with good fruit, being the first man in Wayne county to establish a nursery of fruit trees ripening in regular succession. He has eaten fruit from trees taken from his nursery to Illinois, Michigan and Ohio, before the days of railroads, and feels gratified that he has been enabled to contribute something to the improvement of the country and the comfort of the people. He is now near 66 years of age, but steps as spry as a boy of 16, and looks as if he might live many years to enjoy the society of a generation he has seen grow up around him.

ASSETS, May 1st, 1865, over - - - - - - $4,000,000.

ANNUAL DIVIDEND, 50 PER CENT.

THE NEW YORK

Life Insurance Company.

ESTABLISHED, 1845.

The New York Life Insurance Company

Is one of the oldest institutions of the kind in America, having been chartered in the year 1841, and commenced business in May, 1845.

During the twenty years of its existence, it has issued policies upon the lives of more than thirty thousand persons, and has paid in losses $3,000,000 to the families and representatives of those who have deceased while members of the Company.

Ten-Year Non-Forfeiture Policies.

This Company originated and was the first to bring before the public the Ten-Year Non-Forfeiture Plan, which has so fully commended itself to the judgment of thinking men, that it has become the most popular mode of assurance; and is rapidly superseding the old method of life-long payment. It has received the unqualified approval of the best business-men of the land, large numbers of whom have taken out policies under it simply as an investment.

By the Table on which this class of Policies is based, a person incurs no risk in taking out a policy. Insuring to-day for $10,000, if he dies to-morrow the $10,000 immediately becomes a claim; and if he lives ten years, and makes ten annual payments, his policy is paid up—nothing more to pay, and still his dividends continue, making

His Life Policy a Source of Income to him while living.

The only argument of weight offered against Life Insurance is, that a party might pay in for a number of years, and then, by inadvertence, inability, &c., not be able to continue paying, thereby losing all he had paid. The "New York Life" has obviated this objection, by its

TEN-YEAR NON-FORFEITURE PLAN.

A party, by this table, after the second year,

CAN NOT FORFEIT ANY PART OF WHAT HAS BEEN PAID IN.

Thus, if one insuring by this plan for $10,000, discontinues after the second year, he is entitled to A PAID UP POLICY, according to the number of years paid in, viz:

Second year, two-tenths of	$10,000	(am't ins'd),	am't'g to	$2,000,	with divid'd on	same	for life
Third year, three-tenths of	"	"	"	3,000,	"	"	"
Fourth year, four-tenths of	"	"	"	4,000,	"	"	"
Fifth year, five-tenths of	"	"	"	5,000,	"	"	"

And so on, until the tenth annual payment, WHEN ALL IS PAID, and DIVIDENDS STILL CONTINUE DURING THE LIFE-TIME OF THE ASSURED.

☞ This feature, among others, has given to this Company a success unparalleled in the history of Life Insurance.

TIBBETTS, NANCY—widow Nathaniel—res ½ mile n Abington, Abington tp.

Nathaniel Tibbetts was murdered on the evening of October 18th, 1864, under the following circumstances: The Republicans of Abington township met at Abington the evening after the election for state officers, for the purpose of rejoicing over the result; and as men have sometimes expressed their joy by burning each others' hats, it was introduced on this occasion. A young man by the name of Francis M. Holler, who belonged to the opposite party, went into the crowd. When about to do so he was advised by his political friends to stay away. He refused to listen to the advice given, and, as all expected, his hat was soon added to the fuel for the illumination. To appease his anger, he soon got into an altercation with one of Mr. Tibbetts' sons—a small boy—and was in the act of doing him bodily injury, when Mr. Tibbetts, who had been touching off the cannon with a small switch, came to the rescue of his son, and struck Holler a few times, inflicting some scratches in the face. More than a week after the date above mentioned, Mr. Tibbetts and his two sons were in the village, and started for home when they were confronted just at the edge of the village by the two Hollers, Francis M. and Granville H., when one of them threw a stone and struck Mr. T. on the head, fracturing his skull. He never spoke after receiving the blow, and died at four o'clock on the morning of the 19th. The murderers fled, and made good their escape, but several months after they were arrested by John and Daniel Fosher, in Plattsmouth, Nebraska Territory. The fact having been communicated to Sheriff Paxson, he went with the proper assistance and brought them to Centerville where they are now—August, 1865—awaiting their trial, which is to take place in Newcastle at the October term of the Henry County Court, the prisoners having taken a change of venue to that county. The reward offered for their capture—two hundred dollars—was generously donated by the Messrs. Fosher to the widow of Mr. Tibbetts.

WITT, BENNETT F. formerly engaged in the manufacture of agricultural implements at Dublin, but since the commencement of the rebellion been acting as government claim agt. at Indianapolis; son of Rev. C. W. Witt, Dublin.

WITT, Rev. CALEB W. minister in the United Brethren church and agt. for the Hartsville University, res with John Cooper s e cor Spring and Foundry sts., Dublin.

Mr. Witt is a native of Tennessee, and came to this State in 1816 and settled in what was then a part of Wayne County, but since set off to Union, about eight miles south of Richmond. In 1834 he removed to Dublin and engaged in the practice of medicine; after about four years successful prosecution of his profession, he, with a partner, established the present Dublin Foundry in 1838, of which business he was the managing partner until 1855 when the firm sold out to the present proprietors. In 1836 Mr. Witt in company with two partners established a Female Seminary in Dublin, employing the best qualified teachers that could be procured. This school enjoyed the reputation of being the best in the State at that time. In 1837 he in company with others formed a joint stock company and built the Dublin Academy. Mr. W. laid out a large part of the village of Dublin. Being always on the alert for any thing that would advance the moral or intellectual interests of the community he assisted in organizing the first Temperance Society in the county, and it is doubtless owing to his influence as much as to that of any other one man, the fact that for twenty-five years there has not been any legal traffic in intoxicating liquors in Dublin. About the year 1837 he was authorized by the Church of the United Brethren in Christ to preach the gospel; for several years he only sustained the relation of a local preacher, but for the last few years he has given himself up wholly to the work.—See military history of his son, Dr. W. B. Witt.

This, we believe, was the first society of Friends organized in the State of Indiana. Soon after the organization of this society, it united with others in organizing Whitewater Yearly Meeting, being the first yearly meeting west of Ohio. Measures were taken, not long after, to erect the present large house of worship, for the accommodation of the yearly meeting, and in those days, when all this country was a wilderness, broken only by the small clearings of the hardy settlers, miles apart, and the only means of travel was on horseback or in wagons, over dirt on corduroy roads, its proportions must have seemed gigantic, as it burst upon the view of the lonely traveler. Even now while it forms a part of a city of 11,000 inhabitants, it is much the largest house of worship in the place. We believe the building was completed in 1828. Whitewater Yearly Meeting assembles annually in September, and although large numbers have, from time to time, been set off from it to form other yearly meetings further west, the crowds that attend its meetings are numbered by thousands.

Woodbury Society of Friends, (Orthodox), house of worship, 2 miles s Hillsboro', Franklin tp.

SABBATH SCHOOLS IN WAYNE COUNTY.

Christian, organized in 1859, has 4 teachers and 80 scholars, Wm. H. Anderson, Superintendent; hour of meeting 9 a m, Richmond.

Dover, Methodist (Episcopal), organized in March, 1865, in a school house south of Fairfax, A. A. Curme, Superintendent, meets at 2 o'clock p m every Sabbath in the M. E. Church, Fairfax.

Rev. Arthur A. Curme, who is a local minister in the M. E. Church, went to the village of Chester in this county in the latter part of 1863 or early in 1864, and opened a Sabbath school. He labored faithfully, enlisting such other persons as he could and preaching to the citizens who assembled to hear him, either before or after the school each Sabbath, until sufficient interest was awakened to warraut the organization of a church. This being accomplished, his next object was to secure a house of worship. This he steadily kept in view, and by donations from those he was able to enlist in the work, with liberal contributions of his own, a small, neat frame house was provided all complete in the autumn of 1864. Mr. Curme then turned the Sabbath school, church and all over to the minister in charge of the circuit in which it was located, and looked about for other missionary ground. Finding religious privileges very limited in Fairfax he organized the Sabbath school in March last as above stated. This time feeling no doubt about a church organization, he commenced soliciting contributions for a house at once, had it erected, and when the church was organized Aug. 6th, 1865, the house being all complete, was dedicated the same day and turned over to the care of the Rev. N. H. Barnes, minister in charge of the circuit in which it is situated. Mr. Curme, however, continues to superintend the Sabbath school and preach at 4 o'clock p m on alternate Sabbaths with Mr. Barnes. Thus by the efforts of one man two churches and two Sabbath schools have been put into operation with all their influences for good, and this too, while he was discharging the active duties of a partner in a large and growing mercantile and manufacturing firm. An example worthy of imitation by more of our business men.

INSURANCE AGAINST ACCIDENTS.

The Original

TRAVELERS' INSURANCE CO.,

Of Hartford, Conn.

CAPITAL, - - - - - - $500,000.

INSURES AGAINST ACCIDENTS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION,

Causing Loss of Life or Bodily Injury.

THE TRAVELERS INSURANCE COMPANY was orgnnized, under a charter granted by he Connecticut Legisiature of 1863, and amended by the Legislature of 1864, for the specific urpose of effecting INSURANCE AGAINST ACCIDENTS, of whatever kind or description, whether they occur in traveling by railroad, steamboat or stage-coach, walking in the street, at work in the shop, or sitting by the domestic fireside; whether riding, boating, hunting, ishing, shooting, swimming, cricketing, surveying, engineering; whether working or playing sleeping or waking, in danger or out of (apparent) danger, at home or abroad—in every variety of circumstances in which mankind are ordinarily placed.

A General Accident Policy not only includes the risk in traveling, but also all forms of dislocations, broken bones, ruptured tendons, sprains, concussions, crushings, bruises, cuts, stabs, gunshot wounds, poisoned wounds, burns and scalds, bites of dogs, nnprovoked assaults by burglars, robbers or murderers—the action of lightning or sun stroke, the effects of explosions, chemicals, floods and earthquakes, suffocation by drowning or choking.

This company has now been for more than a year in successful operation; has issued over fifteen thousand policies, and paid numerous claims for compensation; has a directory of high character, and is managed with the prudence and sagacity which distinguish Hartford insurance companies; has an ample capital and large surplus, and its soundness and stability may be relied upon.

Miami Commercial College,

Phillips Hall, Cor. Main and Second Streets, Dayton, Ohio.

BABBITT & WILT, Principals.

To young men desirous of preparing themselves for business, this College offers advantages unsurpassed by any other College in the Union. It comprises a Theory Department, and a Practice Department.

The student first enters the THEORY DEPARTMENT, and is given a full theoretical understanding of the subject, by means of daily lectures, an extensive manuscript course and ample individual attention, from which he enters the PRACTICE DEPARTMENT.

This includes two apartments, known as Dayton and New York respectively; in one is the Miami College Bank, and in the other the First National Bank of New York. Both are organized on the plan of the National Banking System, in accordance with instructions received from the Treasury Department at Washington, by the courtesy of Hon. Hugh McCulloch, Secretary of the Treasury. The students become Stockholders, Directors, Presidents, Cashiers, Tellers, etc., and perform all the duties of their offices. On entering the Department, all are supplied with capital in Cash, and Scrip representing Merchandise, Real Estate, &c., and engage in tsansactions with each other, buying, selling, shipping, making all the necessary entries in their books, and writing out the appropriate Notes, Drafts, Acceptances, Receipts, Bills of Lading, accompanying Letters, &c., and transacting all the business with the Banks, customary with merchants; Depositing, Checking, Discounting, Buying and Selling Drafts, &c. They are thus forced to become practical, in the actual doing of the work they will be called on to perform in real business. This College is the only one in this City or section which adopts this plan.

In addition to a thorough course and well arranged apartments, we employ as teachers men of extensive experience in business, and of first class ability. Our Mr. F. M. ODELL has had a life-time experience in New York, having kept the books for six prominent firms of that city, and settled up the books of eighteen other firms, with such success as to call forth the enthusiastic commendations of his employers. Such an experience in the Commercial Center of the Continent, well fits him to be an authority in the Science of Accounts.

Mr. JAMES VINSONHALER was, formerly, for nearly five years, book-keeper for the extensive importing and jobbing Hardware House of J. R. Lindsey, Esq., Pittsburg, besides having filled other important positions. He was also, for two years, teacher in Duff's College. Regarding him, P. Duff, Esq., says: "His thorough knowledge of Book-Keeping, and extensive experience in business, place him in the first class of Practical Accountants." All connected with us have had years of actual experience. In this important respect, we claim superiority over any College in the West, if not the whole country.

BABBITTONIAN PENMANSHIP:

The author of this celebrated system of Penmanship is one of the Principals. For thoroughness of drilling in the Finger, Muscular and Arm movements, this system is indisputably unequaled. Students are systematically and thoroughly instructed in it, and we number among our students and graduates, many elegant and skillful business Penmen. We append opinions of some of the ablest authorities concerning it, and also of the College:

"The reputation of this College as one of the leading Commercial Colleges in the United States, is established and acknowledged by the best Merchants, Bankers, and business men of New York, Cincinnati, and elsewhere." —Richmond Telegram.

"This College affords unusual advantages for acquiring a thorough business education." —New York Evangelist.

"The Babbittonian Penmanship is more than national in its reputation, having been introduced not only into all parts of the United States, but into several foreign countries."—Dayton Journal.

"The whole art of Penmanship is clearly explained and illustrated. The system is highly valuable. By its aid we think that almost any person may learn to write in good style without an instructor."—Scientific American.

"Superior to all other systems."—E. B. Rice, of the N. Y. Custom House, and formerly Prof. of Penmanship at the State Normal School at Albany.

"Supersedes the necessity of a teacher."---N. Y. Independent.

"It has already become famous."—N. Y. Dispatch.

"We have thoroughly tested the Babbittonian Pens, and find them the best and cheapest in use."---Hodges' Journal of Finance, N. Y.

HASTINGS, IRA C. enlisted in Co B, 25th Reg Ill Vol Inf, for three years, June, 1861, at Danville. Was in the battle of Pea Ridge and the siege of Corinth, also in the battles of Stone River and Chickamauga, at which place he was taken prisoner Sept., 19th, 1863, with 1,200 others, and was at once marched to Tunnel Hill, put aboard the cars and sent to Atlanta, where they were placed in a stockade enclosing about one acre of ground. The wounded were permitted to take with them one shelter tent for two persons, the others were without any covering whatever. They remained in this prison but two days; their rations consisting of three ounces of poor meat and two crackers. They were then taken by railroad to Richmond, and marched through the principal streets as an exhibition and then taken to Belle Isle. While they were in this prison Mr. Hastings and another prisoner being detailed to draw rations, made an attempt to escape, but were recaptured and put in Castle Thunder. After remaining there about a week, he was taken out and sent to the prison at Danville, Va., where—quoting from the Richmond Sentinel—"Nature would thin them out." At the time Mr. Hastings was taken, the prisoners were robbed of nearly all their clothing, so that he was almost naked, and when he was started from Richmond to Danville, he was barefooted, and without a shirt or pants, except an old pair of drawers that he had taken from a dead comrade. In this condition he was started from Richmond on a frosty morning—for by this time winter was approaching—and without anything whatever to eat until his arrival at Danville. At this place our men received some blankets sent them by our own government. They remained at Danville until spring, suffering all that men could and live. In place of being relieved from their long continued sufferings, they were started to that horror of horrors, the Andersonville prison pen. Mr. Hastings and a comrade determined once more to make an effort to escape. They jumped from the cars while in motion and made for the swamps. The first night after their escape, they approached some negro quarters; the negroes treating them very kindly, giving them provisions enough to last three days. They continued to travel at night and conceal themselves through the day, and had high hopes of being able to reach the Union lines, but were at length overtaken by blood-hounds, re-captured and taken to Columbia, S. C., and placed in a dungeon where they remained eighteen days, and were then taken out, handcuffed, a ball and chain fastened to each of their legs, and placed on board the cars bound for Andersonville. The officer in command not being entirely destitute of humanity, removed the irons from his limbs to relieve his sufferings, and his horror of the Andersonville pen being so great he soon after escaped, but was again captured and lodged in the Andersonville prison in spite of all his heroic efforts to the contrary. Having been captured in Sept., 1863, Mr. Hastings remained in the hands of the rebels until Feb., 1865, when he was exchanged, sent to Savannah and put on board a vessel bound for New York. On his arrival there he was discharged, having served eight months over the time of his enlistment, and been nineteen months in rebel prisons. The testimony of Mr. Hastings confirms the worst accounts that have been published of the diabolical treatment of our Union soldiers by the authorities of that government whose very infamy was enough to sink it to the lowest depths of perdition. Space forbids giving in detail the experience of this one man, although it might be relied on in every particular, as he is spoken of by those best acquainted with him, as being equally as reliable for truth and veracity as he has proven himself to be for true bravery and loyalty to the best goverment on earth. He is now residing with his parents near Dublin.

Meredith, Samuel H. enlisted in Co A, 19th Reg Ind Vol Inf, for three years, July 2d, 1861. At the organization of the regiment on the 29th of the same month, he was appointed Quartermaster Sergt, and although his duties did not require him to carry a gun, when there was a prospect of fighting to be done, on more than one occasion, he took his musket and fell into ranks. On the 11th of Oct., 1861, he was promoted to 2d Lieut. The 19th was then at Fort Craig, Va., where it remained until the following spring. During the winter, the regiment was so well drilled as to place it in point of discipline equal to any in the service—Lieut. Meredith, at all times seconding the efforts of his superior officers in preparing his command for active service. On the 10th of Feb., 1862, he was promoted to the office of 1st Lieut., and was with his company from that time until Aug. 28th, 1862, when, near the close of the severely-contested battle of Gainesville, he fell, pierced by a minnie ball through the neck, barely missing the carotid artery It was thought at the time that he was mortally wounded; but he was immediately removed to Washington City, and by careful nursing, was soon able to bear removal home, where he was sent to recruit his prostrate energies. In October following, still suffering from the effect of his wound, he reported at the headquarters of his regiment, then stationed in Mayland, for duty. The Colonel of the 19th Ind regiment, having been promoted to the office of Brigadier-General, he appointed Leiut. Meredith senior aid on his staff, and in that capacity he took part in the battle of Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 13th, 1862; also in the battle of Chancellorsville, May 2d, 1863. and in the terrible battle of Gettysburg, in July of the same year. In the battle of Gettysburg he was again wounded, disabling him until November following, when he rejoined his regiment. In January, 1864, Lieut. Meredith re-enlisted as a veteran, for three years more, and with the greater part of the regiment, was furloughed home. He had never fully recovered from the effects of his first wound, and all the additional hardships and sufferings had so worn him down, that on his arrival at his father's house, on the 18th, he grew worse, and died in six days after, Jan. 22d, 1864. He was the eldest son of Gen. Solomon Meredith, of Cambridge City.

MEREDITH, SOLOMON. Having given in the "Citizens' Directory" a sketch of Mr. Meredith, from his nativity to the commencement of the rebellion, we shall confine what we have to say, in this place, to his military history. In the month of July, 1861, Solomon Meredith was appointed Colonel of the 19th Reg Ind Vol Inf. The first services of this regiment was in Virginia, taking part in the skirmishes and battles of Lewinsville, Langley's Cross Roads, Rappahannock Station, White Sulphur Springs, and on the 28th of August, 1862, fought in the severe battle of Gainsville, in which the 19th lost fifty per cent. of its effective force, in killed and wounded, Col. Meredith himself being among the latter. Notwithstanding their great loss, the regiment in less than three weeks after, Sept. 17th, did good service at the battle of Antietam. On the 6th of October, 1862, Col. Meredith was promoted to the office of Brigadier-General, and placed in command of a brigade, of which the 19th Indiana regiment formed a part. This was known through the war as the "Iron Brigade," on account of its splendid fighting qualities. The Iron Brigade was engaged at the battle of Fredricksburg, Dec. 13th, 1862, and in April, 1863, it was selected to force a crossing of the Rappahannock, in the face of the rebel army. This duty it discharged handsomely, laying pontoons for our army to cross, and capturing the rebel fortifications, for which General Meredith and his command were thanked in general orders. Only a few days after crossing the Rappahannock, the Iron Brigage took part in the battle of Chancellorsville, May 2,1863. It was also in the battle of Gettysburg, in which it again suffered severely, Gen. Meredith himself being wounded for the second time. He was taken to Washington for medical treatment, and was so far restored as to bear removal to his home in August. In November following, he rejoined his command, which was the First Division, First Army Corps, in the army of the Potomac. Early in 1864, Gen. Meredith was relieved of his command in the army of the Potomac, to take charge of the military post at Cairo, Ill. He administered the affairs of this department to the entire satisfaction of the authorities at Washington, by bringing order out of confusion, breaking up the business of smuggling, and fostering a friendly feeling among the people. On the 12th of September, 1864, he was ordered to relieve Gen. E. A. Paine, by taking command of the post of Paducah, Ky. Here, as at Cairo, he found many abuses to reform, and in November he received notice of an anticipated attack by the rebel Gen. Forrest, which he promptly took measures to repel, by pressing horses and mules enough into his service to mount a sufficient number of men to meet the guerrillas. After killing about sixty of their number, their organization was completely broken up, and comparative quiet restored in his department. In Feb., 1865, Gen. Meredith was relieved of his command and ordered to report at Indianapolis, and Maj. Gen. Thomas directed to fill the place by some officer of his department. On receiving this intelligence, Gen. Thomas telegraphed to the War Department: "I have no general officer in my department who can take the place of Gen. Meredith. He is the right man in the right place, and I desire that he be retained." The wishes of Gen. Thomas were complied with, and Gen. Meredith continued in commnnd of the post auntil the rebel armies under Lee and Johnson had been completely subdued and dispersed, and the rebel President had perpetrated the most flagrant insult that could have been offered to the female sex, by attempting to escape in the costume of a woman. The main object for which Gen. Meredith had entered the military service being now accomplished, his health still requiring the utmost care and his private affairs urgently demanding his attention, he was, at his own request, relieved of command on the 28th of May, 1865, and is now enjoying the society of his family at his residence near Cambridge City.

COURSE OF STUDY.

A full course of study in these Colleges, will embrace Mercantile Arithmetic, English Composition, Book-keeping by Double and Single Entry, General and Special Business Forms, Plain, Epistolary and Business Penmanship, Commercial Correspondence, and Lectures upon Commercial Law and Commercial Usages, with special instruction, both oral and written, upon the Laws of Health. A great mistake has been committed by most Commercial Schools, in sending young men to the Counting Room ignorant of the plainest and most simple rules for preserving the health, and disease, incapacity for business, and premature death, have been the result of this criminal neglect.

TERMS OF TUITION.

Full course of study, time unlimited (at Cincinnati $40) at all other Schools	$35 00
Clubs of five or more	30 00
Ornamental Penmanship and Pen Drawing	25 00
Commercial Arithmetic, three months	10 00
Commercial Arithmetic, one month	4 00
Business Penmanship, thirteen lessons	3 00
For Diploma	3 00
Full course in Telegraphy	25 00
Stationery (full course)	8 00

Tuition payable in advance, and no deduction for absence. Mechanics, and young men of limited means, who are laboring through the day, will be admitted to the Evening Sessions of these Colleges BY PAYING ONE-HALF of the tuition, in advance, thus placing it in the reach of every young man to receive a substantial Business Education, and, at the same time, retain his daily wages. Young men having been disabled in the army will be admitted at $25, and will secure all the advantages of a Perpetual Scholarship. Board can be had at Hamilton, Richmond, and Logansport, for about one-third less than in Cincinnati or Chicago.

BOARD OF LECTURERS.

The following Board of Lecturers, comprising much of the best legal and literary talent in the West, will lecture from time to time before the pupils of these Colleges, upon Commercial and Common Law, the Laws of Health, and other subjects generally instructive to the student:

Ex-Gov. FISK, Covington, Ky.
THOMAS MILLIKEN, Hamilton, O.
Hon. DANIEL MACE, Lafayette, Ind.
Hon. D. D. PRATT, Logansport, Ind.
Gov. O. P. MORTON, Indianapolis, Ind.

RAILSBACK, Rev. LYCURGUS.—When the rebellion broke out, Mr. Railsback was pursuing his theological studies at Lane Seminary, Cincinnati, Ohio. Himself and two other students enlisted on the 16th of April, 1861, and immediately commenced recruiting. Their success was such that by the 18th they had one hundred and fifty names on their rolls, but upon tendering their services to the government, were all rejected on account of the numbers offering being so much in excess of the 75,000 called for. Mr. Railsback returned to his studies, and continued them until May 10th, 1863, when he was commissioned by the American Tract Society as an army missionary, and assigned to the Department of the Ohio, then commanded by Gen. Burnside. The troops to be visited were nearly all in Kentucky. From the time he commenced until the last of August, he visited forty-nine regiments, forty hospitals, fifteen batteries, and a large number of prisoners, teamsters and government employees, distributing reading matter, conversing, and holding prayer-meetings whenever an opportunity offered. His aim was to make monthly visits to all the camps in the department, and he would often carry enough reading matter on his back to supply a regiment on duty at some out-post. In the latter part of August, 1863, orders were given for the part of the army he was with to move into East Tennessee. Mr. Railsback applied for transportation for some tracts and books but was refused. He then made a contract with an assistant quarter-master to drive an ambulance and take his papers along. Gen. Haskell, being in command of the division, ordered Mr. Railsback to take his tracts and hymn-books out of the jockey-box, and put a large negro to drive the ambulance. Returning to the quarter-master and stating the case, he was then put in charge of a six mule team, which he drove for one week over the roughest of roads, where almost every other team stalled; and although he had the poorest team and the heaviest load by several sacks of oats, and his three hundred pounds of reading matter added, he went over all parts of the road without stalling once, and became an object of curious interest both to teamsters and soldiers, as being a man that could drive a mule team and not swear. Having gone about half their journey, Gen. Haskell sent for Mr. Railsback and told him he was sorry he had not let him remain in the ambulance, and said the reason why he did not, was that he thought him to be some hanger-on who wished to impose upon the Government. The General concluded by saying: "Sir, I was mistaken in you, I will give you charge of all the head-quarter's teams. You may give up your team and come along with me." Gen. Haskell then authorized him to act as forage-master, took him in the same ambulance in which he himself rode, and in every way manifested his appreciation of the pluck with which Mr. Railsback prosecuted the work he had started out to do. Whenever they would make a halt, the General would say, you can have so many minutes to visit families, distribute tracts, or talk to the men. After their arrival in East Tennessee, Mr. Railsback visited nearly all of the 3d Army Corps, and distributed all his books and papers, after which he returned to Lane Seminary. This was in the autumn of 1863. He placed himself under the care of the U. S. Christian Commission, and continued his studies through the week, but would labor on the Sabbath. He was directed to visit the barracks in and around Cincinnati. These barracks seemed to be harder places to work than in the field. The men had greater opportunities for indulging their thirst for intoxicating drinks, and large numbers of them were under guard. He was often welcomed with the cry of "take him out." On such occasions Mr. Railsback would go right among those who appeared the most disorderly, and ask them to join him in singing a hymn, beginning himself, after having lined a portion of the hymn. First one and then another would join him, and soon they would begin to flock from all parts of the buildings. He would then vary the exercises as circumstances seemed to require.

In April, 1864, Leut.-Col. Webber, of the 44th Reg U. S. C. I., wrote to Mr. Railsback, asking if he would accept the chaplaincy of that regiment, which was then in course of organization. He answered, accepting the office; but it was not until the 20th of August that he entered upon its duties. In October following, Chaplain Railsback was sent for books and other reading matter, and it was during his absence that his regiment was captured by the rebel Gen. Hood. In one month after their capture, three hundred of their number escaped, and returned to the Union lines. The Chaplain having returned, on the 29th of November all of the members of the 44th who were present, left Chattanooga with

Gen. Steadman's command for Nashville. The train on which the 44th was placed, was the last of twenty, and as the whole country was swarming with rebels they were exposed to an attack from the time of starting. All, however, went smoothly until they were within six miles of Nashville, and at a place in the road where the cars were on a high bridge. The rebel cavalry, under Gen. Forrest opened two of their batteries upon this part of a regiment. A halt was made on the bridge, and the men formed around a block-house that had been built to protect the brige. Chaplain R. says: "The moral effect of the block-house, and the firm pluck of the colored soldiers saved us from immediate death." In this attack the Chaplain demonstrated the power of moral influence. Not having nor desiring to have any power to command, yet his influence over the men was greater than that of any officer of the regiment. When the attack was made, the train brought to a halt, and the shrieking shells were dashing in from every side, followed by small arms, the soldiers became somewhat demoralized; a few of them were knocked off the cars, and fell a distance of forty feet, others jumped off, and all were more or less confused, some losing their guns. The Chaplain went right among them, familiarly calling each by name, exhorting them to keep cool, and hold on to their guns, and pointed to a place for them to rally. He remained on the bridge until he got the last man off, then gathered up some abandoned guns and ammunition, and carried them up the hill, where he found the men trying to protect themselves behind trees and stumps, the Colonel endeavoring to form them into line, but was unsuccessful until the Chaplain came to his assistance by going in among the men as before, when they were soon ready for action, and did good service the remainder of the day. This attack commenced about ten o'clock Friday morning, December 2d, and lasted until dark, when about one-third of the men were killed and wounded, and their ammunition nearly exhausted. The Colonel arranged to have all who could walk to take advantage of the darkness and start for Nashville next morning at four o'clock, leaving Chaplain Railsback and Surgeon Strong to take care of the wounded. As soon as daylight came, the two walked out and surrendered, and "the whole face of the earth seemed to swarm with rebels in a short time. Then trading commenced. They would trade for any thing we had, but it was all their own way. They took every good article of clothing I had, even to my hat and boots, and then stripped our poor wounded." Mr. Railsback carried the wounded out of the block-house, over a high breast-work, the mud being very deep, the rain falling rapidly, and he suffering with hunger, having had nothing to eat since the previous morning. While engaged in this toilsome, but benevolent service, the rebel chivalry remained seated on their horses taunting him with curses. It was not until Sabbath morning, December 4th, two days after the fighting, that he was enabled to find a few pieces of hard bread, affording some relief to himself and the wounded men from the gnawings of hunger. The attempt Hood made to take Nashville, required all the rebel soldiers, so that but little attention was paid to their prisoners; and as soon as the rebels began their retreat, Messrs. Strong and Railsback made their way to Nashville, and procured assistance for their wounded men. Mr. Railsback was separated from the able-bodied part of his regiment forty-eight days; that part having done good service at Nashville, and followed Hood until his army was dispersed. When they met their Chaplain again, it was with great manifestations of joy. When Mr. Railsback entered upon his duties as Chaplain of the 44th, the men of his charge had just emerged from slavery, and were extremely ignorant, but now through his exertions and their own desire to learn, they can all read. He has been doing a noble work in raising that body of men from the condition of chattels to that of citizen soldiers. Mr. Railsback is now, August 7th, 1865, with his regiment at Chattanooga, Tenn. He is a native of Wayne county, and a son of Mr. Enoch Railsback, residing s s National Road, 2 miles w Richmond.

STIDHAM, JOSEPH S.—When the rebellion commenced, Mr. Stidham was Sheriff of Wayne county. Knowing that it was comparatively easy to execute the laws at home, he turned that duty over to other hands, that he might assist the government in asserting its authority in the rebel states. Having vacated the office of Sheriff, he recruited Co C, 57th Reg Ind Vol Inf, for three years, and was commissioned Captain of the same at its organization. Captain Stidham being a very powerful man, (and his benevolence was equal to his strength), consequently we find him assisting all who are debilitated by disease or the fatigue of marching, always carrying one and sometimes two or three knapsacks, while on the march, to relieve some weary soldier in the ranks, and sharing the hardships with the most humble of his men. He was engaged in the battles of Pittsburg Landing, Perryville and Stone River. In Jan., 1864, he re-enlisted with his company and regiment as a veteran, and was, not long after,

WEBB, SAMUEL D. enlisted in the 19th Ind Battery, at its organization, July, 1862, at Cambridge City, and was mustered into the service in the August following, being then under 19 years of age. A simple history of his career while in the service, is perhaps the most fitting commendation we could pay him. Within sixty days after its organization, the battery distinguished itself in the battle of Perryville, Ky., where young Webb was noticed by name, for his coolness and bravery, and for which he was promoted. At Hoover's Gap he received a wound, which compelled his absence from the field for a few weeks. With this exception, he was never absent a day from his post. Still suffering from his wound, he returned to the battery, and was present at the taking of Lookout Mountain and Mission Ridge. He bore a noble part in the brilliant campaign from Chattanooga to Atlanta, including the battles of Rocky Face Ridge, Resacca, Kenesaw Mountain, Chattahoochie River, Peach Tree Creek, siege of Atlanta and Savannah, Ga.; was also with Gen. Sherman in his memorable march through Georgia and the Carolinas. Young as he was—hardly yet of age—he had already risen, solely by good conduct and bravery, to the position of 1st Sr. Lieut. From Savannah northward he was in command of his battery; "now no longer the smooth-faced, light-hearted boy, but a cool, manly, ixflexible artillery officer, young in years indeed, but old in judgment and knowledge." He conducted his command successfully through the swamps and storms of tnat terrible march, and in connection with the 14th Army Corps under Gen. Jeff. C. Davis, entered that bitter contest on the 19th of March, at Bentonville, N. C., which saved our army, perhaps, but cost our country many a noble son. His battery was ordered into a position which another had been unable to hold. The fire of the enemy having greatly increased in severity, and there being no opportunity of working his guns to advantage, he rode to the Chief of Artillery, and asked permission to change his position. The request was denied. After holding his position for another hour, he again went personally to head-quarters and renewed his request, alledging that he was not supported by infantry on his left, and if a charge should be made by the rebels, it would be impossible to save his guns, the ground being so swampy. Still the request was denied, and, shortly after, a charge was made through the opening on his left, and two guns were captured, and he, while trying to save the others, was mortally wounded by a minnie ball passing through the lower part of the left lung. After receiving the wound, he was conveyed by two of his men to an ambulance and taken seven miles from the scene of conflict. He was wounded at 4 o'clock, P. M., and rested well during the night; but in the morning it was difficult for him to speak, and being very weak from loss of blood, yet was conscious at 9 o'clock, A. M., and recognized all who approached him, at which time he spoke the last words—

"How sweet every thing is—how happy all now—if I could only breathe."

The last sentence could not be distinctly understood. His remains were buried near the battle field by the officers and men of his command, with every mark of love and esteem—the grave carefully marked with head and foot-boards, giving his name and rank, and covered with green boughs. They were soon afterward disenterred by his father, and now repose in a tomb at Mt. Hope Cemetery, Rochester, N. Y. Lieut. Webb was born in Gennessee, Livingston Co., N.Y., May 20th, 1842, and at the time of his death, March 20th, 1865, was 22 years and 10 months of age, and was the son of Col. Dwight Webb, of Cambridge City. In his demeanor, especially in his official capacity, he was very unassuming, and his letters to those at home were remarkable for the absence of any allusion to himself, as the actor in those arduous and exciting scenes in which his conduct elicited the unqualified approbation of his superior officers. His moral character was unimpeachable, and his entire freedom from the immoralities so prevalent in camp-life, no less than his physical courage, made him conspicuous amongst the members of his command as worthy of imitation, and of which they frequently bore testimony, even before his death. Another, his superior in rank, attested that he never failed to read daily from the word of God. Said another, a prominent General who knew him well: "If you had seen him in the camp and field as I have, you would know how to appreciate him. He looked so much a boy, but bore himself so much a man. He spoke so kindly, so affectionately, so earnestly of his mother, that I did not wonder he was good—free from bad habits, and avoiding bad company. So far as I know, he commanded the respect of every one." These are some of the tributes to his memory; and while they impress us with a painful sense of the greatness of our loss, cause us justly to feel proud that so worthy an offering has been given to our country. For three long years, through weary marches and fiery conflicts, his life was spared, when a mysterious Providence summoned him away, just at the close of the terrible struggle, and when affectionate hearts, who had watched with so much pride and solicited his career of peril and honor, were awaiting to welcome him home. Still we can not forget, that in all that makes life honorable and worthy the name, he had lived to an age to which many, whose years may be counted by scores, have not attained; and in contemplating his short but memorable life, we are reminded of the truth so applicable to him, that,

"Virtue, not rolling suns,
The mind matures. That life is long,
Which answers life's greatest ends."

WILLIAMS, NATHAN S. enlisted in Co. B, 5th Reg Ind Vol Cav, for three years, Feb. 28th, 1864. The 5th Cavalry being the 90th regiment raised in the State, was organized in 1862; consequently, when Mr.

Williams enlisted it was as a new recruit under the order for filling up old regiments. When he joined the regiment it was in camp at Mt. Sterling, Ky. In May it was ordered to the front, joining the cavalry forces of the main army, under Gen. Stoneman at Dalton, Ga. Our forces soon overtook the rebels, retreating toward Resacca. While the two armies were near each other, Mr. W. saw a funeral procession that deserves notice. The corpse was that of a woman, and was in a coffin made of boards just as they came from the saw-mill, put together in the most bungling manner, and carried by four women, followed by five or six other females, with some small children—not a man to assist. About this time three hundred of the 5th, Mr. W. among them, were selected, furnished with the best of horses, and light equipments, to act as a body-guard to Gen. Stoneman. This body of men at the battle of Resacca, May 15th, resisted several charges from the rebels, and at a time when we were likely to be put to flight, held them in check, and finally turned the the tide of battle in our favor. He was also in a fight at Rome, on the 17th, and at the battle Kenesaw Mountain, June 27th, and Fisher's Cross-roads—a cavalry fight—July 4th. On the 31st of July, 600 of our men, including 350 of the 5th Cavalry, were taken prisoners near Macon, Ga. They were started at once toward Macon, but before reaching that place a halt was called, and they were robbed of all their money and clothing, except barely enough to cover their nakekness. This was done in violation of a special agreement made before surrendering. From Macon they were sent upon cars to Andersonville. The first thing after their arrival was to form them in line, and order every man to strip stark naked, when their clothing was ripped open in search of any money that might have escaped the first robbery. Many of them had photographs of loved ones at home; these were all stamped into the ground, and destroyed before their eyes. They were then crowded into an inclosure of sixteen acres, containing 33,000 of our men. A wide slough occupied the middle of this pen, in the lower end of which they were obliged to throw all the filth of the camp, and from the upper end dip all the water used. In order to prevent the men from going too far up in their efforts to obtain clean water, a dead line was established, and thirty dollars promised the guards for shooting any man who encroached upon it. Many were shot down without coming near it. In order to overcome the obstacles in the way of procuring pure water, the men took turns in digging with old pieces of canteens, broken shovels, and scraps of almost any metalic substance they could obtain. From these wells some of them dug tunnels to the outside, with a view to escape; but it did them little good, for they were nearly all either shot down, or caught by blood-hounds. To protect themselves against the heat by day, and the cold at night, many of them dug caves in the ground; and as they had nothing to brace up the roof, it would frequently fall in, crushing and smothering the inmates.

The rations in this prison, for months, consisted of one pint of meal, with cob, husks and all, ground together, and from one-fourth to one-half pound of spoiled meat per day. No provision whatever was made by the rebel authorities for cooking even this poor fare, so that their only chance was to make their meal into mush, in tin cups. Being provided with but a handfull of wood to the man, this they prepared by splitting it with their knives. With such fare, almost naked, and without beds or covering, it is very evident that they must sink down and become diseased; and to make the matter worse, when the surgeon was called, it was certain death. Mr. Williams remembers many cases in which the Surgeon had been called, and in three hours the patient would be dead. One of the rebel surgeons boasted, that he could kill more Yankees in there, than the whole of Hood's army could outside. During the time Mr. Williams was there the average number of deaths was one hundred per day, or three thousand per month, and this out of thirty thousand, makes one-tenth of the whole number each month. Trenches were dug seven feet wide and three feet deep; and as long as the rebels had charge of the burying, the corpses were laid on one side, and crowded together, so as to get the largest number possible in each trench. But when our own starved, and emaciated soldiers were caused to do the work, they dug the trenches sufficiently large to admit of their being laid on the back. In removing them from the prison-pen, they were thrown upon wagons, with standards at the sides of the bed, filling them up to the tops of the standards. Mr. Williams has seen wagons loaded in this way, and left standing all night at the graveyard. This would occur when there was an increased number of deaths, making it impossible for the burying force to remove them all the same day. The time at length arrived when Mr. Williams was to be relieved from further incarceration in this Golgotha. On the 10th of September, 1864, he, with 6000 others, were crowded into box cars, eighty to the car, and sent to Savannah. Oct. 12th they were removed from there to Millen, Georgia, another of the horrible prison-pens in which loyal and brave men were starved by these worse than heathen, for they have used the advantages gained by the arts of civilization to increase the torture of their victims.

On the approach of the grand army under Sherman, the rebels were in trouble to know where to take their prisoners. Ten thousand of them were taken to a place called Blackshear, and from there to Thomasville. At this place the prisoners were gladdened by hearing many of the citizens express a desire to come back under the old flag. From the time of leaving Andersonville, the fare and treatment of our men had been less severe; but to their horror, after being at Thomasville for a short time, they learned that orders had been given to return them to Andersonville, at which place they arrived on the 18th of December, to find the prison less crowded than when they left it, but still horrible. Mr. Williams' stay in Andersonville this time, was just three months. On the 18th of March, 1865, he, with about one thousand others, was started for Vicksburg, to be exchanged. When at Montgomery, Ala., on their route, a Union citizen distributed several hundreds of dollars rebel money among the prisoners, although ordered away by the guards. At Selma, Ala., the camp was under command of the Colonel of the 8th Alabama regiment. Mr. W. regrets that he has forgotten the name of this officer, for he was very kind to the prisoners, giving all the food they wanted, of the best he could furnish. He acknowledged that they were whipped, but hoped the Southern and Western States would hang together, and "leave New England out in the cold." On March 27th they arrived at Camp Parole, four miles below Vicksburg. This camp was guarded by rebels, but the prisoners were fed and clothed by our Government. The prisoners could have left the camp and come home at any time; but they had taken an oath before arriving at that camp, that they would not leave it until they were exchanged. When the news of the assassination of President Lincoln was received at this camp, the prisoners were so exasperated that the rebel guards concluded that they would be more safe at a greater distance, so they disappeared for a few days altogether, but returned in time to attend to the final exchange, which was effected a few days after when Mr. Wililams, with nineteen hundred and sixty-five others, was released, went to Vicksburg, and on April 24th were crowded on board the ill-fated steamer Sultana, with other soldiers and crew, numbering in all twenty-three hundred persons, all with high hopes of meeting loved ones at home. On the 27th of April, 1865, when in the middle of the Mississippi River, about seven miles above Memphis, all on board were startled by one of the most terriffic explosions on record. The boat had landed but a short distance below, and took on fuel, and it is not known whether the explosion was caused by the water in the boilers becoming exhausted, or by rebel torpedoes made to resemble lumps of coal mixed in with that previously taken on board. Mr. Williams speaks of the scene just after the explosion as indescribably awful. He was asleep at the time, and on awaking, found himself covered with the timbers of the deck above him, but fortunately was not disabled. Many sprang into the water from fright, and being incumbered with their clothes, and having nothing to support them, soon sunk to rise no more. Mr. Williams had presence of mind sufficient to remain on the wreck as long as possible. He first assisted in throwing overboard one of the gangway planks, but so many leaped upon it that it and they went down together. The other was thrown out and served in the same way. Every thing loose that would float was soon thrown overboard, followed by the passengers, many of whom were scalded, and burned, and bruised. After the decks were nearly cleared, Mr. Williams secured a piece of timber, divested himself of all his clothing, put the timber overboard, eased himself into the water by holding to the guards of the boat, and then swam for the Tennessee shore—being the nearest to that side—but when he arrived there, the bank was so steep and the current so swift that he was unable to land. He then turned to the Arkansas shore, and passed many persons in the water, some of them bewildered, and swimming against the stream, and occasionally one passing from sight beneath the waves. He finally reached the shore, and had strength to climb on some fallen timber, from which he was taken and carried to Memphis, and furnished with clothing, food, and lodging in the military hospital. Of the 2,300 who were on board the Sultana in the evening, upwards of 1,600 found watery graves before the next morning, or died soon after from scalds, bruises, and exhaustion.

After remaining a few days in hospital, Mr. Williams was placed on board the steamer Memphis, sent to Cairo, and from there by railroad to his home, arriving, May 5th, and was discharged on the 17th of June, by the general order discharging all soldiers whose time expires before Dec. 1, 1865. He is now a farmer, residing three miles n e Richmond, Wayne tp.

This account is given in detail, not because Mr. Williams has experienced so much more than others, but to serve as a specimen of what hundreds and thousands have suffered in suppressing the most inexcusable rebellion since the one headed by Lucifer, which terminated, as related by Milton, in the expulsion of himself and followers from Paradise.

WITT, WILLIAM B. was appointed 1st Assistant Surgeon to the 69th Reg Ind Vol Inf, Aug., 1862. In less than a week after uniting with that regiment, he endured all the hardships and mortification incident to the battle of Richmond, Ky., so disastrous to the Union forces. At this battle he was taken prisoner, and remained in the hands of the rebels about five weeks, when he was sent into our lines with an ambulance train of our sick and wounded. He was on the field of our repulse again at Chicasaw Bluffs, the last of December, 1862. He was also with the advance brigade in Gen. Grant's famous march around Vicksburg, and during the series of battles which resulted in the fall of that stronghold. He was one of the operating Surgeons for the 8th Division, 13th Army Corps. Soon after the fall of Vicksburg, the 69th was sent on what is known as the Teche River expedition. About the same time the regiment started on this expedition, Surgeon Witt was furloughed home, on account of failing health. He re-joined it in October following, at which time it was stationed at Indianola, Texas. On the morning of the 13th of March, 1864, they were ordered to fall back to Matagorda Island. On arriving at Saluria Bayou, which separated them from the island, the only transport provided was a rope ferry, constructed of three pontoon boats. The tide was running high, making it exceedingly perilous to cross on so frail a craft. Notwitstanding this, the engineer officers in charge persisted in loading the boat to its utmost capacity. Three crossings had been effected, when Surgeon Witt, with about 150 others, their equipage, and 3 horses, were placed on board, and when near the middle of the Bayou, which was about two hundred yards wide, they went down. Twenty-three of the 69th were drowned, Dr. Witt among them. His body was not found until seven days after the accident.

At the age of sixteen, Wm. B. Witt embraced Christianity, and soon after felt called upon to preach the gospel. His first labors were with the Rev. D. Stover, on Dublin Circuit, and afterwards on Kokoma Mission, and Hartsville Circuit.

Failing health made it necessary to suspend his ministerial labors, when he resumed the study of medicine, which he had commenced several years before. In the autumn of 1850, he removed to Cincinnati, where he completed his medical course. The pulpit of the United Brethren church in that city becoming vacant, he was called upon to fill it, until it could be supplied. He after that held the relation to the church of a local minister; and although preaching nearly as much as some who were regularly in the work, made the practice of medicine his principal business.

In 1854 he was appointed Professor of Surgery, and was filling the chair when called by the Board of Foreign Missions of his church to go to Africa. He had long felt it to be his duty to labor for the elevation of the African race, and now that the way was open, resigned all to enter upon its duties, and sailed for Africa in the fall of 1856. His labors there were destined to be of short duration. Failing health and inadequate supplies compelled him with a heavy heart to turn his back to the work he so much loved, and return to his native land, which he did in May, 1858. Being physically unable either to preach or practice his profession, he located in Dublin, the home of his youth. Regaining his health, he resumed the practice of medicine, which he continued until his appointment as 1st Assistant Surgeon of the 69th.

Res Milton.

WRIGHT, J. J. enlisted in the U. S. service for three years, Dec. 10th, 1863, at Camp Wayne, Richmond, and was detailed as acting Commissary Serg. for the camp, Jan. 1st, 1864; received a recruiting commission from the Adj-Gen. of the State, Feb. 5th; was elected Lieut. of part of a company, and commissioned as such, March 1st; promoted to Capt., March 11th, 1864; was assigned to the command of Co I, 124th Reg Ind Vol Inf, and was with the regiment in its march from Nashville to join Sherman's army, and continued his duties in this connection through the famous Atlanta campaign until June 25th, when he was prostrated by sunstroke while in the line of his duty, and sent insensible to the hospital, remaining there but one week, rejoining his regiment before he had sufficiently recovered to bear the fatiguing services of the field, which brought on a relapse in one week more, rendering him wholly unfit for duty. He was sent to the field hospital; thence to Chattanooga, and from there to Nashville, from which place he obtained leave of absence by order of Gen. Sherman, for twenty days, dated July 23d, 1864. When the twenty days expired, being unable to travel, upon the report of a Surgeon notice of his condition was sent to the proper officers. In eighteen days more he started to rejoin his regiment, but on his arrival at Louisville, Ky., was detained on account of the railroad to Nashville being out of repair. At this place he was detailed by authority of an order from Gen. Sherman and placed in charge of one thousand head of beef cattle, with horses, mules and other property sufficient to drive them to Nashville, Tenn. This was an extremely hazardous undertaking, the whole country between Louisville and Nashville being infested by guerrillas; but Capt. Wright succeeded in taking his charge safely through. He found it necessary, however, to remain there two weeks, to wait for the rebel raiders under Forrest and Wheeler to cease their operations. On the 14th of October he was ordered to start for Chattanooga with 1,200 head, arriving at that place, Nov. 29th. Owing to the uncertain movements of Sherman and Hood's armies, it was decided to hold all the beef cattle designed for Sherman's army at the post of Chattanooga. Of the 22,000 head accumulated there and to be subsisted for an indefinite period, Capt. Wright was ordered to hold and subsist in the vicinity, 2,400, until relieved by proper authority. In discharge of his duties thus imposed, it was necessary for him to purchase corn, pasturage, and any other supplies he could obtain during the time of the investment of Nashville by the rebel Hood, and his subsequent defeat and pursuit by Gen. Thomas. He was thus detained until the latter part of March, 1865, when he was ordered to turn over the property in charge to the officers designated to receive it, and prepare to join his regiment. Having complied with these instructions, he reported to the Chief Commissary of Subsistence of the Dept. of the Cumberland, who ordered him to report to him for duty in a few days at Nashville. April 25th, he was ordered to take 700 head of beef cattle from Nashville to Chattanooga, at which place he arrived, May 10th, turned over the property, was relieved by order of Gen. Thomas, and ordered to join his regiment, supposed at this time to be somewhere in North Carolina. The difficulties of traveling were such that it was necessary to go by a circuitous route of near two thousand miles to reach Charlotte, N. C., where he found the regiment, on the 12th of June, and to his surprise, learned that advantage had been taken of his detention, and the loss and absence of official information of his whereabouts during his detachment from his regiment; and by false representations made to the War Department, he had been dismissed from the service. He repaired at once to Washington, obtained permission to make his defense, was re-instated to his former position, and at his own request received an honorable discharge, dating June 12th, 1865. Mr. Wright entered the service from Richmond; present residence somewhat unsettled.

Son of and resides with Cyrus Wright, Wayne township.

WRIGHT, WILLIAM enlisted in Co I, 84th Reg Ind Vol Inf, for three years in August, 1862. The 84th was organized at Richmond, and on the 8th of September, was ordered to Covington, Ky., and from there to Point Pleasant and Guyandotte, W. Va.; thence to Cassville and Catlettsburg, Ky., arriving at the latter place February 9th, 1863. During all the marches and hardships of a winter campaign in the mountainous regions of West Virginia and Kentucky, William discharged his duty as a soldier faithfully, in addition to which he acted as clerk for his company. From Catlettsburg the regiment proceeded to Cincinnati, Louisville, and Nashville, arriving at the latter place, February 17th, 1863, and was at once assigned to the 2d Brigade, 3d Division, Army of Kentucky. On the 5th of March the regiment left Nashville for Franklin, and from there it went to Triune. On the 11th the rebels attacked our forces at this point, in repelling which a part of the 84th was engaged. On the 8th of June this regiment was transferred to the 1st Brigade, 1st Division, Reserve Corps, commanded by Gen. Granger. Left Triune, March 25th, for Middleton; thence to Shelbyville, Wartrace, Estell Springs, Tullahoma, Stevenson, Bridgeport, and Chattanooga, where they arrived on the 13th of September. At this time the rebels were marshaling their hosts with the intention of crushing our forces under Gen. Rosecrans, and on the 18th of September the 84th moved to the front, and participated in the desperate battle of Chicamauga, fought on the 19th and 20th. The 84th came out of this contest with the loss of one hundred and twenty-five men killed, wounded, and missing, but the subject of our sketch passed through it all unharmed, although he was often found in the front ranks with the bravest of the brave. In the re-organization that followed the battle of Chicamauga, the 84th was assigned to the 2d Brigade, 1st Division, Fourth Army Corps. The next battle of importance in which it was engaged, was that of Buzzard Roost, February 25th, 1864; then at Tunnel Hill and at Rocky Face Ridge, Ga. At the latter place William Wright was mortally wounded, May 9th, 1864, and died the next day. His body was buried on the battle-field, but about three weeks after was disinterred, brought home, and deposited in Maplewood Cemetery, east of Richmond, there to await the summons on the morning of the Resurrection.

Willie, as he is lovingly spoken of by his father, was the youngest of three brothers, who entered the army about the same time. He was a young man of unusual promise, and his natural abilities, polished and refined by education, bade fair to qualify him for any position in life. No more costly sacrifice has been laid upon the altar of our country than that given by the parents of Willie Wright. He was of that great multitude who died that our nation might live—that men might be free—and it must be a source of consolation to them to know that their sacrifice has not been in vain; that it is by this means our nation has been enabled to change four millions of human beings from chattels to free men and women, and that we have proved to ourselves, and to all other nations, that we have a government both able and willing to protect the weak and down-trodden who may come from any part of the world and place themselves under its protection.

B, enlisted Co C, 110th Reg O V I, for three years, Aug. 18th, 1862; was in the battle of Winchester, Va., June 13th, 1863, and was taken prisoner; sent to Libby prison; soon after removed to Belle Isle; was paroled July 7th, and in October following was exchanged and returned to his regiment; was in the battles of the Wilderness, Cold Harbor, Spottsylvania, and around Petersburg; returning to Maryland, was in the battle at Monocacy, at which he was wounded in the head. He was in seventeen regular engagements, and served until July, 1865, when he was discharged in consequence of the suppression of the rebellion. Went from Perry township.

Hastings, Ira C. In the "Soldiers' Register" it is erroneously stated that he resides with his parents near Dublin, when it should read that he resides with Abram Jones, Milton.

HUTTON, NOAH H. enlisted in Co C, 8th Reg Ind Vol Inf, for three years, Sept., 1862; served until Jan., 1863, when he was discharged on account of physical disability, and was afterwards employed to distribute Sanitary Stores. He went to Vicksburg, Miss., June, 1863, with Wayne county stores, and while acting in that capacity, was appointed by Gen. W. P. Benton as A. D. C. on his staff; served as such until after the battle of Jackson, Miss., in July, 1863, after which he was taken sick, and upon recovery went to New Orleans, and was there appointed by the Provost Marshal of Assumption Parish to superintend the building of schoolhouses for the education of the freedmen. He was thus engaged about three months, and at the end of that time returned home. Res with John H. Hutton, Richmond.

Meredith, D. M. was appointed 1st Lieut. by President Lincoln, May 14th, 1861, and was assigned to the 15th U. S. Inf; served in that capacity until May 27th, 1862, when he was promoted to Captain. The Regular Brigade, of which the 15th Infantry formed a part, belonged to the 14th Army Corps. That body of men it is well known, was commanded by Gen. Thomas, to whose skill and bravery the country is indebted for saving the army of the Cumberland from total destruction at the battle of Chicamauga. In that battle Captain Meredith was wounded, Sept. 19th, 1863. In Jan., 1864, he had sufficiently recovered from his wounds to report for duty, and was assigned to the postion of Mustering and Disbursing Officer, which position he held until the spring of 1865, when he reported to his regiment for duty, and is now, Sept., 1865, in command of his company at Mobile, Alabama. Son of Gen. S. Meredith, Cambridge City.

POTTS, O. G. volunteered in the Medical Corps of the U. S. Army after the battle of Nashville, and was assigned to duty at the Jefferson General Hospital, at Jeffersonville, Ind., where he served as Assistant Hospital Surgeon, until the following spring, when he resigned. Went from Camden, Ohio; now resides w s of Sixth, bet Walnut and Market streets, Richmond.

RAILSBACK, Rev. LYCURGUS It is erroneously stated that Mr. Railsback was in Lane Seminary at the commencement of the rebellion. It should read that he was at Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Ind.

STIDHAM, JOSEPH S. In the Soldiers' Register it is erroneously stated that Captain Stidham was killed at Atlanta. It should read that he was killed at Kenesaw Mountain.

THOMPSON, Rev. G. W. was commissioned Chaplain of the 147th Reg Ind Vol Inf, March, 1865, and was mustered out with the regiment in Aug., 1865. Previous to entering the army, Mr. Thompson was pastor of the Christain Church, in Richmond. He now resides in Union City, and preaches part of his time at Cambridge City and Jacksonburg.

NAMES OF SOLDIERS

OF

WAYNE COUNTY, INDIANA,

Who have been killed or died from wounds received in battle, or from casualties in the line of their duty, or from disease contracted while assisting to suppress the Great Rebellion.

To Our Patrons.

When we commenced the preparation of this work, Wayne County had many hundreds of soldiers facing the rebels. We went to their families or friends, to obtain such information as we desired to publish. In many instances it was imperfectly given; but we have done the best we could, and can not be expected to correct errors. However, since our armies have in a great measure been disbanded, and the work of death ceased, it is particularly desirable that we should have a complete roll of those who have died in their country's service. We therefore particularly request of every friend of the soldier to interest themselves in procuring the names of all whom they may know to have been killed or died, and whose names are not in the preceding list, and send them to us, if possible, before the first of January, 1866, when we will arrange them in alphabetical order, and have them printed on fine light paper, on sheets of a suitable size to come within this border, and send a copy to each subscriber, free of charge, that they may paste them over this article and thus be in possession of the roll complete. If you know of a name that has been omitted, write now.

A BRIEF SUMMARY

BATTLES FOUGHT

FOR THE

SUPPRESSION OF THE GREAT REBELLION.

On the 6th day of Nov., 1860, four political parties presented before the people their respective candidates for President and Vice-President. That party known as the Republican, supported Abraham Lincoln, of the State of Illinois, and Hannibal Hamlin, of Maine. These candidates having received the vote of 17 States, and out of 303 electoral votes cast 180 of the number, were acknowledged duly elected. Eleven states voted for Breckinridge, and three for Bell, while Douglas received the vote of Missouri, and 3-7ths of the vote of New Jersey.

On the 7th of November the telegraph having flashed the news of the result far and wide throughout the land, the intelligence was received at Charleston, S. C., with cheers for a Southern Confederacy; and the "Palmetto flag" was hoisted upon the vessels in the harbor.

On the 10th, the South Carolina legislature ordered the election of a convention to consider the question of secession. That convention met on the 17th of Dec., 1860, and was found to be composed of members holding to the secession heresy; and on the 20th, the secession ordinance was passed, the vote being quite unanimous.

Forts and arsenals were now seized, arms and ammunition taken possession of, and war-like preparations were rapidly made to sustain the principle which had thus been adopted as the basis of future operations in the southern states.

The moment having now arrived for the opening of the great drama of the rebellion, and forts Sumter and Pickens not having yielded as other fortifications had done to secession schemes, an attempt was made to bring them under rebel rule.

BOMBARDMENT OF SUMTER.

At 2 P. M. on the 11th day of April, 1861, a formal demand was made upon Maj. Anderson, commandant of Fort Sumter, by Gen. Beauregard, for the surrender of that fortification. The demand not being complied with at 4:30 A. M., April 12th, fire was opened upon the fort from Moultrie, continuing through the day, and was renewed on the 13th at 7 A. M. Being unable longer to hold out in the defense of the fort, the following terms of surrender were agreed upon, viz: That the garrison should take all its individual and company property; that they should march out with their side arms, in their own way, at their own time, and that they should salute their flag and take it with them—all of which was done.

The rebel forces engaged 7,000, the garrison amounting to only 80 men. "Nobody hurt."

BALTIMORE, MD.

On the 19th of April, while a portion of the 6th Mass. and 7th Penn. regiments were passing through Baltimore, on their way to Washington, they were attacked by a mob in the streets, with stones, brickbats, and other missiles, from which several were wounded. Shots were fired by the mob, and four soldiers were killed—two of the Massachusetts regiment, Ladd and Whitney, from Lowell, and two of the Pennsylvania, Needham and Taylor. These were the first victims in the fiendish plot to destroy our government. The soldiers becoming exasperated, at last returned the fire, killing eleven and wounding many more. On the 10th of May, Gen. Butler took possession of the city with a strong force.

ACQUIA CREEK, VIRGINIA.

The rebel batteries at this point, on the Potomac, fifty-five miles below Washington, were bombarded by the United States gunboats Freeborn and Pawnee, under Captain Ward, May 31st and June 1st, 1861. The fire was briskly returned, but with little damage. The rebel batteries suffered severely, and numbers of bodies were seen to be carried away in wagons. The railroad depot and buildings on the shore at Acquia Creek were destroyed.

PHILIPPI, VIRGINIA.

On the 3d of June three regiments of Gen.

Morris' command, under Colonel Dumont, marched from Grafton to Philippi, a distance of twenty-two miles, and attacked a rebel force under Gen. Porterfield, numbering about 2,500. The rebels were completely routed. Col. Kelly was shot through the lungs, and two privates killed. Rebel loss, 16 killed, and 10 wounded.

BIG BETHEL, VIRGINIA.

On the 10th of June three regiments, under Gen. Pierce, marched from Newport News to Big Bethel, and attacked a rebel force under Col. Magruder, numbering 1,800. After four hours hard fighting, the main forces retreated in good order. Union loss, all told, 100, among them Major Winthrop; that of the rebels, 18 killed and 41 wounded

BOONVILLE, MISSOURI.

On the 19th of June Gen. Lyon left Jefferson City, Mo., for Boonville. When about four miles below the town, he landed, and opened a heavy cannonade against the rebels, who retreated. Gen. Lyon ordered a return to the boats, which being mistaken by the rebels for a withdrawal, they rallied, and following our forces into a wheat-field, were drawn from cover. Gen. Lyon faced his troops, and opened a murderous fire upon them, and they were beaten and scattered in every direction. Rebel loss, 34 killed and 70 wounded. Union loss, 14 killed and 21 wounded. Forces engaged, 2,700 rebels, under Col. Marmaduke.

COLE CAMP, MISSOURI.

A battle took place at this point on the morning of June 19th, between a force of 800 Union guards, under Capt. Cook, and a large body of rebels from Warsaw and surrounding country. Union loss, 15 killed, 20 wounded, and 30 prisoners. Rebel loss, 40 killed.

FALLING WATERS, VIRGINIA.

July 2d the Union forces under Gen. Patterson, consisting of three regiments, attacked four regiments of rebel infantry and one of cavalry, under Gen. Jackson. The rebels were completely routed. Union loss, 2 killed and several wounded; rebel, 30 killed and 55 wounded.

CARTHAGE, MISSOURI.

A battle was fought at this place, July 5th. The rebels were commanded by Gov. Jackson; the Union forces by Col. Sigel. The national troops triumphed. Rebel loss, 300. Federal loss, 14 killed and 30 wounded.

MONROE STATION, MISSOURI

Col. Smith, with 600 of the Illinois Sixteenth, was attacked, July 10th, by the rebels under Brig. Gen. Harris, 1,000 strong. The rebels were driven back, with a loss of 4 killed, several wounded and prisoners.

LAUREL HILL, VIRGINIA.

July 10th, a skirmish between Federal troops under Gen. McClellan, and rebels under Gen. Pegram. The rebels were defeated and driven from their rifle-pits. Union loss, 1 killed and 3 wounded.

BEALINGTON, RANDOLPH CO., VA.

On the 8th of July a brilliant skirmish took place at this village, between a portion of the 9th Ind. and 14th Ohio regiments, and the Georgia 3d and portion of other rebel regiments. The rebels were routed, losing 20 killed and 45 wounded. Union loss, 10 killed and 42 wounded.

RICH MOUNTAIN, VIRGINIA.

July 11th, a battle was fought at Rich Mountain, Virginia—Union forces under Gen. McClellan, four regiments, and Col. Pegram with 2,000 rebels, well intrenched. The rebels were routed in disorder—60 killed and a large number wounded. Union loss, 20 killed and 40 wounded.

BEVERLY FORD, VIRGINIA.

July 12th, Col. Pegram surrendered unconditionally the rebel forces near Beverly, Va., to Gen. McClellan.

CARRACK'S FORD, VIRGINIA.

July 3d, General Robert S. Garnett, of the rebel army, was attacked while retreating from Laurel Hill, by Gen. Morris. A lively fight followed, when the rebels were completely routed, and Gen. Garnett was shot dead. A large amount of prisoners and equipments fell into Union hands.

BUNKER HILL, VIRGINIA.

July 15th, General Patterson's division, advancing on Winchester, had a skirmish with rebels under Col. Stuart, 600 strong. The rebels were routed, and pursued for two miles.

BULL RUN, VIRGINIA.

July 21st is well remembered as the day upon which was fought the battle of Bull Run, with such disastrous results to the national army. Gen. McDowell commanded the Union troops, and Gen. Beauregard the rebels. The battle commenced by the Union forces early on the morning of the Sabbath, and continued till late in the afternoon, when the national forces being repulsed, fled in wild confusion from the field, hotly pursued by the rebels. Jeff. Davis arrived upon the field at 4 o'clock, P. M., in time to see his cavalry, 1,500 strong, under Lieut.-Col. Stuart, on the heels of our flying troops. Gen. McDowell reported the loss in that engagement at 481 killed and 1,011 wounded, but says nothing of those wounded who fell into the hands of the rebels, which it has been ascertained was 1,216. Gen. Beauregard reports the rebel loss at 269 killed and 1,533 wounded. The numbers actually engaged on either side varies but little from 25,000, and enough in reserve to swell the number to 35,000.

This victory was gained by the timely arrival of some fresh rebel troops, at a moment when the national forces had actually triumphed. It is generally acknowledged that this was a well-fought battle, although the Union forces were so severely repulsed.

It will be observed that the attacking party suffered defeat in this, as in nearly every other instance during the war, where the attack was made on the Sabbath day.

DUG SPRING, MO.

Aug. 2nd, 1861, Gen. Lyon, with infantry and cavalry under his command, attacked a rebel force at Dug Spring, Mo., under McCullough, at 4 P. M. The rebels were scattered. Union loss, 9 killed and 30 wounded. Rebel loss, 40 killed and 44 wounded.

BULL RUN, VA.

Aug. 4th. About 5 o'clock A. M. a regiment of Connecticut volunteers, under Col. A. H. Terry, was precipitated into an engagement at Bull Run, meeting with a reverse. Loss, 16 killed and wounded.

WILSONS CREEK, MO.

Aug. 10th. A battle was fought at this point, Gen Lyon commanding 5,200 Federal troops, and Ben. McCullough with 24,000 rebels. During this engagement the brave Lyon was killed. After a desperate battle, the Union forces fell back in good order. Union loss, 800 killed and wounded. Rebel loss not known, but great; said to be 717 killed and 814 wounded; 42 missing.

CHARLESTON, MO.

On the 18th of August a battle took place at Charleston, Mo., federal forces numbering 250 under Col. Doughty, and rebel forces 600 or 700 under Col. Hunter, National forces victorious. Rebels lost 40 killed, 17 prisoners. Union loss, 1 killed.

HAWK'S NEST, VA.

On the 20th of August the rebels, 4,000 strong, attacked the 11th Ohio Infantry, but were driven back with a loss of 50 killed and a number wounded and prisoners. Federal loss, 2 slightly wounded and 1 missing.

HATTERAS EXPEDITION

Sailed Aug. 26th, and on the 29th, under command of Gen. Butler and Com. Stringham, captured forts Clark and Hatteras, at Hattaras Inlet, N. C., with the garrison of the latter. Rebel loss, killed and wounded, 105, prisoners 721; Union loss, none.

LEXINGTON, MISSOURI.

Aug. 29th a skirmish between 4,000 rebels under Colonel Reed, and 400 Home Guards under Major Brecker. The rebels were repulsed with 60 killed. Union loss, none.

CARNIFEX FERRY, VIRGINIA.

Sept. 10th a battle occurred at this point, Gen. Rosecrans commanding the Federal forces, 4,500 strong, and Gen. Floyd the rebels, 5,000 strong. The Union arms triumphed. Union loss, 15 killed and 70 wounded. Among the killed was Col. Lowe, of the 12th O. V. I.

BOONVILLE, MISSOURI.

On the 13th of Sept. a battle was fought at this place, Col. Brown commanding the rebels, and Capt. Eppstein the Home Guards. The latter were victorious. Loss, 1 killed and 4 wounded. Rebel loss, 12 killed and 30 wounded.

MARIATOWN, MISSOURI.

On the 17th of Sept. a fight took place here. Federals engaged 600, under command of Cols. Montgomery and Johnston, and 400 rebels. The latter routed with 7 killed. National loss, Col. Johnston and 12 privates killed, and 6 wounded.

BARBOURSVILLE, KENTUCKY.

Sept. 18th, a skirmish took place at this point, between the Home Guards, and Zollicofficer's men; 7 rebels killed, and 1 Home Guard wounded.

LEXINGTON, MO.

On the 20th of Sept. Col. Mulligan surrendered to the rebel Gen. Price, after fifty-nine hours hard fighting without water for his men. A quarter of a million of gold fell into the hands of the rebels. Union loss, 39 killed, 120 wounded.

GREENBRIER, VA.

Gen. J. Reynolds, at Cheat Mountain, on the 2d of Oct., 1861, was ordered to make a reconnoissance of the rebel camp at Greenbrier River, twelve miles distant. Accordingly, at midnight, with detachments of eight regiments, numbering five thousand four hundred men, the troops commenced their march, arriving in sight of the rebels at 7 o'clock the next morning, when a severe conflict took place, lasting two hours. When the object of the expedition was accomplished, and the ammunition being nearly expended, Gen. Reynolds retired to Cheat Mountain, with the loss of eight killed and thirty-two wounded. Confedrate loss, thirty-eight killed, seventy wounded, and eighteen prisoners.

CORINTH, MISS.

On the morning of the 3d of Oct., 1861, the rebels under the command of Van Dorn, Price and Villipigue, with their respective army corps, amounting to about fifty thousand, attacked the outposts of the Union force under Rosecrans, five miles from Corinth. A fierce and sanguinary battle was fought, continuing nearly the whole day, when darkness put an end to the conflict. The Unionists being the next day assailed by superior numbers, were obliged to fall back toward the town. The loss on this day was severe on both sides. At four A.M. of the 4th, the rebels opened on the town with shot and shell. The Union batteries replied with deadly effect. At six A. M., two of the rebel guns were disabled, and soon after their battery of seven guns was captured. At ten o'clock the rebels were largely re-enforced. The carnage at this time was terrific. The rebels soon began to waver, and finally left the ground, leaving most of their slain and wounded on the field, among whom were two general officers. Union loss, three hundred and seventy-eight killed, nine hundred and sixty wounded and missing. Confederate loss, killed, six hundred and thirty-two wounded, one thousand four hundred and fifty; prisoners, one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

FORT FILLMORE, NEW MEXICO.

Oct. 19th. This post was surrendered to the Texan rebels, after a short resistance. Cause of defeat, bad whisky.

BALL'S BLUFF, VA.

On the 21st of Oct. another terrible slaughter occurred at Harrison's Island or Ball's Bluff. Twenty-one hundred Union troops under Col. E. D. Baker, were ordered to support a reconnoisance under Gen. Stone. They were suddenly attacked by a body of five thousand rebels under Gen. Evans. Not being able to hold their position, they were driven back to the Potomac, and as no adequate means of crossing had been provided, they were either forced into it, or were slaughtered upon its banks. National loss, killed, one hundred and fifty; wounded, one hundred and fifty; prisoners, five hundred—one of the most disgraceful affairs of the whole war, and caused by the treachery of Gen. Stone. In this engagement the brave Col. Baker was killed.

FREDERICKTON, MO.

On the 21st of Oct. a large body of rebels under Jeff. Thompson were defeated here, by about two thousand Union troops under Col.'s Carlin, Ross and Baker, and Major's Plummer and Schofield. Maj. Gavitt and Capt. Hingham were killed. Col. Lowe and two hundred rebels were left on the field. Union loss, six killed and forty wounded.

CAMP WILD CAT, KY.

On the 21st of October Gen. Zollicoffer, with some 6,000 troops, was defeated at Camp Wild Cat, Ky., by 2,000 Union troops under Gen. Garrards. National loss, 4 killed and 21 wounded.

BELMONT, MO.

Nov. 7th. Gen.'s Grant and M'Clernand's forces landed at Belmont, Mo., and attacked the rebel fortifications. They were met by the rebel forces under Gen. Cheatham, whom they drove to and through the rebel camp; but Cheatham being re-enforced from Collumbus, Ky., the Unionist withdrew to their boats.

PORT ROYAL, S. C.

Nov. 7th. Com. Dupont achieved a victory over treason at this point, on the coast of S. C. The rebels were under the command of Com. Tatnal; 100 killed and 100 wounded. Union loss, 8 killed and 28 wounded.

DRAINSVILLE, VA.

On the 26th Nov., 1861, a slight skirmish took place between Col. Bayard's Penn. cavalry and about an equal number of the enemy, resulting in the retreat of the latter. A second conflict occurred on the 20th of Dec., between a brigade of Gen. McCall's division and the enemy. The battle lasted one hour. The enemy were defeated, losing in killed and wounded 94. Union loss 11 killed, 43 wounded.

ALLEGANY CAMP.

Dec. 13th. A severe engagement was fought to-day between Gen. Milroy commanding Union forces and Gen. Johnson of Georgia, rebel. Union loss 30; rebel over 200. This was a drawn battle.

MUMFORDSVILLE, KY.,

On Green river was the scene of a sharp action on the 17th Dec., 1861, between the Federals, comprising the 32nd Indiana volunteers, and a much larger force of the rebels, including a body of Texan rangers. The fight, for a short time, was of a desperate character. The Unionists resorted to their saber-bayonets, forcing a hand-to-hand combat upon the enemy. The Federals at length gained, and poured such a galling fire upon the rebels that they fled, leaving 60 of their number slain on the field, among which was the body of Colonel Taylor. Union loss, 13 killed, 24 wounded.

MILFORD, MO.

Dec. 18th. A rebel camp was surprised by Union forces under Col. J. C. Davis, at Milford, and 1,300 prisoners captured. Union loss, 2 killed and 8 wounded.

PAINTSVILLE, KENTUCKY.

January 10th a battle, resulting in a Union victory, was fought at this place. The Union forces were commanded by Col. Garfield, and the rebels, numbering 2,500, by Humphrey Marshall. Rebel loss, 60 killed, and 25 wounded and prisoners.

MILL SPRINGS, KENTUCKY.

A battle was fought at Mill Springs, January 19th. The national forces were commanded by Gen. George H. Thomas; the rebels by Gen. T. K. Zollicoffer. The rebels were defeated, their chief being among the slain. Union loss, 1 commissioned officer and 38 men slain, and 14 officers and 194 men wounded. Rebel loss, 200 killed, and a large number wounded and taken prisoners. The Federals had 3,500 men engaged; the rebels, 7,000. The victory was complete.

FORT HENRY, TENNESSEE.

On the 6th of February Fort Henry, commanded by Gen. Tighlman, was captured by the squadron of gunboats under Flag-officer Foote. Firing commenced at 12½ o'clock, A. M., and continued till 1¾, P. M. Union loss, 2 killed, and several wounded by steam. The rebels report but 5 killed, 8 wounded, and 8 prisoners. These were, with their commander and the fortifications, surrendered to the Union commander. The rebel forces about the fort, amounting to about 10,000, escaped.

ROANOKE ISLAND, N. C.

The battle of Roanoke Island was fought by the combined land and naval forces, under Gen. Burnside and Com. Goldsborough, February 8th. It resulted to the Union cause in the capture of 6 forts, 40 guns, 2,000 prisoners, and upwards of 3,000 small arms. Union loss, 35 killed and 200 wounded.

SPRINGFIELD, MISSOURI,

Was occupied by Union forces, Feb. 13th The rebel General Price evacuated the same morning, leaving over 600 of his sick uncared for. Such are the tender mercies of rebels.

FORT DONELSON.

Gen. Grant left Fort Henry on the 12th of Feb., 1862, with a Union force of 35,000 men, and 6 gunboats commanded by Comodore Foote. The fort was strongly built, and by the rebels considered impregnable. On the 14th, Com. Foote commenced the bombardment. On the 15th, the rebels sallied from their intrenchments in great numbers, but were driven back with great loss. This day's fighting was very destructive to both armies. The morning of the 16th, the fight was renewed with great vigor, when, at eight A. M., a flag of truce appeared from the rebels, and the garrison, with 14,500 men, unconditionally surrendered, with large amounts of ammunition and military stores. The rebels were commanded by Generals Pillow, Floyd, and Buckner. The two former, with 5,000 troops, escaped the night previous to the surrender. Federal loss, 305 killed, 948 wounded and missing. Rebel loss, 6·4 killed, 1 260 wounded, 14,500 prisoners.

BLOOMING GAP, WESTERN VA.

General Lander, on the 13th of Feb., 1862, surprised and dispersed a rebel force, the rebels loosing 14 killed, and 87 wounded and prisoners.

BOWLING GREEN, KENTUCKY.

This important point was taken possession of by the Union forces on the 15th of Feb., 1863, the rebels, 40,000 strong, having evacuated the town two days previous.

PEA RIDGE, ARKANSAS.

At this point a severe action was fought, and a brilliant victory gained by the Union forces, on the 6th, 7th, and 8th of March, 1862. The rebels, under Generals Van Dorn, Price, and McCullough, of 16,000 strong, attacked the Union forces under Generals Sigel and Curtis, of 14,500 men. The contest ceased at dark, but was resumed the next morning. Heavy skirmishing continued during the day. At sunrise on the 8th, the battle was renewed with great vigor, and for two hours the rebels maintained their ground when they fled in great disorder, leaving a large number of their slain and wounded on the field. Union loss, 212 killed, 926 wounded, and 178 missing.

MERRIMAC AND MONITOR.

This engagement—the first trial of the strength of iron-clad vessels—has excited great attention in both hemispheres. The Merrimac made her appearance in Hampton Roads on the 8th of March, 1862, and immediately attacked the small Union blockading fleet there stationed, and soon succeeded in sinking the ship of war Cumberland, and disabling and capturing the Congress. During the following night, the floating battery Monitor arrived from New York. In the morning the two "Iron Clads" commenced bombarding, several hours, when the Merrimac being considerably damaged returned to Norfolk. Union loss on both the Cumberland and Congress, in killed, wounded and missing, 243.

On the 12th of May the Merrimac was blown up, to prevent her being captured by the Federal forces.

NEW MADRID, MO.

On the 14th of March the rebels evacuated their works at New Madrid, Mo., leaving all their artillery, field batteries, mules, wagons, and an immense quantity of other property, to Gen. Pope of the federal forces. The national loss during the siege was 50 killed and wounded.

NEWBERN, N. C.

On the 14th of March a battle was fought between the combined land and naval forces under Gen. Burnside and Com. Goldsborough and a rebel force under Gen. Lawrence O'B. Branch, in which the national forces were victorious. Union loss 90 killed and 400 wounded. Rebel loss not known.

WINCHESTER, VA.

A battle was fought at Winchester, on the 23d of March. The victory over the rebels was complete. The Union forces were commanded by Gen. Banks, the rebels by Gen. Jackson. The federal force did not exceed 7,000, while the rebels had 10,000. Union loss, 103 killed, 441 wounded, 24 missing. The rebels lost 264 killed, 884 wounded and 340 prisoners, together with several cannon, 1,200 stand of small arms, and a large amount of provisions.

ISLAND NO. 10, MISS. RIVER.

On the 16th of March 21 vessels, under Com. Foote, arrived at Island No. 10. The rebels being entirely cut off from below, and after the garrison had been beseiged 22 days, terms of capitulation were agreed upon. There were surrendered three rebel generals, 5,500 troops, 120 cannon, and a large amount of army stores. Not a Union man hurt.

PITTSBURG LANDING, OR SHILOH.

On the 6th and 7th of April the battle of Pittsburg Landing, or Shiloh, Tenn., was fought between the Union army under Gen. Grant and the rebels under Gen. Beauregard. The former had 32,000 men and the latter 44,000. The rebels made the attack on Sabbath morning the 6th, at 1 o'clock P. M. Both sides were fully engaged, and the most terrific fighting prevailed. The first day's fighting resulted favorably to the rebels; but on the morning of the 7th Gen. Grant was re-enforced, and the rebels were every-where repulsed and beaten. The Union loss, including those captured with Prentiss, as per official report, was 1,739 killed, 7,882 wounded and 4,044 missing. The rebel general, Albert Sydney Johnson was killed.

FORT PULASKI, GEORGIA.

This fort was surrendered to the national arms, April 11th. The bombardment commenced on the 10th, under Brig.-General Gilmore. The fortification was commanded by Col. Olmstead. The surrender was made at 18 minutes past 2 P. M, the 11th. Union loss, 1 killed and 1 wounded. Rebel loss, 3 wounded and 385 prisoners.

SOUTH MILLS, NORTH CAROLINA.

This severe skirmish took place on the 18th of April, between the division under command of General Reno, and a large force of the rebels. The confederates were repulsed with great loss. Federal loss, 14 killed and 96 wounded. In obedience to orders, General Reno soon returned to his fleet, and embarked his men.

FORTS JACKSON AND ST. PHILIP.

These fortifications on the Mississippi River, below New Orleans, were bombarded, April 18th, by the national fleet, under command of Com. Farragut. The bombardment continued six days, and on the seventh, the 24th, the fleet passed by the forts to attack New Orleans. On the 8th day of May the city and forts below surrendered to the national arms. Federal loss, 36 killed and 123 wounded.

FORT MACON, NORTH CAROLINA.

After a bombardment of nearly two days, this fort surrendered to the Union forces on the 25th of April. A large amount of military stores, and 20,000 lbs. of powder were captured.

NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

On the 23d of April, Nashville, Tenn., was formally surrendered to the federals under command of Generals Buell and Nelson. All the heavy guns, and large quantities of ammunition and camp equipage were left.

YORKTOWN, VIRGINIA.

The attack was opened on the 5th of April, under the direction of General McClellan, while for nearly a month both armies were engaged in strenthening their works, and occasional skirmishing. McClellan prepared for storming the place on the 4th of May, but on the previous night the rebels evacuated the town, leaving 65 cannon and a large amount of military stores.

WILLIAMSBURG, VIRGINIA.

A severe battle was fought here on the 5th of May, between the divisions of Generals Sickles and Hooker and Hancock's brigades, and a large rebel force. The conflict raged from 5 A. M. until 3 P. M., when General McClellan arrived with fresh troops, and at 5 P. M. the rebels rapidly retreated, leaving 700 of their slain on the field. A large amount of ammunition and stores was captured. Federal loss, 280 killed, 650 wounded; rebel loss in killed and wounded, 1,260, and 420 prisoners.

WEST POINT, VIRGINIA.

On the 6th of May a severe battle was fought here, between Generals Franklin and Sedgwick, and the rebels under General Lee. It lasted six hours, resulting in the retreat of the enemy. Union loss, 38 killed, 122 wounded; rebel loss, 69 killed, 216 wounded.

PENSACOLA, FLORIDA.

This place was evacuated by the rebels, May 9th, they setting fire to forts, navy-yard, barracks, and marine hospital.

NORFOLK, VIRGINIA.

On the 10th of May this city was surrendered to General Wool, commanding 5,000 men.

NATCHEZ, MISSISSIPPI.

This city, on the Miss. river, surrendered on the 13th of May, to the Union forces under command of Flag Officer Farragut.

LEWISBURG, VIRGINIA.

A battle was fought here, May 23d, Colonel Heath commanding the rebels, and Col. Crook the Union forces. Col. Heath attacked the latter with 3,000 Inf. and Cav., and 6 cannons. The rebels were routed. Thirty-eight are known to have been killed, while other dead are supposed to have been removed, and 66 wounded. Union loss, 14 killed, 60 wounded, and 5 pickets captured.

WINCHESTER, VIRGINIA.

May 25th General Banks, with about 4,000 men, was attacked at Winchester, and compelled to retreat before a force of 15,000 rebels under Jackson and Ewell.

FAIR OAKS, OR SEVEN PINES, VA.

On the 30th of May, General Casey, with 5,500 Union troops, was ordered to cross the Chicahominy. On the following day a terrible storm prevailed, greatly swelling the river, so as to materially interfere with the crossing of the remaining troops. The rebels taking advantage of this, threw a large force upon him, and well nigh crushed his little army. At this moment Generals Kearny and Heintzelman, with Generals Sedgwick and Richardson's division, having succeeded in effecting a crossing by the most daring bravery, came to the relief of General Casey, and the rebels were soon checked, and compelled to retreat, losing more ground than they had gained. On the 1st of June the Union forces were again attacked, but after about an hour's hard fighting, retreated with great slaughter. There were about 12,000 Union troops engaged, and a loss was sustained of 890 killed, 3,627 wounded, 1,222 missing. Rebel loss, 940 killed, and 5,220 wounded.

FORT PILLOW,

Known also as Fort Wright, 55 miles above Memphis, was evacuated by the rebels on the 31st of May, 1862, after a bombardment of several days by the federal gunboats. Eight of the rebel boats were in the action, which took place near the fort, three of which were blown up and sunk.

MEMPHIS, TENN.

On the 6th of June Memphis, Tenn., was surrendered to flag officer commanding pro. tem., C H. Davis, of the U. S., and was formally taken possession of in the name of the government by Col. G. N. Fitch, commanding Indiana brigade.

CROSS KEYS, VA.

As the rebels under Gen. Jackson were retreating from the Potomac to Port Republic on the Shenandoah, they were overtaken, on the 5th June, 1862, by the Union troops under Gen. Freemont, who obtained a complete victory over the rebels. Federal loss, 94 killed, 464 wounded. About 450 of the enemy's slain were left on the battle field.

FORT CHARLES, ARK.

A gunboat expedition, under Col. Fitch, was sent up the White River. It left Memphis on the 17th of June, and on the 18th arrived at Fort Charles, eighty-five miles from the mouth of the river. After a severe bombardment of twelve hours, the fort was taken, with a large amount of property. A shot penetrated the boiler of the Union gunboat, Mound City, killing and disabling a large number of her crew. Union loss, 41 killed, 64 wounded; rebel loss, 81 killed, 124 wounded.

SECESSIONVILLE, S. C.

June 16th, a battle was fought at Secessionville, S. C., resulting in the defeat of the national forces.

RICHMOND, VA.

On the 25th of June Gen. Hooker, under command of Gen. G. B. McClellan, made an advance in the vicinity of Chicahominy, with a view to the occupation of a new position. He was resisted by the rebels, and after seven hours of hard fighting, the enemy retreated, leaving the Unionists in possession of the new position desired. In this engagement, about 200 Union soldiers were killed and wounded. The rebel loss was heavy. This proved to be the first of a number of conflicts fought in the vicinity of Richmond, which finally resulted in the retreat of the Union army under McClellan. The fight commenced on the 25th and continued until the 29th, when the federals fell back, but made a stand at Savage Station, where they were again compelled to seek safety in a retreat, leaving many of the sick and wounded on the field. On the 31st, the remaining portion of the army succeeded in crossing the White Oak Swamp, and were there attacked again, but at night the rebels fell back. On the 1st day of July the main body of the army reached the banks of the James River, completely exhausted by six day's hard fighting. A part of the army which had intrenched itself on Malvern Hill, were attacked by an overwhelming force of rebels. The contest continued to rage until night set in and closed the work of death. The firing from the gunboats now caused the rebels to retreat, leaving in our hands a number of pieces of artillery, and 2,000 prisoners. The details of these six days of battle are perfectly horrible. They can not be imagined, much less described by the historian. Gen. McClellan succeeded in intrenching himself safely on the James River, on the 2nd day of July, to which point he brought his cannon and army stores. Loss of the Union forces in killed wounded and missing, 12,500; that of the rebels 35,000. The news of this disaster to this great and noble army, filled the land with sorrow, leading thoughtful men to inquire into the cause of such repeated reverses to the Army of the Potomac, and seek for a remedy. It is probable that much generalship was displayed in bringing off the cannon and army stores, but the country could have appreciated it better, had it been a littte sooner developed. It may have been a masterly retreat. It was certainly a terrible repulse; perhaps a rout.

BATON ROUGE, LA.

On the morning of the 5th of Aug., 1862, the rebels, 6,000 strong, under Gen. Breckinridge, attacked the federal force of about 1,800 men, under Gen. Williams. The battle raged for five hours, when the rebels retired in confusion, leaving their slain on the field. Gen. Williams was killed in the conflict. Federal loss, 88 killed, 248 wounded and missing; rebel loss, 186 killed, 490 wounded. On the next day the rebel ram Arkansas was destroyed, after a severe contest with the national gunboats, near Baton Rouge.

WASHINGTON, N. C.

The rebels, 1,200 strong, attacked this town on the 6th of Aug., 1862, and after a desperate fight of two hours were repulsed, and pursued seven miles. Union loss, seven killed and forty-seven wounded; rebel loss, twenty-eight killed, wounded not known, and thirty-six prisoners taken.

CEDAR MOUNTAIN, VA.

This severe battle was fought Aug. 9th, 1862, and from official reports, it appears that the rebels, under Stonewall Jackson and Gen. Ewell, with their advanced guard of 15,000 strong, had crossed the Rapidan early in the morning, after two hours' skirmishing with four of the Union regiments. Gen. Banks attacked the rebels, and held them in check until half-past seven P. M., when Gen. Pope arrived with large re-enforcements, and the action raged furiously until nine P. M., when the rebels retreated, leaving their killed and wounded on the field. Generals Banks, Sigel, McDowell, Gordon, Augur, Crawford, Prince, Green and Geary, greatly distinguished themselves during the entire contest. Union loss, killed and wounded, 1,310, and 290 taken prisoners; rebel loss in killed and wounded, 2,800, and 455 prisoners.

VICKSBURG, MISS.

The Union flotilla, consisting of the rams Switzerland, Monarch, Sampson and Lioness, with the gunboats Benton, Mound City and General Bragg, under the command of Capt. Phelps, and three regiments of land forces, left Helena, Ark., on the 16th of Aug., 1862, for a cruise. On the 18th, it captured a steamer with 5,500 stand of arms, ammunition and army stores. On the 17th a part of the fleet proceeded up the Yazoo River as far as Hazen's Bluff, and captured several of the rebel batteries, together with several cannon and a large amount of military stores.

RICHMOND, KY.

Three battles were fought at Richmond, Ky., on the 30th day of August. The main force was under Gen. Manson, and a much larger force of rebels, under Gen. Kirby Smith. The nationals were defeated on each occasion. The Unionists fought the third battle under Gen. Nelson, but with similar success. The Union troops did not exceed over 6,000. The rebel loss was about 250 in killed; wounded about 500.

CENTERVILLE, VA.

On the 28th of August, a fight took place near Centerville, Va. The Union forces were commanded by Generals Sigel and McDowell; the rebels, by Jackson, who was driven at all points, with the loss of a large number of prisoners. On the 29th, the fight was renewed under Gen. Pope, in the vicinity of Bull Run, and two divisions of rebels under Jackson and Longstreet. The engagement lasted all day. The rebels were driven from the field with great loss. The battle was again renewed on the 30th, and Gen. Pope, after a hard fought engagement, was obliged to retreat to Centerville. Approximate losses to the federal forces show 92 officers, 1,891 non-commissioned officers and privates; after which, was the disheartening effects of another defeat.

GAINESVILLE, GROVETON, SECOND BULL RUN.

Dowell, Schenk, Kearney, Milroy, Sigel, Schurz, Sumner, Reno, Stevens, Banks, Hooker, Heintzelman, Stahl, Reynolds, Franklin, Fitz John Porter, and others, as corps and division commanders, and the rebel army under General R. E. Lee, with Generals Longstreet, Stonewall Jackson, Ewell, Trimble, Taliferro, Fields, Jenkins, Mahone, A. P. Hill and others, as corps and division commanders. They commenced on the 28th of August with the battle of Centerville just described, and ended with that of Chantilly, September 1st. During that time what is popularly known as the battles of Gainsville, Groveton and Second Bull Run were fought. General Pope had just taken command of the army, and expected to do but little more that to withdraw our force from the perilous position in which General McClellan had by his blundering and half-hearted loyalty placed them. The rebels knowing the condition of our army, brought on these engagements, hoping to crush it before it could be withdrawn. General Pope succeeded in his object, not, however, without the loss of many thousands of lives on both sides. and to the Union cause of some of its most brave and accomplished officers, among them Generals Reno, Stevens and Kearney. The treachery of Fitz John Porter, and one or two other division commanders, in withdrawing the forces under their commands, gave no little assistance to the rebels.

CHANTILLY, VIRGINIA.

Another battle was fought here, September 1st, being one of the series begun at Centerville on the 28th of August. General Pope had command of the Union forces, and Generals Jackson, Ewell, and Hill the rebels. The battle continued for an hour, the rebels being driven back with great loss.

MORGANFIELD, KENTUCKY.

SLAUGHTERVILLE, KENTUCKY.

A skirmish took place here September 2d. The Union forces were commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Foster. The rebels were defeated with a loss of 3 killed, 2 wounded, and 25 prisoners.

MARTINSBURG, VIRGINIA.

On the 6th of September the Union forces under General Julius White defeated the rebels with the loss of 50 prisoners, horses, and arms. Union loss, 2 killed, 10 wounded.

FREDERICK CITY, MARYLAND,

Was occupied by rebel forces under General Lee, September 6th, and was evacuated September 10th.

WASHINGTON, NORTH CAROLINA.

This place was attacked, September 6th, by the rebels, who were repulsed with 30 killed, 36 prisoners. The gunboat Pickens exploded her magazine, killing and wounding 18 Union soldiers.

FAYETTEVILLE, VIRGINIA.

A battle was fought here September 11th. Union forces under Col. Siber, numbering 1,000; rebels under Gen. Loring, 5,000 strong. The Unionists were defeated with a loss of over 100 killed and wounded.

SHIRLY'S FORD, MO.

On the 2d of Sept., Col. Ritchie with his 3d Ind. fought 600 rebel Indians, resulting in the rout of the latter, with a loss of 60 or 70 killed and wounded.

WINCHESTER, VIRGINIA.

This place was taken possession of by the rebels under Col. Rosser, September 11th.

SIEGE OF CINCINNATI, OHIO.

The rebel army, General Kirby Smith commanding, reached Latona, Ky., seven miles from Cincinnati, September 11th. On the 12th he retreated from before the city.

FREDERICK CITY, MARYLAND.

A slight skirmish took place at this city, September 12th, several being killed and wounded on both sides. The Union army under General Burnside, took possession of the city.

HARPER'S FERRY, MARYLAND.

This position was attacked by the rebels on the 12th of September. The Union forces were commanded by Colonel Miles, and the rebels by General Jackson. The Union forces were about 14,000 strong. After four days' fighting, the post was surrendered by Colonel Miles.

SOUTH MOUNTAIN, MARYLAND.

The battle known as the battle of "South Mountain," was fought September 14th, General Hooker commanding the Union forces, and General Lee those of the rebels. They were defeated. Union loss, over 2,000 killed, wounded and missing. The rebels acknowledge even a greater loss upon their part.

MUMFORDSVILLE, KENTUCKY.

On the 14th of September a battle was fought here. The Unionists were commanded by Colonel Wilder, having one regiment. A large body of rebels under command of General Duncan. The rebels were defeated with considerable loss.

ANTIETAM, MARYLAND.

On Wednesday, September 17th, 1862, the great battle of Antietam was fought between the Union army under General McClellan, with Hooker, Mansfield, King, Burnside, Sumner, Franklin, Porter, Rickets, Mead, Sedwick, French, Meagher, Banks, and Caldwell, and the united rebel forces, commanded by General Lee, with Jackson, Hill, and others. The rebels under Jackson, recrossed the Potomac, and joined the main body under General Lee. The combined Union forces followed rapidly, and came up with them on the evening of the 16th, strongly posted on Antietam Creek. Both armies were ready for the battle, which was commenced at five A. M., on the 17th. All the available forces on each side, with their ablest generals, were on the field. The contest began on the right, by Hooker's division, where, after forty minutes' hard fighting, the rebels bagan to retreat. Soon, however, large bodies came to their aid, and they partially recovered their original position. At this critical period, the gallant Hooker was severely wounded, and the command devolved on General Rickets. At this time, eleven A. M., the battle raged with great fury along the whole extended line. On the right, our forces began to waver, when Generals Franklin, Sumner, and Meagher, arrived with fresh troops, and by a most spirited bayonet charge, drove back the rebels with great loss, and by holding the ground, virtually won the battle on the right. At one P. M., General Mansfield, who had been sent early in the action, to the support of General Hooker, while leading his men to the attack, was mortally wounded. On the left, General Burnside's division had for hours been engaged in a desperate struggle. If overcoming the greatest obstacles constitute the post of honor on a field of battle, General Burnside may justly claim to have had that post in this great struggle. He had to cross Antietam creek in order to reach the rebels. This was spanned by a stone bridge, which was strongly defended by artillery and infantry. The first and second attempts to take the bridge, were repulsed with heavy loss. He determined to make another desperate effort, commanding the assault in person. It was two P. M., when the bridge was stormed by a brilliant charge, in which the 11th Ohio and 11th Connecticut participated. The Union troops, after passing the bridge, attacked the rebels with renewed energy, causing them to fall back to the batteries on the hills beyond. No sooner was the summit of the hill reached, than a heavy battery opened upon the Union troops with deadly effect. To stand still at this moment, would be certain destruction, and then came the dreadful alternative to retreat or carry these batteries. It was now four o'clock when a courier arrived from McClellan to Burnside, to "carry the batteries at all hazzards." By a desperate charge, the one nearest to him was carried. From another battery, higher up the hill, our troops stood a severe cannonade. At this time the rebels hurled immense bodies of troops against Burnside's division, forcing him to retreat toward the bridge. In view of the immense force brought against him, Burnside sent to McClellan for re-enforcements, saying, "that without them he could not hold his position for half an hour." No aid could be spared. McClellan replied that he must hold his ground till night at any cost, or, at all events, he must defend the bridge to the last man; if that was lost, all was lost. Burnside did hold the bridge, and the day was won.

Dec. 3d a series of skirmishes under Col. Hatchie, of the Union troops, and a considerable number of rebel troops. The rebels were defeated with a loss of 20 wounded, and 92 prisoners.

COFFEEVILLE, MISSISSIPPI.

On the 5th of December a fight took place here, between a force of Union cavalry, numbering 2,000, under Colonels Dickey and Lee, and a body of 5,000 rebels, resulting after a hard fight, in the retreat of the Unionists, with a loss of 100 men killed, wounded, and missing.

FAYETTEVILLE, ARKANSAS.

On the 7th of December a battle was fought at this place, the Union force being under Generals Blunt and Herron, and the rebels under Hindman, Marmaduke, Parsons, and Rains. The rebels were defeated. Union loss, 439 killed, 563 wounded; rebel loss, 624 killed and 2,426 wounded.

FREDERICKSBURG, VIRGINIA.

On the 13th day of December the great battle of Fredericksburg was fought. The Union army was commanded by General Burnside; the rebels by General Lee. The contest was a stubbornly fought one upon both sides, but finally resulted in the defeat of the Union forces. On the 11th, at 2 A. M., one hundred and seventy-six guns opened upon the city. At 8 A. M. the firing ceased, when two companies of Michigan volunteers proposed to go across the river. Others soon followed, and presently the city was taken possession of by the Union army. The rebels were driven into their intrenchments back of the city. In this movement the Union loss was about 100 killed, wounded, and missing. The great battle commenced on Saturday, December 13th, by General Reynolds' corps. An attempt was made to storm the rebel intrenchments, but the storming party was driven back. Another attempt was made with like success, but the firing continued till after dark. General Franklin's corps were more successful, having driven the rebels with heavy loss. At one time 450 prisoners were taken. The darkness put an end to the bloody work, and closed one of the severest struggles of the war, proving that the Union forces were superior to the rebels under equal circumstances. On the 14th, the Sabbath, comparative quiet prevailed, which was improved by removing the dead and wounded. On Monday a council determined that it was best to re-cross the river. The rebels did not discover the movement until too late to do the Union army any injury. Union loss, 1,152 killed, in hospital wounded, 4,000; prisoners, 700. Rebel loss, 2,266 killed, 4,618 wounded. On the morning of the 17th the rebels re-occupied the city. The entire responsibility of that failure, General Burnside assumes himself. He says: "From the fact that I decided to move from Warrenton on this line, against the opinion of the President, Secretary of War, and General Halleck, makes me only responsible."

KINSTON, NORTH CAROLINA.

On the 14th of December a battle was fought at this point by the expeditionary forces under General Foster, and a strong body of rebels under General Evans, resulting in the retreat of the rebels, and capture and occupation of the town by the Unionists. The rebels lost a battery of field pieces and four hundred prisoners.

STONE RIVER OR MURFREESBORO, TENN.

On the 31st of December, and the 1st and 2nd of January, 1863, was fought the battle of Stone River, or Murfreesboro, Tenn., Gen. Rosecrans commanding the Union army and Gen. Bragg the rebels. The fight opened early in the morning of the 31st, and after a most desperate conflict, which lasted ten hours, both armies ceased firing. There was but little fighting done on the 1st, but on the 2nd the battle was re-opened and continued through the day, with desperate fighting, resulting in the retreat of the rebels with great slaughter. The battle was fought on the Union side with 43,000 men—1,533 killed and 7,245 wounded. The rebel force was not less than 62,000. Rebel loss 2,480 killed, 7,600 wounded. This will be written by the historian as one of the most desparate and bloody contests of the whole war, as also one of the most decisive to the cause of the Union. The bravery and persevering obstinacy of the Union troops, is spoken of with great praise by the federal officers.

SPRINGFIELD, MO.

On the 8th of January a fight took place between the Unionists and rebels at this point; Union forces under Gen. Brown, and the rebels under Gen. Marmaduke. The rebels were forced to retreat.

CHANCELLORSVILLE, VA.

The battle of Chancellorsville, or the first battle of the Wilderness was fought, commencing on the 2d day of May—Gen. Hooker the Union commander, and Gen. Lee rebel. On the 30th of April, our army was in possession of Chancellorsville. A skirmish was fought with some loss on both sides, May 1st. On the 2d the battle was fairly begun and the fortunes of the day were against Gen Hooker. Early Saturday night a charge was made against the Union troops, which was repulsed with great slaughter to the rebels. At midnight a second attack was made upon the Unionists, with like success. At daylight on Sabbath the battle was renewed and continued till 3 o'clock P. M., when the rebels retired from the field. On Monday there was a renewal of the fight, with no material advantage on either side, but considerable loss to both. Tuesday was principally occupied in burying the dead and caring for the living and wounded. Heavy rains had raised the river, so as soon to prevent supplies from coming in. Not hearing of Stoneman's success in cutting off the rebel communications, Gen. Hooker prudently concluded to withdraw across the river, which he did on the same night. One half hour later in commencing his re-crossing, and all his troops could not have crossed. Union loss in killed, wounded and missing, 8,500; rebels 18,000.

PORT HUDSON, MISSISSIPPI.

Port Hudson was bombarded and its batteries silenced, May 9th and 10th.

GREASY CREEK, KENTUCKY.

GETTYSBURG, PA.

The hills around the town of Gettysburg, Pa., gained historic renown by the battle which was fought upon and around them, July 1st, 2d and 3d, 1863. These battles will long be remembered by the people of the nation. For some days previons, small engagements had taken place as the army of the rebellion was concentrating at this point under Gen. Lee, being hotly pursued by the national forces now under command of Gen. Meade. On Wednesday, July 1st, the first day of the battle, a part of the Union army under Gen. Reynolds attacked a much larger force of rebels, driving them back, and capturing 600 priseners. A general engagement took place at 12 M., lasting four hours, resulting in great loss on both sides. The battle was renewed at 8, lasting one hour, with little advantage to either side. July 2d Gettysburg was occupied by the rebels in force, but no engagement took place till dark, when the enemy's column staggered and finally fell back in confusion, leaving their dead and wounded upon the field. They rallied and were repulsed again, but only left the field at 10 o'clock. Friday, July 3d, the third day's fight was crowned with a glorious victory. "The previous night the two great armies had rested near each other, and doubtless each thought that the final trial would be made the next day. The battle began at 4 A. M., by Gen. Slocum opening a heavy fire upon Ewell's corps. This engagement was regarded by the oldest officers in the army, as the most obstinate and deadly of the whole war thus far. For six hours the national troops, stood, while Jackson's, then Ewell's troops, hurled their deadly missiles against them. At 11 o'clock A. M. the rebels retired, and there was a perfect lull till 2 P. M., when an advance was made by Longstreet in solid mass. It proved to be the last attempt of the rebels to overcome the Union troops, and was truly sublime in bravery and daring. The contest continued till 5 P. M. Longstreet's forces were nearly exterminated, and the rebels were driven from the field, leaving the national troops triumphant amid slaughter and death. Gen Lee commenced his retreat the same night, keeping his army as close together as possible. He crossed the Potamac on the night of the 13th, amidst a terrible storm." The loss, per official reports, left on the field and in our hands, 10,000 slightly wounded, 4,000 removed by the rebels, killed on the field and buried by our forces 3,500, taken prisoners 12,000, deserters and stragglers, 4,000—total 35,000. Union loss, killed 5,600, wounded 8,200, missing 1,800—total 15,600. Thus ended the second attempt of the rebel chief to establish himself upon free soil. The Union General and brave officer, Reynolds, was killed on the first day of the battle.

VICKSBURG

Was surrendered to the U. S. forces under Gen. Grant, July 4th, 1863. The seige commenced on the 18th day of May. Gen. Grant, step by step, drove the rebels into their intrenchments and dens, until the last hope of ultimate success faded from their minds. Then Gen. Pemberton surrendered to Gen. Grant. The campaign which resulted so gloriously for the Union cause lasted 64 days, during which the rebel loss was in killed 6,500, prisoners 37,000, munitions of war, 70,000 stand of small arms, 128 cannon, 200 freight cars, locomotives, &c.; in all $15,000,000 worth of property. This was the last stronghold of the rebels on the Mississippi, and it now passed from their grasp.

HELENA, ARK.

A battle was fought here, July 4th, between Union forces under Maj. Gen. B. M. Prentiss, and the rebels under Gen. Marmaduke, Price and Holmes. The rebels were repulsed, with a loss of 400 killed and 1,100 wounded. Union loss 134.

BOLTON, MISS.

On the 5th of July a battle was fought at this point between the Unionists under Gen. Sherman and the rear guard of the rebels under Gen. Joe Johnston, in which Johnston surrendered his whole force of 2,000 men.

THE MORGAN RAID INTO OHIO AND INDIANA.

The fortunes of the rebels becoming desperate, the great Morgan raid was resolved upon by their leaders in the summer of 1863. After a hasty passage through Kentucky, meeting but little opposition, John Morgan, at the head of about 5,500 cavalry, crossed the Ohio river at Brandenburg on the 9th of July. During the crossing, a fight took place between a party of Leavenworth Home Guards and Morgan's men, without any serious obstructions to the rebels. On the same day they reached Corydon, Indiana, and plundered the town. On the 10th Salem was taken and sacked, and the bridge across Blue river burned. On the 11th he reached Vernon on the Madison and Indianapolis railroad, and demanded the surrender of the place, but Col. Lowe, who was in command, replied, "come and take it." After surrounding the town, burning the bridges and much other property, the rebels departed without risking a battle. They next visited Dupont, burned rail-road and other bridges; thence to Versailles, the county seat of Ripley county, where they robbed the county treasury of $ 5,000. The rebels in turn visited Osgood, Primeville, Millan, and Wiseburg; at the latter place having a skirmish with the Home Guards. At New Alsas, in Dearborn county, Morgan made an important capture of a wagon loaded with beer, after which they passed out of Indiana into Ohio, and on the night of the 13th nearly surrounded Cincinnati. Leaving that place, they passed through Springdale and Sharon, to Montgomery, where they stole 150 horses. At Miamiville they turned over a train on the little Miami rail road and burned 50 army wagons. At this point Dick Morgan, with one regiment, left the main body and went to Georgetown and plundered that place. On the 15th they entered Winchester, robbed the mail, stole $ 35,000 worth of property and 50 horses. They burned a bridge at Piketon, and at Wheat Ridge robbed an old, infirm man of $ 30,00. Again their forces separate, part going to Mount Olive. Six miles from Jackson the citizens blockaded the road, causing a delay of some two hours. At Jasper, having demanded $1000 and failing to obtain it, they burned the mill of the village. An old rebel by the name of Van Meter in Chilicothe was preparing to entertain Morgan at his house, supposing he would visit that city. Having some very fine horses, he thought it would be well enough to keep them out of the way of his friend Morgan, and sent them to his farm near Jasper. Morgan did not visit Chilicothe, but did visit Jasper, encamped on his friend Van Meter's farm, destroyed his crops, stole his horses, and then moved on. At Piketon they murdered a man who attempted to blockade the road, and also a Dr. Bourroughs, who fired upon the rebels as they passed his place. From Jasper, Morgan sent some of his forces to Berlin, where were some 3,000 militia under Col. Runkle, who blockaded the road and forced the rebels to change their course, but did not follow in time to inflict any damages on the rebels. At Linesville the robbers were detained two hours by blockading the road. Part of the rebel forces went to Millsville; thence to Chester, burning bridges at both places. At Chester they burned 11 canal boats. On the 19th the battle of Buffington Island was fought; the Union forces being commanded by Gen. Judah. After some hard fighting, a part of the rebels, including Dick Morgan, Basil Duke, and Smith, surrendered, and a small number crossed the river into Ky. and escaped. Another portion went up Long Grove bottom to Harrisonville, and turning short around struck for the river again about forty miles from Buffington, where Coleman, of Clarke's command, surrendered all his forces to about 50 Unionists. The remainder of the rebels followed their leaders further north, and by dint of shifting and turning from point to point like a wounded snake, they succeeded in reaching a point about four miles from New Lisbon, Ohio, where John H. Morgan and Col. Clarke with about 400 men were captured by Gen. Shackleford, on the 26th of July, 1863.

FORT WAGNER.

July 11th the national forces attempted to carry this fort by assault, but the supports being unable to withstand the fire, an order was given to retire. National loss, 150 killed, wounded and missing; rebel loss, 200.

CHATTANOOGA (LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN,) TENNESSEE.

On the 25th of November a terrible battle was fought at this place. The Union forces were commanded by General Grant. All the rifle-pits were captured, 52 cannon and 5,800 prisoners taken, and the rebels under Bragg completely routed. On the 26th and 27th the rebels were pursued, and more prisoners, several cannon, and a large amount of ordinance stores captured. Union loss, between 3,000 and 4,000 killed and wounded.

LOCUST GROVE, VIRGINIA.

On the 26th day of November the Union forces crossed the Rapidan, and on the 27th a trifling engagement took place. On the 28th the battle of Locust Grove was fought, resulting in a Union loss of 350 killed and wounded. Rebel loss, 700.

KNOXVILLE, TENNESSEE.

An important engagement was fought at Campbell's Station, near Knoxville, November 14th, by General Burnside with 5,000 Union troops, and General Longstreet with 16,000 rebels. The rebels were twice repulsed. The siege of Knoxville began on the 18th of November, the rebels not being able to carry the place by assault. Burnside nobly defended the position, defeating every attempt to take the place. Longstreet retreat-on the 6th of December, and was pursued by Union cavalry. Union loss, 80; rebel loss, 1,000.

PORT GIBSON, ARKANSAS.

A severe and important struggle was had at Port Gibson, December 18th. Colonel Philips, with the loyal Indian brigade, fought 1,000 guerrillas under Quantrell, defeating the rebels with heavy loss. Union loss light.

JONESVILLE, WEST VIRGINIA.

On the 3d of January a detachment of 280 men under Major Beers was attacked at Jonesville, by a large rebel force under Gen. Sam. Jones. After a desperate fight the Unionists were obliged to surrender. Union loss, 30 killed, 30 wounded, and the rest captured.

CHARLESTON, SOUTH CAROLINA.

On the 7th of January, General Gilmore had thrown twenty shells loaded with Greek fire into Charleston.

PIRATE SHIP CHESAPEAKE.

On the 18th of January the Pirate Chesapeake was overtaken in Sambro Harbor, near Halifax. Previous to the capture, all the crew save three men made their escape. The capture being made in British waters, the prisoners were delivered into the hands of the British authorities, when they were rescued by a mob, and set at liberty. Afterward several were re-arrested.

RAID TOWARD RICHMOND.

On the 6th of February a part of General Butler's command, under General Wistar, advanced within twelve miles of Richmond, causing great alarm to the people of the rebel capital.

NEWBURN, N. C.

The Union posts at Bachelor's Creek were attacked on the 1st of February by 15,000 rebels, and were compelled to retreat with a loss of about 900. The steamer Underwriter was destroyed, and the Union cavalry repulsed at Fort Totten, near Newburn. The rebels then fell back to Kinston.

FLORIDA.

An expedition under Gen'ls. Gilmore and Seymour, left Port Royal, February 5th. Near Jacksonsville, 100 prisoners and 8 pieces of artillery fell into Union hands. On the 20th a movement with 5,000 troops was made toward Lake City. The rebel pickets were met and driven in. The whole force soon become engaged, and fought more than double their number of rebel cavalry. Union loss here was heavy, and a retreat became necessary though the ground was held for three hours. The dead and severely wounded were left upon the field. Federal loss, 1,000 killed, wounded and missing; also 5 guns. The defeat was complete.

MOBILE.

On the 23d of February a naval attack was commenced on the forts defending the harbor of Mobile. A heavy fire was opened upon Fort Powel, with unknown results.

KILPATRICK RAID.

This noted raid was begun from Stevensport, Va., on the 28th of February. After crossing the Rapidan and gaining the rear of Lee's army, Kilpatrick pushed rapidly on toward Richmond. A portion of the cavalry under Col. Dahlgren approached to within three miles of the city, but encountering a rebel force withdrew. Another portion of men commanded by Gen. Kilpatrick, after destroying Gordonsville and Fredericksburg railroads at their crossing, reached the outer line of fortifications, March 1st; but after passing them, he was obliged to retire, and encamp about three miles from the city. In the morning they were obliged to continue their retreat and safely arrived at Williamsburg. During this raid Col. Dahlgren was killed. The indignities offered his remains, were only worthy of the savages of the Fejee Islands.

FORT DU RUSSY.

On the 15th day of March the Union forces under Gen. A. J. Smith captured Fort Du Russy, Fla., rebel Gen. Dick Taylor commanding the fort. The Unionist secured 325 prisoners, 11 heavy guns, and 2,000 barrels of powder. Union loss, 7 killed and 46 wounded.

TEACHOES, LA.

A fight took place at this point, March 21st. The federals turned the rebel flank, captured 2,000 prisoners, and 4 pieces of artilery with their cassions.

PADUCAH, KY.

On the 25th of March this place was captured by the rebels under Gen. Forrest with a force 2,000 strong. The fort, four miles below, was commanded by Col. Hicks, with three hundred men. Four assaults were made on the fort. Union loss, 50 killed and wounded. Rebel loss 300; mostly killed. The rebels retreated, leaving their dead upon the field.

CHARLESTOWN, ILL.

A very serious riot occurred at Charlestown, Ill., on the 25th of March, between a few soldiers and a large body of armed citzens. Several were killed, and the copperheads dispersed to their holes.

RED RIVER.

A fight took place on the 25th of March, at the mouth of Cane River, three miles above Alexandria, between a part of Gen. Smith's forces, 2,000 strong, and Dick Taylor's rebel army, numbering 12,000 strong. The fight lasted three hours, when the rebels fell back. Rebel loss 200 killed and wounded and 1,500 prisoners.

PLEASANT HILL.

After driving the rebels several days, on the 8th of April, the Union cavalry were met by a large rebel force, when a battle ensued, resulting in the entire defeat of the Unionists. Our loss, from 1,200 to 1,500; rebels 1,800. Another engagement was fought, April 9th, and the rebels defeated, with a loss of 2,000 prisoners and 20 cannon.

FORT PILLOW.

On the 12th of April the rebel Gen. Forrest overpowered the garrison at Fort Pillow on the Miss., consequently a surrender became necessary. Maj. Booth commanding was killed, together with several other officers. After the fort had been taken possession of, an indiscriminate butchery of soldiers, black and white, was commenced, together with women and children, without respect to age or condition. Some 400 were killed; many more mutilated in the most shocking manner. Five negroes were buried alive. This was an act worthy of the spirit of southern chivalry, as exhibited during the war. The stain of the blood of these helpless victims, time will never obliterate. This bloody butchery shall be handed down in history, song and story, through all future ages of this nation, and remain a stigma upon the acts of the so-called southern confederacy, i. e. horde of assassins and robbers.

STATE GUARDS.

On the 26th day of April, 1864, the offer from the governors of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, to furnish 85,000 men to the government for one hundred days, was formally accepted, and an appropriation of $20,000,000 made for their payment. These noble, patriotic governors, thus have carved honors for their respective states, high upon the temple of fame. A present and immediate relief was hereby formed for our worthy President, and a large army placed in the field.

PLYMOUTH, N. C.

On the 17th and 18th of April an attack was made by the rebels upon Plymouth, on the Albemarle Sound, resulting in the capture of Fort Williams, with a Union brigade of 1,500 men.

BATTLES OF THE WILDERNESS.

The order for a forward movement having been issued, May 3d, the army of the Potomac which had been concentrating at Culpepper C. H., crossed the Rapidan, May 4th. On the 5th, the line of March was taken up, through the Wilderness. Lee, seeming to comprehend the character ot the movement, determined to resume his favorite plan of attack, viz: hurling his troops upon that part of the line which seemed the weakest. Ewell's and Hill's corps made the attack upon several successive points, but were foiled, and utterly failed either to break the line or drive back the Union forces. In this day's fighting, the losses were about equal, except that in prisoners. The rebels captured 1,000 and lost 300. On Friday, the 6th, the fight was renewed, the rebels being strengthened by the addition of Longstreet's army. Several severe assaults were made upon the federal lines during the day, with uncertain success to either. The last and most successful, was made just at nightfall, which nearly defeated the Union army; sweeping as it did. Gen.'s Seymour's and Sholes' brigades entirely away, capturing both of these generals. Sedgwick, however, rallied his forces and checked the rebels. The battle was opened at daylight on Saturday, but it was soon found that Lee was falling back. Both armies commenced their southern march, by nearly parallel lines or roads, the immediate objective point being Spottsylvania C. H., which was reached by the rebels, and was found to have been fortified. On the Sabbath a general battle was fought. Monday, the 9th, opened quietly. During the day, Gen. Sedgwick, of the 6th Corps, was killed by a rebel sharp-shooter, while directing the mounting of his artillery. On Tuesday the action was opened by a sharp cannonade, preparatory to general attack, and the contest continuing throughout the day, was more furious than that of any of the previous days. Up to the 11th, Wednesday, Grant reports the situation as much in the favor of the nationals, with heavy losses on both sides. The Union troops have 5,000 prisoners. During Wednesday night and the morning of Thursday, Gen. Hancock carried the intrenchments occupied by the rebel Gen. Edward Johnson; the whole division with its commander being made prisoners. In these battles, it is said, that each army had about 200,000 men, and the losses great to both sides.

RESACCA, GEORGIA.

On the 16th of May General Sherman attacked General J. E. Johnson at this place, and after a hard fought battle of three days, drove him out. Rebel loss, 1,200 prisoners and 10 guns.

SPOTTSYLVANIA COURT-HOUSE.

On the 18th of May the battle between General Grant and Lee was resumed. The federals were successful, driving the rebels from their intrenchments. On the 19th Ewell's corps made an attempt to capture Grant's trains. The attack was repulsed. Federal loss small; 900 in all. Rebel loss, 1,250, besides 500 prisoners. On the 20th Grant flanked Lee, and succeeded in crossing the North Anna River, and on Thursday he and his army were found between the North and South Anna Rivers, twenty-five miles from Richmond; while on the north line of the latter river was Gen. Lee's new line. Having re-crossed the North Anna, on the 1st day of June, he and his army were south of the Pamunky, within ten miles of Richmond. After several unsuccessful attempts to approach Richmond, it was deferred, and Grant moved his entire army to the south side of the James.

PIEDMONT, VIRGINIA.

On the 5th of June a battle was fought at this place, between the Union forces of General Hunter, and General W. E. Jones, rebel, resulting in a complete victory to the nationals. Jones was killed, Staunton captured, and 1,500 prisoners and several guns taken.

TREVILAN STATION.

An important engagement was fought here on the 7th of June by General Sheridan's command, and a victory gained. About 400 prisoners were taken.

MORGAN'S KENTUCKY RAID.

Early in the month of June the rebel John Morgan made another of his periodical raids into Kentucky, for his usual purpose,—horse-stealing. He got possession of Paris, Georgetown, Cynthiana, Williamstown, and Mount Sterling. On the 9th his forces were severely beaten by General Burbridge. Lexington was afterward captured by him, and plundered, and two Ohio regiments taken. On the 12th General Burbridge successfully routed him, capturing a large portion of his force.

BATTLES AROUND RICHMOND.

On the 15th of June General Smith's corps, numbering 15,000, first arrived safely on the south side of the James River. He carried the batteries north-east of Petersburg, and a regiment of Wise's brigade was taken. Other corps coming up on the 16th, other positions were also carried. On the evening of June 16th, Smith's Hancock's and Burnside's corps made an attack, carrying a line of rifle-pits, followed by another next morning, capturing 480 prisoners. On the 22d the Second and Sixth Corps were attacked by Hill's corps. After a moment's confusion the rebels were repulsed. On the same day Kautz and Wilson, in executing a movement upon the Weldon Railroad, were surrounded by a cavalry force under Hampton and Lee, and repulsed. Loss in this movement, some 750 to 1,000.

KEARSARGE AND ALABAMA.

On the 19th of June an engagement took place between the rebel pirate Alabama, Captain Semmes, and the U. S. man of war Kearsarge, Captain Winslow, off the port of Cherbourg, France, resulting in the sinking of the rebel vessel. On finding his vessel to be sinking, Captain Semmes ordered his crew to jump overboard, setting the example. Himself and forty of his crew were picked up by the English yacht Deerhound, carried off the English coast, landed, and cared for by our affectionate cousins. A pretty fair specimen of British non-intervention.

KENESAW MOUNTAIN.

On the 27th of June General Sherman made an assault upon the rebels at this place, which proved to be a failure, resulting in a loss of from 2,000 to 3,000 men.

LYNCHBURG, VIRGINIA.

Hunter's attempt to take Lynchburg proved a failure, in consequence of Early's too early appearance with a large body of rebels. In his retreat he crossed the mountains to Gauley, in West Virginia, throwing open the door to the invasion of Maryland, which was entered by the rebels with a force of 22,000 troops under Early and Breckenridge. This was about the 4th of July.

INVASION OF MARYLAND.

On the 5th of July, Hagerstown was taken possession of by the rebels. On the 9th was fought the battle of Monocacy, between General Lew. Wallace and the rebels The Union forces were defeated; Fredericktown was evacuated the night previous, and was in the hands of the rebels; trains were captured on the Philadelphia Railroad, in one of which was General Franklin, who happily not being recognized, made his escape. Communication was interrupted between Washington and the North. Monday, July 11th, the Seventh Street road was in the hands of the rebels, six or eight miles from Washington. A detachment was sent out by General Auger, which soon succeeded in driving the rebels. Early being threatened by troops from other commands, and the return of Hunter, crossed the Potomac on Wednesday, and escaped.

CORINTH AND OKOLONA, MISS.

About the 15th of July several engagements occurred between the Unionists and rebels, between Corinth and Okolona, General Forrest commanding the rebels, and Generals Smith, Mower, and Grierson the nationals, in which the former was severely beaten, and punished with a loss of 4,000.

WINCHESTER, VA.

A battle was fought here on the 19th of July by Unionists under Gen. Averill, and rebels under Gen. Early. The rebels were defeated and lost heavily. Federal loss 1,000, among whom was Col. Mulligan. The pursuit was kept up until Early was re-enforced, when Gen. Averill, after fighting him on the 23d and 24th, fell back to Harper,s Ferry.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA.

On the 20th of July, General Hood, at this time in command of the rebel forces at Atlanta, came out and hurled his oolumns against Hooker's corps, making three assaults, which were bloodily repulsed. On the following Friday another assault was made, with even less success than before, leaving on the field 7,000 killed and wounded. Union loss, 2,500. General McPherson, a brave Union officer was killed in this engagement.

SHERMAN'S COMMAND.

On the 27th of July, while Gen. Stoneman of Sherman's expedition was executing a movement near Stone Mountain, in the vicinity of Atlanta, Ga., he was surrounded and captured, with a large portion of his men.

Gen. McCook had an engagement in the vicinity of Whitewater Creek, Ga., in which he succeeded in driving the rebels. At Newman, the next morning, he was again nearly surrounded, but succeeded in cutting his way through, with about 1,200 men. His loss in killed, wounded and missing, is put at 1,000.

PETERSBURG, VA.

The mine in front of Petersburg was spung on the morning of July 30th, at forty minutes past four o'clock. The mine was 400 feet in length, and charged with eight tons of powder. One regiment of rebels, and one battery was blown up. The federals now opened upon the rebel lines with 150 guns, and rushed to the assault. Thrice were our troops repulsed; and finally being unable longer to hold the crater of the mine, they retired. In killed, wounded and prisoners, The Union loss was 5,500.

CHAMBERSBURG, PA.

On the 30th of July, Gen. McCausland with a few hundred rebel cavalry entered Chambersburg, Pa., demanding $500,000. This being refused, they immediately set fire to the town in as many as fifty places. The people fled from the place in confusion. The sufferings of the people were greatly aggravated by the insolence of the rebel banditti. The loss in property amounted to $4,000,000. Twenty-five hundred people lost their homes; and yet, perhaps, that same people would be called upon to sympathize with the unfortunate people of the south, whose husbands, sons and brothers, caused this devastation.

FORTS MORGAN AND GAINES.

On the 5th of August, Com. Faragut's fleet passed forts Morgan and Gaines. The Tennessee and a rebel ram was captured, and several other vessels destroyed. The casualties on board the fleet were, killed, 129. On the 5th Fort Gaines surrendered with 56 officers and 818 men. Fort Morgan surrendered on the 23d, with 600 prisoners.

CITY POINT.

On the 9th of August an explosion took place at City Point, which, although accidental, resulted in the loss of 150 killed and wounded.

DALTON, GA.

On the 15th of August, the rebel Gen. Wheeler was repulsed at Dalton, Ga.

MEMPHIS, TENN.

On the 21st of August Gen. Forrest made an unsuccessful attempt to enter and hold Memphis. He had with him a force of 1,500 cavalry. His probable design was to capture Generals Washburn and Hurlbert, and free the inmates of Irving prison. The rebels suffered heavily in this raid.

PETERSBURG, VA.

On the 25th of August Gen. Hancock, who held the Weldon Railroad, was unexpectedly attacked. The assault made by the rebels was repulsed. The enemy made another desperate charge, compelling Hancock to withdraw his troops. The rebels lost heavily. Hancock lost between 1,000 and 2,000 in killed and prisoners.

IRONTON, GA.

September 1st the rebels were beaten by Sherman at this place, capturing 10 guns and 1,000 prisoners. When Hood took command of the rebel army, it is supposed that his forces numbered 46,000 men. It is estimated that in the battles of the 20th, 22d and 28th of August he lost nearly half this number.

JOHN MORGAN KILLED.

On the 5th of September the rebel John Morgan was killed in the garden of a wealthy secession widow, by the name of Williams, residing in Greenville, Tenn.—the home of President Johnson. Mrs. Williams had one son in the rebel army, and another a Union man. A daughter-in-law of Mrs. W., being a decided Union woman, rode nine miles to Blue Springs in the evening, to inform Gen. Gillem that Morgan had just made the house of her mother-in-law his head-quarters. Gen. Gillem taking advantage of the information, surrounded the town on the morning of the 5th, when Morgan tried to make his escape through the garden, and was pointed out by a Union lady from an upper window, near by, to one of Gen. Gillem's cavalrymen, who called to him to halt. He refused to obey the summons, whereupon the cavalryman fired, killing instantly the great ubiquitous raider, amid the growing cabbage.

READYVILLE, TENN.

On the 7th of September a force of 2,000 rebels was defeated at Readyville, Tenn.

MARTINSBURG AND VICINITY, VA.

On Sabbath, September 18th, Gen. Gordon of the rebel army made an attack on Gen. Averill's corps at Martinsburg and was defeated. On the 19th a battle was fought by Sheridan in the Shenandoah Valley, resulting in a complete victory over the rebel forces of Gen. Early, who was driven from the field in confusion, retreating to Fisher's Hill. He was again attacked by Sheridan on the 23d, and the position which had been regarded as impregnable was taken, together with 12 guns, and from 1,000 to 2,000 prisoners. Rebel loss during both battles, supposed to be over 10,000. Generals Rhodes and Goodwin of the rebel army were killed. General David R. Russel of the Union army was among the killed of the nationals.

Sheridan now fell back to Woodstock, fearing for his long line of communications. This campaign involved the loss to the rebels of 2,000 barns filled with wheat, hay and farming utensils, 70 mills filled with flour and wheat, and the capture of 4,000 head of cattle and many horses. On his retreat to Woodstock, he was overtaken by a rebel cavalry force under Gen. Rosser. Gen. Sheridan attacked the column, October 9th, and gained a victory, in which 300 prisoners were taken, and Rosser driven at break-neck speed more than 25 miles.

ALLATOONA, GA.

This point was attacked by Hood, Oct. 5th. The position was in command of Gen. Corse, who would probably have been beaten, but for the timely arrival of Gen. Sherman, when Hood began a hasty retreat. The federal loss was some 700 out of 1,700. The rebels lost 200 killed and 1,000 wounded and prisoners.

CEDAR CREEK.

Sheridan was attacked at Cedar Creek on the 19th of October. The General was fifteen miles from the front, at which the attack was made, at the time. This fact was doubtless the cause for the seeming success which attended the first assault. Our forces lost 20 pieces of artillery; but Sheridan arriving about noon, under whose command the line was re-formed, and his presence inspiring confidence, when Early made the second attack, he was completely repulsed. Gen. Sheridan now became the attacking party, and the rebels were driven from the field, losing 50 pieces of cannon.

THE REBEL RAM ALBEMARLE.

The rebel ram Albemarle was destroyed by Lieut. Cushing, on the 3d of Nov. On the same day the rebel Gen. Hood made an attempt to cross the Tennessee River, but was repulsed by Gen. Slocum.

SOUTH SIDE R. R.

The army of the Potomac had a hotly-contested engagement, Nov. 29th, in the vicinity of the South Side R. R. The national forces were successful, capturing 1,000 prisoners. The Union loss was 1,500. Meade then withdrew his army to its former possition.

FRANKLIN, TENN.

On the 30th of November Franklin, Tenn., being occupied by Union troops under Gen. Schofield, was attacked by the rebels under Hood. They were repulsed with great slaughter.

FORT McALLISTER, GA.

On the 13th of December Fort McAllister, commanding the approach to Savannah by the sea, was taken by storm.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

An important battle was fought before Nashville on the 15th and 16th of December, Gen. Thomas commanding the Union troops, and Hood of the rebels. The latter were badly whipped. The rebel loss is put down at 5,000 killed and wounded, and 1,000 prisoners; Union loss, 2,500. During this campaign against Nashville of 20 days, Hood lost 9.000 killed and wounded, and 10,000 prisoners. Six generals killed, six wounded and six captured.

SALTVILLE, VA.

On the 20th of December the rebels under Gen. Breckinridge were defeated at Saltville, and the large salt works completely destroyed; 845 men captured, 2,000 horses and 1,000 mules.

SAVANNAH, GA.

On the 21st of December Sherman entered this important rebel city and took possession of it. With the city was also captured 150 heavy guns, 25,000 bales of cotton, 800 prisoners, 13 locomotives, 190 cars and 3 steamers.

FORT FISHER, N. C.

On the 25th of December a combined attack of the army and navy was made upon Fort Fisher, under Gen.'s Butler and Weitzel. The assault was repulsed.

BEVERLY, VA.

On the 11th of January the garrison at Beverly, Va., was attacked by the rebels under Gen. Rosser. The town and a large portion of the force that defended it, fell into the hands of the rebels.

FORT FISHER, N. C.

The capture of this fort was accomplished on the 15th of January. The expedition consisted of both land and naval forces, and was under the command of Gen. Terry and Admiral Porter. The attack commenced on the 13th, and the bombardment continued over the 14th. The first assault was made at 3 o'clock P. M. on the 15th. The assaulting parties were under Commander Breese, of the navy, consisting of 1,200 men, and Gen. Ames, of the land forces, with 3,000 strong. As the stockade was reached, Lieut.'s Reed and Porter fell mortally wounded. The attack by the naval forces failed, and the brigade fell back. The assault by Gen. Ames was more successful; he gained an entrance from the east side of the fort. A severe contest took place, which was maintained for eight hours. At 9 o'clock P. M. re-enforcements coming in, a final charge was made, which drove the rebels, inducing them to surrender. This was a hand to hand fight. The garrison of 1,900 men was surrendered, 400 having been killed or wounded. Union loss, military force, 691; navy, 330.

SHERMAN'S OPERATIONS.

On the 11th of February, Branchville was occupied by Sherman's forces, the rebels retreating to Columbia. On the 17th, as he approached the latter place, the rebels under command of Beauregard evacuated it, and Sherman at once occupied it. A very destructive fire occurred here a few days afterwards, supposed to be the work of a rebel incendiary.

CHARLESTON, S. C.

This hot-bed of treason being no longer tenable by reason of complete investment by U. S. troops, succumbed to the federal forces February 15th. The evacuation was completed on the 18th, when the city was formally surrendered. There remained but about 10,000 or 15,000 persons. Just four years before, Jefferson Davis had been inaugurated president of the so-called Southern Confederacy. The siege of the city actually commenced when General Gilmore landed his forces on Morris Island, July 10th, 1863, lasting 585 days.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

This rebel fort was evacuated February 21st, and taken possession of by the federals on the 22d,—Washington's birth day. Captured 700 prisoners and 30 guns.

CHARLOTTSVILLE, VA.

On the 2d day of March Sherman fought a battle with Early, resulting in the rout of the latter, capturing 1,300 prisoners and 11 cannons. Charlottsville was surrendered the next day.

KINSTON, N. C.

On the 10th of March General Cox was attacked by Gen. Bragg, near Kinston. A battle was fought, in which Gen. Cox was the victor, compelling Bragg to fall back across the Neuse, leaving the way open to Kinston, which was occupied by Schofield on the 13th.

COLUMBIA AND FAYETTEVILLE.

During Sherman's march from Columbia to Faystteville, two engagements were fought with the rebels; one at Aiken, with Wheeler's cavalry, the rebels being repulsed; another on the 10th of March near Fayetteville, with Wade Hampton. In the latter battle, the first success appeared to be in favor of the rebels, but they were finally driven from the field.

MOOR'S CROSS ROADS, N. C.

On the 16th a battle was fought at this point near Averysboro, between Kilpatrick's cavalry force and Johnston's cavalry, lasting all day. At night the rebels fell back, abandoning their line, and uncovering the way for the Union army to advance to Goldsboro.

BENTONVILLE, NORTH CAROLINA.

On the 18th of March a battle was fought near Bentonville. Five charges were made by the rebels against the Union lines, which, though they had been hastily formed, resisted each successive charge with considerable loss to the rebels. At night the rebels retired. On the 20th Sherman attacked the rebel forces with his whole army, and that night again they retired, and fell back to Smithfield. On the next day, the 21st, Sherman was at Goldsboro, which had already been occupied by Schofield. General Terry also came up, and the three armies formed a junction on the very day appointed by Sherman.

AVERYSBORO, N. C.

On the 22d of March rebel Gen. Hardee was defeated at Averysboro, N. C.

RICHMOND, VIRGINIA.

On the 25th of March General Lee suddenly attacked General Grant's lines south of the Appomattox. After a severe struggle, the rebels were repulsed with a total loss of 3,000. That of Grant's army was less than 1,000.

At the same time another battle was in progress at Hatcher's Run, which continued till 6 o'clock at night, when Grant's line remained unbroken. On the 31st Warren's corps was repulsed at Gravelly Run. On the 1st day of April Sheridan's command gained a victory at Big Five Forks, flanking the rebels, and taking 6,000 prisoners.

Immediately upon hearing of Sheridan's victory on Saturday, General Grant commenced an attack along the whole line in front of Petersburg. So successful was this attack, that the federal forces had possession of the entire line of rebel intrenchments from the Appomattox above Petersburg, to the river below, by Sabbath night, and the rebels were thereby compelled to abandon Petersburg at once. Lee informed Davis that he could no longer hold Petersburg, and that Richmond must also be given up. Monday, April 3d, Grant entered Petersburg, and four hours afterward General Weitzel, with the troops that remained upon the north side of the James, mostly colored, entered Richmond. Thus ended the siege of the rebel capital.

On the 4th President Lincoln, together with several other distinguished personages, who had been stopping at City Point, arrived at Richmond, and were received with great enthusiasm. It appeared from evidences yet remaining that the rout was complete.

MOBILE.

On the 2d day of April an attack was commenced on the outer defenses of Mobile, by a combined military and naval force. The defenses were captured after a hard and bloody struggle. On the 13th the city was surrendered to Gen. Canby. In all, the rebels lost about 1,500 killed and wounded, 6,000 prisoners, 150 guns. Maury, the rebel commander; succeeded in making his escape with 9,000 men. Union loss 2,000.

JEFFERSON DAVIS.

Upon the evacuation of Richmond, Jefferson Davis proceed southward to North Carolina, resting at Raleigh. But the events which followed his stampede from his captured capital being so disastrous, he again placed himself in the saddle, and resumed his march southward.

LEE'S RETREAT AND SURRENDER.

The army of Gen. Lee, abandoning Richmond and Petersburg, took a westerly course, evidently with the intention of reaching Lynchburg, already intrenched and fortified for its reception. On the morning of the 5th the main body of the rebels had reached Amelia C. H., 47 miles from Richmond. But Sheridan had succeeded by one of his John Gilpin rides in reaching Burksville, fifteen miles farther west, and immediately in the way of Lee's retreat. He sent a brigade, which made a successful attack upon the rebel flank. Informing Gen. Grant of the state of things, and Meade ascertaining the position of Lee's army, the 5th and 6th corps were sent upon his retreating columns. A battle was fought at Deatonsville, routing them completely, capturing several thousand prisoners, among whom were Generals Ewell, Kershaw and Custis Lee. Lee now was fairly surrounded. On the 7th Grant having arrived at the point, at once comprehended the condition of affairs, and summoned Lee to surrender. After some correspondence upon the conditions, the remnant of the rebel army of "Northern Virginia," was surrendered to the victorious chieftain, Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant, April 9th, 1865. The number of men surrendered was 26,000; captured during the period of time from March 26th to April 4th, 30,000. Their loss in killed and wounded is set down at 10,000, giving them, in round numbers at the close of March, an army of 70,000. Gen Grant's army was probably double this amount, but not more than one half the numbbr were brought into action.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

The first capital of the rebel government followed the example of its successor, and surrendered to Yankee rule on the 12th of April.

SALISBURY, N. C.

On the 13th of April Gen. Stoneman, of Thomas' department, captured Salisbury, N. C., after a short but sharp encounter. There were 1,400 prisoners taken, and an immense quantity of army stores.

April 14th, President Lincoln is assassinated by J. Wilkes Booth.

April 15th, Vice President Andrew Johnson is inaugurated President of the United States.

COLUMBUS, GEORGIA.

April 16th, after a short but sharp contest, Colubums, Georgia, was captured, with 2,000 rebel prisoners and 70 guns.

On the 4th of May Gen. Dick Taylor surrendered to Gen. Canby all his forces, munitions of war &c., belonging to the department of the Alabama, Mississippi and east Louisiana.

CAPTURE OF JEFF.

May 10th, Jeff. Davis was captured by the Fourth Michigan and First Wisconsin Cavalry, near Irwinsville, Georgia. He was disguised as a woman.

LAST DITCH.

On the 13th of May a skirmish took place between a small body of men under Colonel Barnett and some rebels who had been encamped near Brazas, in the western part of Texas. In this skirmish several were killed on both sides. This, we believe, was the last fighting done by the rebels as an organized force, and is consequently supposed to be the last ditch.

There yet remained a considerable body of rebels under Kirby Smith west of the Mississippi river. After the surrender of Lee and Johnson, desertions were so numerous that he was glad to surrender to Gen. Canby on the 3d of May, his whole force consisting of somewhere between 50,000 and 80,000 men, with all the munitions of war in his possession. This was the last armed force of the great rebellion.

REVIEW OF EVENTS.

THE first order for this work was taken on the 18th of February of the current year. The situation of our national affairs is so different now from what it was then, that we propose in this article to review the events as they have transpired. At the date above mentioned, Mr. Lincoln had not completed his first term as President of the United States; and although the people everywhere throughout the loyal states were satisfied that we would ultimately crush the rebellion, the final success of our arms was so far in the future that it required $2 04 in our currency to buy $1 00 in gold. The rebels had large and formidable armies in the field, but our own more than doubled theirs in number; and while Grant was watching Lee at Richmond and Petersburg, Sherman was swinging around in the South, sweeping every thing before his victorious armies. The nations looked on in wonder and astonishment, believing that the destruction of his army was inevitable. The idea of marching through an enemy's country without any base of supplies, and with armed foes in front, armed foes to the right, armed foes to the left, and armed foes in the rear, was a feat none but an American army with an American general would think of attempting. The rebels every-where aimed to keep at a respectful distance, to insure personal safety. South Carolina, the mother of rebels and secession, was humbled in the dust on the very day our record commences; for we find that on the 18th of February, 1865, General Sherman's victorious army enters her capital, her sacred soil being everywhere overrun by Yankee soldiers; and even her legislative halls were desecrated by the tread of northern mud-sills. Not only these things had taken place, but Charleston, the great, mighty modern Babylon, had fallen, being fired by her own boasted chivalry; and the smoke of her torments went up, and the light of her burnings guided her chivalrous sons and daughters in their course as fugitives from justice. On this same day General Lee, the commander-in-chief of the rebel armies, calls upon the rebel government to re-enforce him by arming, and promising freedom to a large force of the very negroes for whose more abject enslavement they had commenced the war for the destruction of our government. But he was too late; the United States Government had already given them that liberty, made them its soldiers, and as such a few days later a body of them marched into Charleston singing the John Brown song.

Time in his ceaseless course brings us to the 4th of March. On this day Gen. Sherman's army enters North Carolina; Martin R. Delany, a colored soldier, is commissioned major, the highest office to which any colored man had ever been promoted in the United States Army; Gen. Palmer abolishes slave-pens in the city of Louisville, Ky.,—all suitable events for the day in which Abraham Lincoln enters upon his second presidential term. How different now from what it was four years before, when the capital was menaced, and, we might almost say, held by the rebels. Of this period in our history Gen. Scott in his autobiography says:—"In the preceding two months I had received more than fifty letters, many from points distant from each other, some dissuading me from being present at the event, and others distinctly threatening assassination if I dared to protect the ceremony by military force." We repeat, how changed is all the scene. Slavery, in whose interest the rebellion was inaugurated, after having furnished one hundred thousand of its sons to assist in crushing the rebellion, now sends its subjects as freemen to participate in the ceremonies of the re-inauguration of our Chief Magistrate. The soil on which they stand is no more slave, but free territory. They can now mingle with the white race in the receptions at the executive mansion, and receive as hearty greetings from the President. Mr. Lincoln having taken the oath of office for the second time, delivered the following Inaugural Address, the merits of which can only be understood by reading it entire.

"FELLOW-COUNTRYMEN—At this second appearing to take the oath of the Presidential office, there is less occasion for an extended address than there was at the first. Then, a statement, somewhat in detail, of a course to be pursued, seemed fitting and proper. Now, at the expiration of four years, during which public declarations have been constantly called forth on every point and phase of the great contest which still absorb the attention and engrosses the energies of the nation, little that is new could be presented. The progress of our arms, upon which all else chiefly depends, is as well known to the public as to myself, and it is, I trust, reasonably satisfactory and encouraging to all. With high hope for the future, no prediction in regard to it is ventured.

"On the occasion corresponding to this, four years ago, all thoughts were anxiously directed to an impending civil war. All dreaded it; all sought to avert it. While the Inaugural address was being delivered from this place, devoted altogether to saving the Union without war, insurgent agents were in the city seeking to destroy it without war—seeking to dissolve the Union, and divide effects by negotiation. Both parties deprecated war; but one of them would make war rather than let the nation survive, and the other would accept war rather than let it perish. And the war came.

"One-eighth of the whole population were colored slaves, not distributed generally over the Union, but localized in the southern part of it. These slaves consituted a peculiar and powerful interest. All knew that this interest was, somehow, the cause of the war. To strengthen, perpetuate, and extend this interest was the object for which the insurgents would rend the Union, even by war while the Government claimed no right to do more than to restrict the territorial enlargement of it. Neither party expected for the war the magnitude or the duration which it has already obtained. Neither anticipated that the cause of the conflict might cease with, or even before, the conflict itself should cease. Each looked for an easier triumph, and a result less fundamental and astounding. Both read the same Bible, and pray to the same God, and each invokes His aid against the other. It may seem strange that any men should dare to ask a just God's assistance in wringing their bread from the sweat of other men's faces; but let us judge not, that we be not judged. The prayers of both could not be answered—those of neither have been answered fully. The Almighty has His own purposes. 'Woe unto the world because of offenses! for it must needs be that offenses come; but woe to that man by whom the offense cometh.'

"If we shall suppose that American slavery is one of those offenses which, in the providence of God, must needs come, but which, having continued through His appointed time, He now wills to remove, and that He gives to both North and South this terrible war, as the woe due to those by whom the offense came, shall we discern therein any departure from those Divine attributes which the believers in a living God always ascribe to him? Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray, that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away. Yet, if God wills that it continue, until all the wealth piled by the bondsman's two hundred and fifty years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn by the lash shall be paid by another drawn with the sword, as was said three thousand years ago, so still it must be said, 'The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.'

"With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and his orphan—to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves, and with all nations."

The rebels being by this time driven to desperation, their senate at Richmond passed a bill to arm their slaves, which being concurred in by the House, became a law on the 15th of March, and orders were issued at once from their war department for the drilling to commence; but it was to late, all their schemes failed, and the only good accomplished by it was to show the world how complete the failure to establish a government, the chief corner-stone of which should be human slavery. The conspiracy was in its death throes. Gen. Grant "moved upon the rebel works" at Petersburg and carried them, the rebels retreating toward Richmond, which in turn is evacuated; and on the 3d day of April a corps of colored soldiers under Gen. Weitzel took possession of what had been for four long years the capital of the rebel government. April 4th, just one month after the second inauguration of President Lincoln, he holds a levee in the mansion just evacuated by the once bombastic and defiant, but now fugacious Jeff. April 9th, at Appomattox court-house, the whole rebel army, twenty-five thousand strong, under Gen. Lee, surrendered to Gen. Grant. The news flashed on the wires to all parts of the loyal states. Victory! Victory! Peace! Peace! were the exclamations on every tongue, and the wildest demonstrations of delight were spontaneously indulged in by the loyal millions in every part of the land. Impromptu processions, speeches, illuminations and bonfires were every-where indulged in both by day and by night.

The fourth anniversary of the degradation of our glorious old flag at Fort Sumter was approaching. The authorities at Washington, with a true appreciation of the fitness of things, had been making arrangements for some suitable demonstration on the occasion. Orders had been issued by the Secretary of War to Capt. Gadsden, to have the fine ocean steamer Arago in readiness to convey a select party to the historic spot, the mass of ruins that was once called Fort Sumter. The vessel sailed from New York before the surrender of the rebel Lee, and it was not until they were sailing up the Bay into Charleston, that the excursionists received the news. Of the party who sailed on the Arago, to the number of two or three huddred, it is necessary we should name a few of those who were assigned to special duties on the occasion. There was Gen. Robert Anderson, the hero of the expedition, and Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, who had been selected to deliver the oration. Then there was William Lloyd Garrison of Massachusetts, and George Thompson of England, "life-long co-workers for the abolition of slavery, each the champion of a great nation." There was also Gen. Dix of New York, Hon. Joseph Holt of Kentucky, Senator Wilson of Massachusetts, Justice Swayne of the Supreme Court of the United States, Lieutenant Governor Charles Anderson—now Governor of Ohio—and a host of others. Besides the Arago, there were other vessels chartered for the occasion, each bearing some of the distinguished personages of the land, so that the entire party numbered about five thousand. A correspondent of the New York Independent, in describing the approach to the battered walls of Fort Sumter, says: "There was but one strain worthy of the moment, it was neither the 'Star Spangled Banner;' nor our own grand 'America.' We all broke forth into 'Praise God from whom all blessings flow.'" The movements of the vessels had been so well timed that the party landed about noon on the 14th of April. A prayer was offered by the Rev. Matthias Harris, Chaplain of the U. S. Army—the same who was at the Fort four years before—and a portion of the Scripture read, followed by the reading of the dispatch sent by Major Anderson to the Government, announcing the evacuation of Fort Sumter on the 14th of April, 1861. "Gen. Anderson and Sergeant Hart * then stepped forward and hoisted the well-preserved flag, amid unbounded enthusiasm, and salutes from the batteries and fleet."

* When the staff of this same flag had been shot away four years before, Sergeant Hart rescued and restored it to its place on the fortifications.

SPEECH OF GEN. ANDERSON.

My Friends and Fellow-citizens, and Brother-Soldiers.—By the considerate appointment of the honorable Secretary of War, I am here to fulfill the cherished wish of my heart through four long, long years of bloody war, to restore to its proper place this dear flag, which floated here during peace, before the first act of this cruel rebellion.

I thank God that I have lived to see this day, and to be here to perform this duty to my country. My heart is filled with gratitude to that God who has so signally blessed us; who has given us blessings beyond measure.

May all the world proclaim, "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace; good-will toward men."

ORATION OF REV. HENRY WARD BEECHER.

On this solemn and joyful day, we again lift to the breeze our fathers' flag, now, again, the banner of the United States, with the fervent prayer that God would crown it with honor, protect it from treason, and send it down to our children, with all the blessings of civilization, liberty, and religion. Terrible in battle, may it be beneficent in peace. Happily, no bird or beast of prey has been inscribed upon it. The stars that redeem the night from darkness, and the beams of red light that beautify the morning, have been united upon its folds. As long as the sun endures, or the stars, may it wave over a nation neither enslaved nor enslaving. Once, and but once, has treason dishonored it. In that insane hour when the guiltiest and bloodiest rebellion of time hurled their fires upon this fort, you, sir, [turning to General Anderson] and a small heroic band, stood within these now crumbled walls, and did gallant and just battle for the honor and defense of the nation's banner.

In that cope of fire this glorious flag still peacefully waved to the breeze above your head, unconscious of harm as the stars and skies above it. Once it was shot down. A gallant hand, in whose care this day it has been, plucked it from the ground, and reared it again—"cast down, but not destroyed." After a vain resistance, with trembling hand and sad heart, you withdrew it from its hight, closed its wings, and bore it far away, sternly to sleep amid the tumults of rebellion and the thunder of battle. The first act of war had begun. The long night of four years had set in. While the giddy traitors whirled in a maze of exhilaration, dim horrors were already advancing, that were ere long to fill the land with blood.

To-day you are returned again. We devoutly join with you in thanksgiving to Almighty God, that he has spared your honored life, and vouchsafed to you the glory of this day. The heavens over you are the same; the same shores are here; morning comes, and evening as they did. All else, how changed! What grim batteries crowd the burdened shores! What scenes have filled this air and disturbed these waters! These shattered heaps of shapeless stones are all that is left of Fort Sumter. Desolation broods in yonder sad city—solemn retribution hath avenged our dishonored banner! You have come back with honor, who departed hence four years ago, leaving the air sultry with fanaticism. The surging crowds that rolled up their frenzied shouts, as the flag came down, are dead, or scattered or silent; and their habitations are desolate. Ruin sits in the cradle of treason. Rebellion has perished. But there flies the same flag that was insulted. With starry eyes it looks all over this bay for that banner that supplanted it, and sees it not. You that then for the day, were humbled, are here again to triumph once and forever. In the storm of that assault this glorious ensign was often struck; but, memorable fact, not one of its stars was torn out by shot or shell. It was a prophecy.

It said, "Not one state shall be struck from this nation by treason!" The fulfillment is at hand. Lifted to the air, to-day, it proclaims that after four years of war, "Not a state is blotted out!"

Hail to the flag of our fathers, and our flag! Glory to the banner that has gone through four years black with tempests of war, to pilot the nation back to peace without dismemberment! And glory be to God, who above all hosts and banners, hath ordained victory, and shall ordain peace!

Wherefore have we come hither, pilgrims from distant places? Are we come to exult that northern hands are stronger than southern? No; but to rejoice that the hands of those who defend a just and beneficent government are mightier than the hands that assaulted it. Do we exult over fallen cities? We exult that a nation has not fallen. We sorrow with the sorrowful. We sympathize with the desolate. We look upon this shattered fort, and yonder dilapidated city, with sad eyes, grieved that men should have committed such treason, and glad that God hath set such a mark upon treason that all ages shall dread and abhor it.

We exult not for a passion gratified, but for a sentiment victorious; not for temper, but for conscience; not as we devoutly believe that our will is done, but that God's will hath been done! We should be unworthy of that liberty intrusted to our care, if, on such a day as this, we sullied our hearts by feelings of aimless vengeance, and equally unworthy, if we did not devoutly thank him who hath said, "Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord," that he hath set a mark upon arrogant Rebellion, ineffacable while time lasts!

Since this flag went down on that dark day, who shall tell the mighty woes that have made this land a spectacle to angels and men? The soil has drunk blood, and is glutted. Millions mourn for millions slain, or, envying the dead, pray for oblivion. Towns and villages have been razed. Fruitful fields have turned back to wilderness. It came to pass, as the prophet said: "The sun was turned to darkness and the moon to blood." The course of law was ended. The sword sat chief magistrate in half the nation; industry was paralyzed; morals corrupted; the public weal invaded by rapine and anarchy; whole states ravaged by avenging armies. The world was amazed. The earth reeled. When the flag sunk here, it was as if political night had come, and all beasts of prey had come forth to devour.

The long night is ended! And for this returning day we have come from afar, to rejoice and give thanks. No more war. No more accursed secession! No more slavery, that spawned them both!

Let no man misread the meaning of this unfolding flag! It says, "Government hath returned hither." It proclaims, in the name of vindicated government, peace and protection to loyalty; humiliation and pains to traitors. This is the flag of sovereignty. The nation, not the states, is sovereign. Restored to authority, this flag commands, not supplicates.

There may be pardon but no concession. There may be amnesty and oblivion, but no honied compromises. The nation to-day has peace for the peaceful, and war for the turbulent. The only condition of submission, is, to submit! There is the Constitution, there are the laws, there is the Government. They rise up like mountains of strength that shall not be moved. They are the conditions of peace.

One nation, under one government, without slavery, has been ordained, and shall stand. There can be peace on no other basis. On this basis reconstruction is easy, and needs neither architect nor engineer. Without this basis no engineer or architect shall ever reconstruct these rebellious states.

We do not want your cities or your fields. We do not envy you your prolific soil, nor heavens full of perpetual summer. Let agriculture revel here; let manufactures make every stream twice musical; build fleets in every port; inspire the arts of peace with genius second only to that of Athens; and we shall be glad in your gladness, and rich in your wealth.

All that we ask is unswerving loyalty, and universal liberty. And that, in the name of this high sovereignty of the United States of America, we demand, and that, with the blessing of Almighty God, we will have!

We raise our father's banner that it may bring back better blessings than those of old; that it may cast out the devil of discord; that it may restore lawful government, and a prosperity purer and more enduring than that which it protected before; that it may win parted friends from their alienation; that it may inspire hope, and inaugurate universal liberty; that it may say to the sword, "Return to thy sheath," and to the plow and sickle, "Go forth;" that it may heal all jealousies, unite all policies, inspire a new national life, compact our strength, purify our principles, ennoble our national ambitions, and make this people great and strong, not for aggression and quarrelsomeness, but for the peace of the world, giving to us the glorious prerogative of leading all nations to juster laws, to more humane policies, to sincerer friendship, to rational, instituted civil liberty, and to universal Christian brotherhood.

Reverently, piously, in hopeful patriotism, we spread this banner on the sky, as of old the bow was planted on the cloud, and, with solemn fervor, beseech God to look upon it, and make it the memorial of an everlasting covenant, and decree that never again on this fair land shall a deluge of blood prevail.

Why need any eye turn from this spectacle? Are there not associations which, overleaping the recent past, carry us back to times when, over North and South, this flag was honored alike by all? In all our colonial days we were one; in the long Revolutionary struggle, and in the scores of prosperous years succeeding we were united. When the passage of the Stamp Act in 1765 aroused the colonies, it was Gadsden, of South Carolina, that cried with prescient enthusiasm: "We stand on the broad common ground of those natural rights that we all feel and know as men. There ought to be no New England man, no New Yorker, known on this continent, but all of us," said he, "AMERICANS." That That was the voice of South Carolina. That shall be the voice of South Carolina. Faint is the echo; but it is coming. We now hear it sighing sadly through the pines; but it shall yet break in thunder upon the shore No North, no South, but the United States of America.

There is scarcely a man born in the South who has lifted his hand against this banner, but had a father who would have died for it. Is memory dead? Is there no historic pride? Has a fatal fury struck blindness or hate into eyes that used to look kindly toward each other; that read the same Bible; that hung over the historic pages of our national glory; that studied the same Constitution?

Let this uplifting bring back all of the past that was good, but leave in darkness all that was bad.

It was never before so wholly unspotted; so clear of all wrong; so purely and simply the sign of Justice and Liberty. Did I say that we brought back the same banner that you bore away, noble and heroic sir? It is not the same. It is more and better than it was. The land is free from slavery, since that banner fell.

When God would prepare Moses for emancipation, he overthrew his first steps, and drove him for forty years to brood in the wilderness. When our flag came down, four years it lay brooding in darkness. It cried to the Lord, "Wherefore am I deposed?" Then arose before it a vision of its sin. It had strengthened the strong, and forgotten the weak. It proclaimed liberty, but trod upon slaves.

In that seclusion it dedicated itself to liberty. Behold, to-day, it fulfills its vows! When it went down four million people had no flag. To-day it rises, and four million people cry out, "Behold our flag!" Hark! they murmur. It is the gospel that they recite in sacred words: "It is a gospel to the poor, it heals our broken hearts, it preaches deliverance to captives, it gives sight to the blind, it sets at liberty them that are bruised." Rise up, then, glorious Gospel Banner, and roll out these messages of God. Tell the air that not a spot now sullies thy whiteness. Thy red is not the blush of shame, but the flush of joy. Tell the dews that wash thee that thou art pure as they. Say to the night, that thy stars lead toward the morning; and to the morning, that a brighter day arises with healing in its wings. And then, oh glowing flag, bid the sun pour light on all thy folds with double brightness while thou art bearing round and round the world the solemn joy—a race set free! a nation redeemed!

The mighty hand of Government, made strong in war, by the favor of the God of Battles, spreads wide to-day the banner of liberty that went down in darkness, that arose in light; and there it streams, like the sun above it, neither parceled out nor monopolized, but flooding the air with light for all mankind. Ye scattered and broken, ye wounded and dying, bitten by the fiery serpents of oppression, every-where, in all the world, look upon this sign, lifted up, and live! And ye homeless and houseless slaves, look, and ye are free! At length you, too, have part and lot in this glorious ensign, that broods with impartial love over small and great, the poor and the strong, the bond and the free.

In this solemn hour, let us pray for the quick coming of reconciliation and happiness, under this common flag!

But we must build again, from the foundations, in all these now free southern states. No cheap exhortations "to forgetfulness of the past, to restore all things as they were," will do. God does not stretch out his hand, as he has for four dreadful years, that men may easily forget the might of his terrible acts. Restore things as they were? What, the alienations and jealousies? the discords and contentions, and the causes of them? No. In that solemn sacrifice on which a nation has offered up for its sins so many precious victims, loved and lamented, let our sins and mistakes be consumed utterly and forever.

No, never again shall things be restored as before the war. It is written in God's decree of events fulfilled, "Old things are passed away." That new earth, in which dwelleth righteousness, draws near.

Things as they were? Who has an omnipotent hand to restore a million dead, slain in battle, or wasted by sickness, or dying of grief, broken-hearted? Who has omniscience to search for the scattered ones? Who shall restore the lost to broken families? Who shall bring back the squandered treasure, the years of industry wasted, and convince you that four years of guilty rebellion, and cruel war, are no more than dirt upon the hand, which a moment's washing removes, and leaves the hand clean as before? Such a war reaches down to the very vitals of society.

Emerging from such a prolonged rebellion, he is blind who tells you that the state, by a mere amnesty and benevolence of Government, can be put again, by a mere decree, in its old place. It would not be honest, it would not be kind or fraternal, for me to pretend that southern revolution against the Union has not reacted, and wrought revolution in the southern states themselves, and inaugurated a new dispensation.

Society here is like a broken loom, and the piece which rebellion put in, and was weaving, has been cut, and every thread broken. You must put in new warp and new woof, and, weaving anew, as the fabric slowly unwinds, we shall see in it no Gorgon figures, no hideous grotesques of the old barbarism, but the figures of liberty, vines and golden grains, framing in the heads of Justice, Love, and Liberty!

The august convention of 1787 framed the Constitution with this memorable preamble: "We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic traquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain this Constitution for the United States of America."

Again, in the awful convention of war, the people of the United States, for the very ends just recited, have debated, settled, and ordained certain fundamental truths, which must henceforth be accepted and obeyed. Nor is any state, or any individual, wise who shall disregard them. They are to civil affairs what the natural laws are to health—indispensable conditions to peace and happiness.

What are the ordinances given by the people, speaking out of fire and darkness of war, with authority inspired by that same God who gave the law from Sinai amid thunders and trumpet voices?

1. That these United States shall be one and indivisible.

2. That states have not absolute sovereignty, and have no right to dismember the republic.

3. That universal liberty is indispensible to republican government, and that slavery shall be utterly and forever abolished!

Such are the results of war! These are the best fruits of the war. They are worth all they have cost. They are foundations of peace. They will secure benefits to all nations as well as to ours.

Our highest wisdom and duty is to accept the facts as the decrees of God. We are exhorted to forget all that has happened. Yes, the wrath, the conflict, the cruelty, but not those overruling decrees of God which this war has pronounced. As solemnly as on Mount Sinai, God says, "Remember! remember!" Hear it to-day. Under this sun, under that bright child of the sun, our banner, with the eyes of this nation and of the world upon us we repeat the syllables of God's providence, and recite the solemn decrees:

No more Disunion!
No more Secession!
No more Slavery!

Why did this civil war begin?

We do not wonder that European statesmen failed to comprehend this conflict, and that foreign philanthropists were shocked at a murderous war that seemed to have no moral origin, but, like the brutal fights of beasts of prey, to have sprung from ferocious animalism. This great nation, filling all profitable latitudes, cradled between two oceans, with inexhaustible resources, with riches increasing in an unparalleled ratio, by agriculture, by manufactures, by commerce, with schools and churches, with books and newspapers thick as leaves in our own forests, with institutions sprung from the people, and peculiarly adapted to their genius; a nation not sluggish, but active, used to excitement, practiced in political wisdom, and accustomed to self-government, and all its vast outlaying parts held together by a federal government mild in temper, gentle in administration, and beneficent in results, seemed to have been formed for peace.

All at once, in this hemisphere of happiness and hope, there came trooping clouds with fiery bolts, full of death and desolation. At a cannon shot upon this fort, all the nation, as if it had been a trained army lying on its arms, awaiting a signal, rose up and began a war which for awfulness, rises into the first rank of bad eminence The front of battle, going with the sun, was twelve hundred miles long; and the depth, measured along a meridian, was a thousand miles. In this vast area more than two million men, first and last, for four years, have, in skirmish, fight, and battle, met in more than a thousand conflicts; while a coast and river line, not less than four thousand miles in length, has swarmed with fleets, freighted with artillery. The very industry of the country seemed to have been touched by some infernal wand, and, with sudden wheel, changed its front from peace to war. The anvils of the land beat like drums. As out of the ooze emerge monsters, so from our mines and foundaries uprose new and strange machines of war, iron-clad.

And so, in a nation of peaceful habits, without external provocation, there arose such a storm of war as blackened the whole horizon and hemisphere. What wonder that foreign observers stood amazed at this fanatical fury, that seemed without divine guidance, but inspired wholly with infernal frenzy.

The explosion was sudden, but the train had long been laid. We must consider the condition of southern society, if we would undersand the mystery of this iniquity. Society in the South resolves itself into three divisions, more sharply distinguished than in any other part of the nation. At the base is the laboring class, made up of slaves. Next is the middle class, made up of traders, small farmers, and poor men. The lower edge of this class touches the slave, and the upper edge reached up to the third and ruling class. This class was a small minority in numbers, but in practiced ability they had centered in their hands the whole government of the South, and had mainly governed the country.

Upon this polished, cultured, exceedingly capable, and wholly unprincipled class, rests the whole burden of this war. Forced up by the bottom-heat of slavery, the ruling class, in all the disloyal states, arrogated to themselves a superiority not compatible with republican equality, nor with just morals. They claimed a right of pre-eminence. An evil prophet arose who trained these wild and luxuriant shoots of ambition to the shapely form of a political philosophy.

By its re-agents they precipated drudgery to the bottom of society, and left at the top what they thought to be a clarified fluid. In their political economy, labor was to be owned by capital. In their theory of government, a few were to rule the many. They boldly avowed, not the fact alone, that, under all forms of government, the few rule the many, but their right and duty to do so. Set free from the necessity of labor, they conceived a contempt for those who felt its wholesome regimen. Believing themselves foreordained to supremacy, they regarded the popular vote, when it failed to register their wishes, as an intrusion and a nuisance. They were born in a garden, and popular liberty, like freshets overswelling their banks, but covered their dainty walks and flowers with slime and mud—of democratic votes.

When with shrewd observation, they saw the growth of the popular element in the northern states, they instinctively took in the inevitable events. It must be controlled or cut off from a nation governed by gentlemen! Controlled less and less, could it be in every decade; and they prepared secretly, earnestly, and with wide conference and mutual connivance to separate the South from the North.

We are to distinguish between the pretenses and means, and the real causes of this war.

To inflame and unite the great middle class of the South, who had no interest in separation and no business with war, they alleged grievances that never existed, and employed arguments which they, better than all other men, knew to be specious and false. Slavery itself was cared for only as an instrument of power or of excitement. They had unalterably fixed their eye upon empire, and all was good which would secure that, and bad which hindered it.

Thus, the ruling class of the South,—an aristocracy as intense, proud, and inflexible as ever existed—not limited either by customs or institutions, not recognized and adjusted in the regular order of society, playing a reciprocal part in its machinery, but secret, disowning its own existence, baptized with ostentatious names of democracy, obsequious to the people for the sake of governing them; this nameless, lurking aristocracy, that ran in the blood of society like a rash, not yet come to the skin; this political tapeworm, that produced nothing, but lay coiled in the body, feeding on its nutriment, and holding the whole structure to be but a servant set up to nourish it—this aristocracy of the plantation, with firm and deliberate resolve, brought on the war, that they might cut the land in two, and clearing themselves from incorrigible free society, set up a stern-er, statelier empire, where slaves worked that gentlemen might live at ease. Nor can there be any doubt that though, at first, they meant to erect the form of republican government, this was but a device; a step necessary to the securing of that power by which they should be able to change the whole economy of society.

That they never dreamed of such a war, we may well believe. That they would have accepted it, though twice as bloody, if only thus they could rule, none can doubt that knows the temper of these worst men of modern society. But they miscalculated. They understood the people of the South; but they were totally incapable of understanding the character of the great working classes of the loyal states. That industry which is the foundation of independence, and so of equity, they stigmatized as stupid drudgery, or as mean avarice. That general intelligence and independence of thought which schools for the common people and newspapers breed, they reviled as the incitement of unsettled zeal, running easily into fanaticism.

They more thoroughly misunderstood the profound sentiment of loyalty: the deep love of country which pervaded the common people. If those who knew them best had never suspected the depth and power of that love of country which threw it into an agony of grief when the flag was here humbled, how should they conceive of it, who were wholly disjoined from them in sympathy? The whole land rose up, you remember, when the flag came down, as if inspired unconsciously by the breath of the Almighty, and the power of omnipotence. It was as when one pierces the banks of the Mississippi for a rivulet and the whole raging stream plunges through with headlong course. There they calculated, and mis-calculated!

And more than all, they miscalculated the bravery of men who have been trained under law, who are civilized and hate personal brawls, who are so protected by society as to have dismissed all thought of self-defense, the whole force of whose life is turned to peaceful pursuits. These arrogant conspirators against government, with Chinese vanity, believed that they could blow away these self-respecting citizens as chaff from the battle-field. Few of them are left alive to ponder their mistake!

Here, then, are the roots of this civil war. It was not a quarrel of wild beasts, it was an inflection of the strife of ages, between power and right, between ambition and equity. An armed band of pestilent conspirators sought the nation's life. Her children rose up and fought at every door, and room, and hall, to thrust out the murderers, and save the house and household. It was not legitimately a war between the common people of the North and South. The war was set on by the ruling class, the aristocratic conspirators of the South. They suborned the common people with lies, with sophistries, with cruel deceits and slanders, to fight for secret objects which they abhorred, and against interests as dear to them as their own lives.

I charge the whole guilt of this war upon the ambitious, educated, plotting, political leaders of the South. They have shed this ocean of blood. They have desolated the South. They have poured poverty through all her towns and cities. They have bewildered the imagination of the people with phantasms, and led them to believe that they were fighting for their homes and liberty, whose homes were unthreatened, and whose liberty was in no jeopardy.

These arrogant instigators of civil war have renewed the plagues of Egypt, not that the oppressed might go free, but that the free might be oppressed. A day will come when God will reveal judgment, and arraign at his bar these mighty miscreants; and then, every orphan that their bloody game has made, and every widow that sits sorrowing, and every maimed and wounded sufferer, and every bereaved heart in all the wide regions of this land, will rise up and come before the Lord to lay upon these chief culprits of modern history their awful witness. And from a thousand battle-fields shall rise up armies of airy witnesses, who, with the memory of their awful sufferings, shall confront these miscreants with shrieks of fierce accusation; and every pale and starved prisoner shall raise his skinny hand in judgment. Blood shall call out for vengeance, and tears shall plead for justice, and grief shall silently beckon, and love, heart-smitten, shall wail for justice. Good men and angels will cry out, "How long, oh Lord, how long, wilt thou not avenge?"

And then, these guiltiest and most remorseless traitors, these high cultured men with might and wisdom, used for the destruction of their country; these most accursed and detested of all criminals, that have drenched a continent in needless blood, and moved the foundations of their times with hideous crimes and cruelties, caught up in the black clouds, full of voices of vengence and lurid with punishment, shall be whirled aloft and plunged downward for ever and ever in an endless retribution; while God shall say, "Thus shall it be to all who betray their country;" and all in heaven and upon the earth will say "Amen!"

But for the people misled, the multitudes drafted and driven into this civil war, let not a trace of animosity remain. The moment their willing hand drops the musket, and they return to their allegiance, then stretch out your own honest right hand to greet them. Recall to them the old days of kindness. Our hearts wait for their redemption. All the resources of a renovated nation shall be applied to rebuild their prosperity, and smoothe down the furrows of war.

[At this point in his oration, Mr. Beecher paused, and said: "I will thank the band to play an air, and you to get up that are sitting down, and you to sit down that have been standing; and I will sit down too, and rest for a moment." When the band had ceased playing, he said: "We will now take our places again, and attend to our business," and then proceeded with his speaking.]

Has this long and weary period of strife been an unmingled evil? Has nothing been gained? Yes, much. This nation has attained to its manhood.

Among Indian customs is one which admits young men to the rank of warriors only after severe trials of hunger, fatigue, pain, and endurance. They reach their station, not through years, but ordeals. Our nation has suffered, and now is strong.

The sentiment of loyalty and patriotism, next in importance to religion, has been rooted and grounded. We have something to be proud of, and pride helps love. Never so much as now did we love our country.

But four such years of education in ideas, in the knowledge of political truth, in the lore of history, in the geography of our own country, almost every inch of which we have probed with the bayonet, have never passed before. There is half-a-hundred years' advance in four.

We believed in our institutions and principles before; but now we know their power. It is one thing to look upon artillery, and be sure that it is loaded; it is another thing to prove its power in battle! We believed in the hidden power stored in our institutions; we had never before seen this nation thundering like Mount Sinai at all those that worshiped the calf at the base of the mountain.

A people educated and moral are competent to all the exigencies of national life. A vote can govern better than a crown. We have proved it. A people intelligent and religious are strong in all economic elements. They are fitted for peace and competent for war. They are not easily inflamed, and, when justly incensed, not easily extinguished. They are patient in adversity, endure cheerfully needful burdens, tax themselves for real wants more royally than any prince would dare to tax his people. They pour forth without stint relief for the sufferings of war, and raise charity out of the realm of a dole, into a manificent duty of beneficence.

The habit of industry among free men, prepares them to meet the exhaustion of war with increase of productiveness commensurate with the need that exists. Their habits of skill enable them at once to supply such armies as only freedom can muster, with arms and munitions such as only free industry can create. Free society is terrible in war, and afterward repairs the mischief of war with celerity almost as great as as that with which the ocean heals the seams gashed in it by the keel of plowing ships.

Free society is fruitful of military genius. It comes when called: when no longer needed, it falls back as waves do to the level of the common sea, that no wave may be greater than the undivided water. With proof of strength so great, yet in its infancy, we stand up among the nations of the world, as asking no privileges, asserting no rights, but quietly assuming our place, and determined to be second to none in the race of civilization and religion.

Of all nations, we are the most dangerous and the least to be feared. We need not expound the perils that await upon enemies that assault us. They are sufficiently understood. But we are not a dangerous people because we are warlike. All the arrogant attitudes of this nation, so offensive to foreign governments, were inspired by slavery, and under the administration of its minions. Our tastes, our habits, our interests, and our principles, incline us to the arts of peace.

This nation was founded by the common people for the common people. We are seeking to embody in public economy more liberty, with higher justice and virtue, than have been organized before. By the necessity of our doctrines, we are put in sympathy with the masses of men in all nations. It is not our business to subdue nations, but to augment the power of the common people. The vulgar ambition of mere domination, as it belongs to universal human nature, may tempt us; but it is withstood by the whole force of our principles, our habits, our precedents, and our legends.

We acknowledge the obligation which our better political principles lay upon us, to set an example more temperate, humane, and just, than monarchial governments can. We will not suffer wrong, and still less will we inflict it upon other nations. Nor are we concerned that so many, ignorant of our conflict, for the present, misconceive the reasons of our invincible military zeal. "Why contend," say they, "for a little territory that you do not need?" Because it is ours! Because it is the interest of every citizen to save it from becoming a fortress and refuge of iniquity. This nation is our house, and our fathers' house; accursed be the man who will not defend it to the uttermost. More territory than we need? England, that is not large enough to be our pocket, may think that it is more than we need, because it is more than it needs; but we are better judges of what we need that others are.

Shall a philanthrophist say to a banker, who defends himself against a robber, "Why do you need so much money?" But we will not reason with such questions. When any foreign nation willingly will divide its territory and give it cheerfully away, we will answer the question why we are fighting for territory!

At present, for I pass to the consideration of benefits that accrue to the South in distinction from the rest of the nation—the South reaps only suffering; but good seed lies buried under the furrows of war, that peace will bring to harvest.

1. Deadly doctrines have been purged away in blood. The subtle poison of secession was a perpetual threat of revolution. The sword has ended that danger. That which reason had affirmed as philosophy, the people have settled as a fact. Theory pronounces, "There can be no permanent government where each integral particle has liberty to fly off." Who would venture upon a voyage on a ship, each plank and timber of which might withdraw at its pleasure? But the people have reasoned by the logic of the sword and of the ballot, and they have declared that states are inseparable parts of national government. They are not sovereign. State rights remain; but sovereignty is a right higher than all others; and that has been made into a common stock for the benefit of all. All further agitation is ended. This element must be cast out of political problems. Henceforth that poison will not rankle in the blood.

2. Another thing has been learned; the rights and duties of minorities. The people of the whole nation are of more authority than the people of any section. These United States are supreme over northern, western, and southern states. It ought not to have required the awful chastisement of this war to teach that a minority must submit the control of the nation's government to a majority. The army and navy have been good political schoolmasters. The lesson is learned. Not for many generations will it require further illustration.

3. No other lesson will be more fruitful of peace than the dispersion of those conceits of vanity, which, on either side, have clouded the recognition of the manly courage of all Americans. If it be a sign of manhood to be able to fight, then Americans are men. The North, certainly, is in no doubt whatever of the soldierly qualities of southern men. Southern soldiers have learned that all latitudes breed courage on this continent. Courage is a passport to respect. The people of all the regions of this nation are likely hereafter to cherish a generous admiration of each other's prowess. The war has bred respect, and respect will breed affection, and affection peace and unity.

4. No other event of the war can fill an intelligent southern man, of candid nature, with more surprise than the revelation of the capacity, moral and military, of the black race. It is a revelation indeed. No people were ever less understood by those most familiar with them. They are said to be lazy, lying, impudent, and cowardly wretches, driven by the whip alone to the tasks needful to their own support and the functions of civilization. They were said to be dangerous, bloodthirsty, liable to insurrection; but four years of tumultuous distress and war rolled across the area inhabited by them, and I have yet to hear of one authentic instance of the misconduct of a colored man. They have been patient, and gentle, and docile, and full of faith and hope and piety; and, when summoned to freedom, they have emerged with all the signs and tokens that freedom will be to them what it was to us—the swaddling-band that shall bring them to manhood. And after the government, honoring them as men, summoned them to the field, when once they were disciplined, and had learned the arts of war, they have proved themselves to be not second to their white brethren in arms. And when the roll of men that have shed their blood is called in the other land, many and many a dusky face will rise, dark no more when the light of eternal glory shall shine upon it from the throne of God!

5. The industry of the southern states is regenerated, and now rests upon a basis that never fails to bring prosperity. Just now industry is collapsed; but it is not dead. It sleepeth. It is vital yet. It will spring like mown grass from the roots that need but showers, and heat, and time, to bring them forth. Though in many districts not a generation will see wanton wastes of self-invoked war repaired, and many portions may lapse again into wilderness; yet, in our lifetime we shall see states, as a whole, raised to a prosperity, vital, wholesome, and immovable.

6. The destruction of class interests, working with a religion which tends toward true democracy, in proportion as it is pure and free, will create a new era of prosperity for the common laboring people of the South. Upon them have come the labor, the toil, and loss of this war. They have fought blindfolded. They have fought for a class that sought their degradation, while they were made to believe that it was for their own homes and altars. Their leaders meant a supremacy which would not long have left them political liberty, save in name. But their leaders are swept away. The sword has been hungry for the ruling classes. It has sought them out with remorseless zeal. New men are to rise up; new ideas are to bud and blossom; and there will be men with different ambition and altered policy.

7. Meanwhile, the South, no longer a land of plantations, but of farms; no longer tilled by slaves, but by freedmen, will find no hindrance to the spread of education. Schools will multiply. Books and papers will spread. Churches will bless every hamlet. There is a good day coming for the South. Through darkness, and tears, and blood, she has sought it. It has been an unconscious via dolorosa. But in the end it will be worth all it has cost. Her institutions before were deadly. She nourished death in her bosom. The greater her secular prosperity, the more sure was her ruin. Every year of delay but made the change more terrible. Now, by an earthquake, the evil is shaken down; and her own historians, in a better day, shall write, that from the day the sword cut off the cancer, she began to find her health.

What, then, shall hinder the rebuilding of this republic? The evil spirit is cast out: why should not this nation cease to wander among the tombs, cutting itself? Why should it not come, clothed, and in its right mind, to "sit at the feet of Jesus?" Is it feared that the government will oppress the conquered states? What possible motive has the government to narrow the base of that pyramid on which its own permanence depends?

Is it feared that the rights of the states will be withheld? The South is not more jealous of state rights than the North. State rights from the earliest colonial days have been the peculiar pride and jealousy of New England. In every stage of national formation, it was peculiarly northern, and not southern statesmen, that guarded state rights as we were forming the Constitution. But, once united, the loyal states gave up for ever that which had been delegated to the national government. And now, in the hour of victory, the loyal states do not mean to trench upon southern state rights. They will not do it, or suffer it to be done. There is not to be one rule for high latitudes, and another for low. We take nothing from southern states that has not already been taken from the northern. The South shall have just those rights that every eastern—every middle—every western state has—no more, no less.

We are not seeking our own aggrandizement by impoverishing the South. Its prosperity is an indispensable element of our own. We have shown, by all that we have suffered in war, how great is our estimate of the southern states of this Union; and we will measure that estimate, now, in peace, by still greater exertions for their rebuilding.

Will reflecting men not perceive, then, the wisdom of accepting established facts, and, with alacrity of enterprise, begin to retrieve the past?

Slavery can not come back. It is the interest, therefore, of every man to hasten its end. Do you want more war? Are you not yet weary of contest? Will you gather up the unexploded fragments of this prodigious magazine of all mischief, and heap them up for continued explosions? Does not the South need peace? And since free labor is inevitable, will you have it in its worst forms, or its best? Shall it be ignorant, impertinent, indolent? or, shall it be educated, self-respecting, moral and self-supporting? Will you have men as drudges, or will you have them as citizens? Since thay have vindicated the government, and cemented its foundation-stones with their blood, may they not offer the tribute of their support to maintain its laws and its policy? It is better for religion; it is better for political integrity; it is better for industry; it is better for money—if you will have that ground-motive—that you should educate the black man, and, by education make him a citizen. They who refuse education to the black man, would turn the South into a vast poor-house, and labor into a pendulum, incessantly vibrating between poverty and indolence.

From this pulpit of broken stone we speak forth our earnest greeting to all our land.

We offer to the President of these United States our solemn congratulations that God has sustained his life* and health under the unparalel burdens and sufferings of four bloody years, and permitted him to behold this auspicious consummation of that national unity for which he has waited with so much patience and fortitude, and for which he has labored with such disinterested wisdom.

To the members of this government associated with him in the administration of perilous affairs in critical times; to the senators and representatives of the United States, who have eagerly fashioned the instruments by which the popular will might express and enforce itself, we tender our grateful thanks.

To the officers and men of the army and navy, who have so faithfully, skillfully, and gloriously upheld their country's authority, by suffering, labor and sublime courage, we offer a heart-tribute beyond the compass of words.

Upon those true and faithful citizens, men and women, who have borne up with unflinching hope in the darkest hour, and covered the land with their labor of love and charity, we invoke the divinest blessing of him whom they have so truly imitated.

But chiefly to thee, God of our fathers! we render thanksgiving and praise for that wondrous providence that has brought forth from such a harvest of war the seed of so much liberty and peace!

We invoke peace upon the North. Peace be to the West. Peace be upon the South.

In the name of God we lift up our banner, and dedicate it to peace, union, and liberty, now and for ever more. Amen!

The ceremonies at the fort being ended, the excursionists, all unconscious of what was transpiring at the capital of the nation—there being no telegraphic communication between it and the late rebel states—betook themselves to sight-seeing, and thus spent the entire day of Saturday, the 15th, visiting famous localities of the once haughty, but now desolate and ruined city of Charleston. The Sabbath, too, was appropriately spent in religious services among the freed people of the city, Mr. Beecher preaching in Zion's Church to an audience of three thousand dusky skinned, but eager and attentive auditors. Thus they spent Saturday and Sabbath, intending to continue down the coast to Florida before their return. As they were about to resume their journey, the appalling news that President Lincoln had been assassinated on the evening of the day they had just been celebrating, reached them. All desire to extend their visit vanished, and the prow of the vessel was at once turned homeward, that they might the more freely unite with their friends in expressions of sorrow at the loss of him who had piloted our ship of state safely through the most terrific storm of civil war ever experienced by any government on the globe.

* Little did he think that in less than ten hours the hand of an assassin was to put an end to that life.

THE ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN,

As is well known, took place on the evening of April 14th, 1865. While the President and his wife, Major Henry R. Rathbone and Miss Clara L. Harris were quietly occupying a box in Ford's Theater, Washington City, the box in which they were, as they supposed, privately seated, was entered by J. Wilkes Booth about 10½ o'clock, suddenly and unobserved. He stepped quickly up behind the President, placed a pistol almost touching his head, and fired, the ball entering just back of the left ear, passing through the brain, and out near the right temple. Major Rathbone sprang at the assassin, who dropped his pistol, and defended himself with a dagger. After wounding the Major in the arm, Booth leaped out of the box down to the stage, a distance of twelve feet, assumed a tragical attitude, flourished his dagger, accompanied by the exclamation, "Sic semper tyrannis;" after which he quickly passed out of the theater, mounted a horse that stood in readiness for him, and made his escape from the city. Mr. Lincoln was removed to a residence opposite the theater, where he lay unconscious until twenty-two minutes past 7 o'clock on the morning of the 15th, when he breathed his last.

At the same hour of the assassination of the President, the residence of William H Seward, the Secretary of State, was entered, he lying upon his bed suffering from wounds received by being thrown from his carriage. Mr. Seward, his son Frederick, and a soldier who was acting as nurse, were each fearfully mangled, but all recovered. The would-be assassin escaped from the house and rode away.

Less than a week previous to this, the people of the loyal states had every-where been indulging in the wildest manifestations of rejoicing over the surrender of the rebel army under General Lee, and on that very day, aside from the meeting at Fort Sumter to raise the old flag over its battered walls, there had been many other meetings throughout the county to celebrate that event. The news of the assassination was telegraphed to all parts of the country in time to be read in the daily papers of Saturday morning, the 15th. Never was a nation called upon to pass so suddenly from the highest pinnacle of rejoicing to the lowest abyss of sorrow. It seemed that there was a corpse in every house. As soon as it was known that the President was dead, measures were taken to inaugurate Vice-President Andrew Johnson. There was no public display; but few persons except the necessary officials were present. The oath of office was administered on the 15th, but a few hours after the death of Mr. Lincoln, and the new President entered upon the duties of his office in the midst of universal gloom, himself one of the principal mourners.

ARREST OF THE ASSASSINS.

Various circumstances led to the conclusion that the assailant of the Secretary of State was John H. Surratt, whose mother's house had been a place of common resort for disloyal persons. The proper authorities proceeded to take possession of the house, making her a prisoner in it. Before daylight on the morning of the 18th, a man by the name of Payne, who was afterward identified as the assailant of Mr. Seward, came to the house under such suspicious circumstances as to justify the officers in arresting him, which they did. In the meantime the government was active in its efforts to ferret out the Booth, the chief actor in this awful drama, but it was not until several wrong moves—induced partly by decoy letters from different parts of the country—had been made, that the true scent was obtained, and Colonel L. C. Baker placed upon his track. It became evident from the direction he was known to have taken, that it was his intention to place himself under the protection of Mosby's rebel guerrillas. The pursuit was kept up with vigor, and he was traced from point to point, until he was overtaken at the house of a man by the name of Garrett, near Bowling Green. On the 27th of April, the premises were surrounded, and Booth and his accomplice, Harrold, were found in the barn. They were ordered to surrender. This order was obeyed by Harrold, but Booth declined. A parley ensued, it being the desire of all to take the murderer alive. During the parley it became evident that he intended to sell his life as dearly as possible. The barn was fired, hoping to drive him from his ambush, but he was seen to make preparations for firing upon the soldiers without. Just as he was taking aim, a sergeant in a cavalry company by the name of Boston Corbett, who was closly watching his movements discharged a cavalry pistol, the contents of which took effect in the head of Booth, near the same place that the President had been shot. Instead of entering the brain, it passed down the spinal column, paralyzing all the nerves of motion, but leaving those of feeling uninjured. He lived in great agony for about four hours, when death terminated his mortal career. After his death it was found that he had broken a bone in one of his legs in jumping from the box to the stage, after having accomplished his fiendish purpose. This injury to the assassin was caused by his spur catching in the American flag as he leaped, the old banner seeming endowed for the time being with life and animation, that it might avenge the great crime just perpetrated against it and the nation, in the murder of its chief. Booth was twenty-six years of age at the time of his death. His corpse was taken to Washington City for identification; after which it was disposed of, how or where none but two persons exactly know. Thus summarily was the assassin brought to the bar of justice, even before the remains of his victim had reached their final resting-place.

THE PRESIDENT'S FUNERAL.

Wednesday, the 19th of April, being set apart for the observance of the funeral obsequies in honor of the deseased President, religious assemblages met in thousands of churches and held services appropriate to the occasion. In some of the cities processions composed of vast numbers, moved to the measure of the most solemn dirges. In the city of Washington it is estimated that the procession numbered 30,000, headed by the 22d U. S. Colored troops, ordered up from Richmond to participate in the ceremonies. At noon the religious services were opened in the east room of the Presidential Mansion by the Rev. Dr. Hall, who read the Episcopal form of service for the dead. Bishop Simpson of the M. E. Church followed in prayer, and the Rev. Dr. Gurley of the Presbyterian, whose church Mr. Lincoln attended, delivered a sermon, and Dr. Grey of the Baptist Church offered the concluding prayer; after which at about two o'clock the procession began to move. The public feeling seemed to demand,that the remains should be removed to his former prairie home by such a route as would enable the largest number of the American people to pay the last sad mark of respect to the honored dead. At eight o'clock on Friday evening, the 21st, the funeral train left Washington for Baltimore. At ten o'clock the remains were received with universal drapings of woe in the city, where four years before plots had been laid to assassinate him on his way to the capital of the nation. The body was exposed to view in the Exchange until three o'clock the next morning, when it started for Harrisburg, and from thence to Philadelphia, arriving at six o'clock P. M. of Saturday, 22d. The body lay in state at Independent Hall until four o'clock A. M. on Monday, the 24th, when it left for the city of New York, arriving at ten o'clock, when it was conveyed to the City Hall, where it lay in state until Tuesday at one o'clock P. M., when it was escorted by a monster procession—such as New York only is capable of turning out—to the depot, to be conveyed to Albany, thence to Buffalo, Cleveland, and Columbus. We select the following as a specimen of the many short addresses and orations that were delivered at various points on the route. The train arrived at Columbus on Saturday morning, the 29th, and in the afternoon a large meeting was held on the east side of the capitol, which was addressed by Hon. Job E. Stevenson, the orator selected for the occasion by the committee. On the stage were Major-Generals Hooker and Hunter and the clergy of the city.

Rev. Mr. Goodwin opened the meeting with prayer, after which the choir sang a hymn.

Mr. Stevenson then spoke as follows:

Ohio mourns, America mourns, the civilized world will mourn the cruel death of Abraham Lincoln, the brave, the wise, the good; bravest, wisest, best of men.

History alone can measure and weigh his worth, but we, in parting from his mortal remains, may indulge the fullness of our hearts in a few broken words of his life and his death and his fame; his noble life, and martyr's death, and matchless fame. A western farmer's son, self-made, in early manhood he won, by sterling qualities of head and heart, the public confidence, and was intrusted with the people's power. Growing with his growing state, he became a leader in the West.

Elected president, he disbelieved the threats of traitors, and sought to serve his term in peace. The clouds of civil war darkened the land. The President pleaded and prayed for peace, "long declined the war," and only when the storm broke in fury on the flag, did he arm for the Union.

For four years the war raged, and the President was tried as man was never tried before.

Oh, "with what a load of toil and care" has he come, with steady, steadfast step, through the valley and shadow of defeat, over the bright mountain of victory, up to the sunlit plain of peace!

Tried by dire disaster at Bull Run, where volunteer patriots met veteran traitors; at Fredericksburg, where courage contended with nature; at Chancellorsville, that desperate venture; in the dismal swamps of the Chickahominy, where a brave army was buried in vain; by the chronic seige of Charleston, the mockery of Richmond, and the dangers at Washington,—through all these trials the President stood firm, trusting in God and the people, while the people trusted in God and in him.

There were never braver men than the Union volunteers; none braver ever rallied in Grecian phalanx or Roman legion; none braver ever bent the Saxon bow, or bore barbarian battle-ax, or set the lance in rest; none braver ever followed the crescent or the cross, or fought with Napoleon, or Wellington, or Washington. Yet the Commander-in-Chief of the Union army and navy was worthy of the man—filling for four years the foremost and most perilous post unfaltering.

Tried by good fortune, he saw the soldiers of the West recover the great valley, and bring back to the Union the Father of Waters, and all his beautiful children. He saw the legions of Lee hurled from the hights of Gettysburg. He saw the flag of the free rise on Lookout Mountain, and spread from river to sea, and rest over Sumter. He saw the Star Spangled Banner, brightened by the blaze of battle bloom over Richmond, and he saw Lee surrender. Yet he remained wise and modest, giving all the glory to God, and our army and navy.

Tried by civil affairs which would have taxed the powers and tested the virtue of Jefferson, Hamilton and Washington, he administered them so wisely and well that after three years no man was found to take his place. He was re-elected, and the harvest of success came in so grandly that he might have said: "Now, Lord, lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation." Yet he was free from weakness or vanity.

Thus did he exhibit, on occasion, in due proportion and harmonious action, those cardinal virtues, the trinity of true greatness—courage, wisdom, and goodness; goodness to love the right, wisdom to know the right, and courage to do the right. Tried by these tests, and by the touch-stone of success, he was the greatest of living men.

But why multiply words of his greatness? We read it in the nation's eyes. What a scene do we witness! Some of us remember when, on the 13th day of February, 1861, four years and two months before his death, the President was here on his way to Washington, and spoke in the State House. Then this self-made western man was untried, and his friends, and he himself questioned his capacity to fill the responsible position to which he was chosen. He spoke with misgivings, but placing his reliance on Providence, went forward reluctantly to the chair; and now, after four short years, he returns, borne on the bosoms of millions of men, his way watered with tears and strewn with flowers.

He stood on the summit, his brow bathed in the beams of the rising sun of Peace, singing in his heart the angelic song of "Glory to God in the highest; peace on earth, good will to man."

"With malice to none, with charity for all," he had forgiven the people of the South, and might have forgotten their leaders—covering with the broad mantle of his charity their multitude of sins.

But he is slain—slain by Slavery. That fiend incarnate did the deed. Beaten in battle, the leaders sought to save slavery by assination. This madness presaged their destruction.

Abraham Lincoln was the personification of Mercy. Andrew Johnson is the personification of Justice.

They have murdered Mercy, and Justice rules alone—and the people, with one voice, pray to Heaven that justice may be done. The mere momentum of our victorious armies will crush every rebel in arms, and then may our eyes behold the majesty of the law. They have appealed to the sword; if they were tried by the laws of war, their barbarous crimes against humanity would doom them to death.

The blood of thousands of murdered prisoners cries to heaven. The shades of sixty-two thousand starved soldiers rise up in judgment against them. The body of the murdered President condemns them. Some deprecate vengeance. There is no room for vengeance here. Long before justice can have her perfect work, the material will be exhausted and the record closed.

Some wonder why the South killed her best friend. Abraham Lincoln was the true friend of the people of the South; for he was their friend as Jesus is the friend of sinners—ready to save when they repent. He was not the friend of rebellion, of treason, of slavery—he was their boldest and strongest foe, and therefore they slew him—but in his death they die—the people have judged them, and they stand convicted, smitten with remorse and dismay—while the cause for which the President perished, sanctified by his blood, grows stronger and brighter. These are some of the consequences of the death of Abraham Lincoln. Ours is the grief—theirs is the loss, and his is the gain. He died for Liberty and Union, and now he wears the martyr's glorious crown. He is our crowned President. While the Union survives—while the love of Liberty warms the human heart, Abraham Lincoln will hold high rank among the immortal dead.

The nation is saved and redeemed. She needs no aid from rebel hands to reconstruct the Union. The Union needs no reconstruction. It was not made by man; it was created by the God of Nations. It is vital and immortal. If it has wounds in the members of its body, they will heal, and leave no scar, without the cordial of compromise with treason. Let us beware of the Delilah of the South, who has so lately betrayed our strong man. Let the "Prodigals" feed on the husks till they come in repentance, and ask to be received in their father's house—not as the equals to their faithful brethren, but on a level with their former servants. Then we can consider their petition, and discuss the question, not of the reconstruction of the Union, but of the formation of free states from the national domain. Until then let the sword which reclaimed their territory rule it, tempered by national law. Some cry conciliation, and say there can be no true peace by conquest. On the contrary, there is no enduring peace but the peace that is conquered. The peace of France is a conquered peace; the peace of England is conquered and conquered again; the peace of our fathers was a conquered peace; the peace of the world is a conquered peace; the peace of Heaven is a conquered peace; and thanks be to God, our peace is to be a conquered, and therefore a lasting peace. For a hundred years shall the people enjoy liberty and union in peace and security. The nation revived through all her members by the hand of free labor, prosperity shall fill and overflow the land—roll along the railways—thrill the electric wires—pulsate on the rivers—blossom on the lakes; and the imperial free republic, the best and strongest government on earth, will be a monument of the glory of Abraham Lincoln—while over and above all, shall rise and swell the great "dome of his fame."

Along the entire route, both by day and by night, crowds awaited the funeral train, at even the smallest stations. From Columbus, the next principal point was Indianapolis. We give the accompanying reports by representatives of the press on board the train, of what they saw in passing through Wayne county, Indiana, as specimens of what was seen at a thousand stations on their long and tedious journey.

Richmond, Ind., April 30th, 3:10 a. m.—The scene here was not only imposing but magnificently solemn. From twelve to fifteen thousand people were assembled. As we approached the city, the bells on the engines on the Air Line Railroad were tolling, and all the engines were out, lit up with revolving lamps and tastefully decorated in mourning. A gorgeous arch was constructed, twenty-five feet high and thirty feet wide, under which the train passed. On both sides of the structure were the American flags, wrought into triangles, down the sides of which were suspended, at equal distances, transparencies of red, white and blue, alternating with chaplets of evergreens, which clambered up the sides of the triangles and centered at the summit in velvet rosettes. Across the structure, at about eighteen feet from the base, was a platform carpeted with black velvet. On the ends of this platform were two flags in drooping folds. In the center of this upper work was a young lady in sitting posture, representing the Genius of Liberty, and weeping over a coffin. On one side was a boy soldier, and on the other, a boy sailor, both acting as mourners. Above this group was reared another triangle, which was studded with roses and rosettes. Linked wreathes of green again clasped about the flag-staff, and folded themselves gracefully around the already wreathed triangle. In the center of this net-work of nature's embroidery, was Mrs. Mary McClelland, as the Genius of Liberty, Henry Cull, as soldeir, and Chas. Zimmerman as sailor.

Centerville, Ind., 3:41 a. m.—The depot was splendidly robed in mourning. At each end of the platform were two chandeliers, brilliantly lighted. The people seemed anxious that the cortege should stay, but of course their wishes could not be complied with.

Germantown, Ind., 4:05 a. m.—A number of splendid bonfires were built, flags draped, and the usual evidences of grief exhibited.

Cambridge City, Ind., 4:15 a. m.—As the train reached this place, it was received with salvos of artillery, and a very tasty arch had been thrown across the track. The darkness was turned into a solemn glare by the burning of bengal lights, and as the red shadow met the first streak of gray in the east, the effect was very impressive and solemn. It was the unanimous verdict of those who had traveled all the journey with the train, that this and the display at Richmond far exceeded in solemnity and impressiveness any thing that had been witnessed. There was a solemn earnestness depicted on every face as the train passed, and the sentence was written upon every feature, as if in burnished rows of steel, that though Lincoln has died, the republic shall live. This was the observation of all on the train, as they looked upon the stern yet sorrowful countenance of Indiana patriots.

Dublin, Ind., 4:30 a. m.—The platform and side tracks were lined with a people whose looks and actions bespoke their deep grief. Their floral offerings to the dead gave evidence of their refined sensibilities. A neat and handsome arch of entwined evergreens was erected for the funeral to pass under. On the right was a large drooped flag. The depot was artistically draped. On the outer walls was a fine steel portrait of our murdered president, shrouded in evergreens, vases and velvet lengthenings.

Sunday, 30th of April, was spent at Indianapolis. May 1st the journey was resumed to Chicago. The 2d was spent at Chicago, and on Wednesday the 3d, the escort, with its loved remains arrived at Springfield, Illinois, having been twelve days traversing a distance of seventeen hundred miles, and stopping at almost every station, that the millions of freemen might pay such honors to the dead, as were never paid to mortal man before, neither in ancient or modern times, either among plebians, princes, kings or emperors. On Thursday, May 4th, the body was deposited in its resting place in Oak Ridge Cemetery, after which the following eloquent and impressive discourse was delivered by Bishop Simpson of the Methodist Episcopal Church: Fellow-Citizens of Illinois, and of many parts of our entire Union!

Near the capital of this large and growing state, in the midst of this beautiful grove, and at the mouth of this vault which has just received the remains of our fallen chieftain, we gather to pay a tribute of respect and to drop the tear of sorrow around the ashes of the mighty dead.

A little more than four years ago, from his plain and quiet home in yonder city, he started, receiving the parting words of the concourse of friends who gathered around him, and in the midst of the dropping of the gentle shower, he told of the pangs of parting from the place where his children had been born, and his home had been made pleasant by early recollections; and as he left, he made an earnest request, in the hearing of some who are present at this hour, that as he was about to enter upon responsibilities which he believed to be greater than any which had fallen upon any man since the days of Washington, that the people would offer up prayers that God would aid and sustain him in the work which they had given him to do.

His company left your quiet city, but, as it went, snares were in waiting for the Chief Magistrate. Scarcely did he escape the dangers of the way or the hands of the assassin as he neared Washington, and I believe he escaped only through the vigilance of officers and the prayers of his people. So that the blow was suspended for more than four years, which was at last permitted, through the providence of God to fall. How different the occasion which witnessed his departure from that which witnessed his return! Doubtless he expected to visit you all again; doubtless you expected to take him by the hand, and to feel the warm grasp which you had felt in other days, and to see the tall form walking among you, which you had delighted to honor in years past. But he was never permitted to return until he came with lips mute and silent, the frame encoffined, and a weeping nation following as his mourners. Such a scene as his return to you was never witnessed among the events of history. There was one for the Patriarch Jacob, which came up from Egypt, and the Egyptians wondered at the evidences of reverence and filial affection which came up from the hearts of the Israelites. There was mourning when Moses fell upon the hights of Pisga, and was hid from human view. There have been mournings in the kingdoms of the earth, when kings and princes have fallen, but never was there in the history of man such mourning as that which accompanied this funeral procession; and has gathered around the remains of him who was our loved one, and who now sleepeth among us.

If we glance at the procession which followed him we see how the nation stood aghast. Tears filled the eyes of many sunburnt faces. Strong men as they clasped the hands of their friends, were unable to find vent for their grief in words. Women and little children caught up the tidings as they ran through the land, and were melted into tears. The nation stood still. Men left their plows in the fields and asked what the end should be? The hum of manufactories ceased, and the sound of the hammer was not heard. Busy merchants closed their doors, and in the exchange gold passed no more from hand to hand. Though three weeks have passed, the nation has scarcely breathed easily yet. A mournful silence is abroad upon the land. Nor is this mourning confined to any one class or to any district of country. Men of all political parties and of all religious creeds have united in paying this mournful tribute. The archbishop of the Roman Catholic church in New York, and a Protestant minister, walked side by side in the sad procession. A Jewish rabbi performed a part of the solemn services. Here are gathered around his tomb the representatives of the army and navy, senators, judges, governors, and officers of all the branches of the Government.

But the great cause of this mourning is to be found in the man himself. Mr. Lincoln was no ordinary man; and I believe the conviction has been growing on the nation's mind, as it certainly has been on mine, especially in the last years of his administration, that by the hand of God he was especially singled out to guide our government in these troubled times. And it seems to me that the hand of God may be traced in many of the events connected with his history.

Here, too, are members of the civic professions, with men and women from the humblest as well as the highest occupations. Here and there, too, are tears as sincere and warm as any that drop, which come from the eyes of those whose kindred and whose race have been freed from their chains by him whom they mourn as their deliverer.

Far more eyes have gazed upon the face of the departed than ever looked upon the face of any other departed man. More eyes have looked upon the procession for sixteen hundred miles or more, by night and by day, by sunlight, dawn, twilight, and by torchlight, than ever before watched the progress of a procession.

We ask why this wonderful mourning—this great procession? I answer, first: a part of the interest has arisen from the times in which we live, and in which he, that had fallen was a principal actor. It is a principle of our nature that feelings once excited pass readily from the object by which they are excited to some other object, which may for the time being take possession of the mind.

Another principle is, that the deepest affections of our hearts gather around some human form in which are incarnated the living thoughts and ideas of the passing age. If we look, then, at the times, we see an age of excitement. For four years the popular heart has been stirred to its utmost depths. War had come upon us, dividing families, separating nearest and dearest friends; a war, the extent and magnitude of which no one could estimate; a war in which the blood of brethren was shed by a brother's hand. A call was made by this voice, now hushed; and all over this land, from hill and mountain, from plains and prairie, there sprang up hundreds and thousands of bold hearts, ready to go forth and save our national Union. This feeling of excitement was transferred next into a feeling of deep grief, because of the danger in which our country was placed. Many said it is impossible to save the nation. Some in our country, and nearly all the leading men in other countries, declared it to be impossible to maintain the Union; and many an honest and patriotic heart was deeply pained with apprehensions of common ruin, and many in grief and almost in despair, anxiously inquired, what shall the end of these things be? In addition to this, wives had given their husbands, mothers their sons—the pride and joy of their hearts. They saw them put on the uniform. They saw them take the martial step, and they tried to hide their deep feeling of sadness. Many of these dear ones sleep upon the battle-field never to return again, and there was mourning in every mansion and every cabin in our broad land. Then came a feeling of deeper sadness as the story came of prisoners tortured to death, or starved through the mandates of those who are called the representatives of the chivalry, or who claim to be the honorable ones of the earth; and as we read the stories of frames attenuated and reduced to mere skeletons, our grief turned partly into horror, and partly into a cry for vengeance.

Then this feeling was changed to one of joy. There came signs of the end of this rebellion. We followed the career of our glorious generals; we saw our armies, under the command of the brave officer* who is guiding this procession, climb up the hights of Lookout Mountain and drive the rebels from their strongholds. Another brave general swept through Georgia, South and North Carolina, and drove the combined armies of the rebels before him, while the honored lieut.-general held Lee and his hosts in a death grasp. Then the tidings came that Richmond was evacuated and that Lee had surrendered. The bells rang merrily all over the land; booming of cannon was heard; illuminations and torch-light processions manifested the general joy, and families were looking for the speedy return of their loved ones from the fields of battle. Just in the midst of this wildest joy, in one hour, nay in one moment, the tidings thrilled through our land that Abraham Lincoln, the best of presidents, had perished by the hand of an assassin; and then all that feeling that had been gathering for four years in forms of grief, horror, and joy, turned in an instant into one wail of woe —a sadness inexpressible, an anguish unutterable.

But it is not the times merely which cause this mourning. The mode of his death must be taken into account. Had he died on a bed of illness, with kind friends around him; had the sweat of death been wiped from his brow by gentle hands while he was yet conscious; could he have lived to speak words of affection to his stricken widow, or words of counsel to us, like those we heard in his parting inaugural—that inaugural which shall now be immortal—how it would have softened or assuaged something of the grief. There might at least have been preparation for the event. But no moment of warning was given for him or us. He was stricken down, too, when his hopes for the end of the rebellion were bright, and the prospects of a joyous life were before him. There was a cabinet meeting that day, said to have been the most cheerful and happy of any held since the beginning of the rebellion.

After this meeting he talked to his wife—spoke of the four years of tempest—of the storm being over, and of the four years of pleasure and joy now awaiting him, as the weight of care and anguish would be taken from his mind, and he could have happy days with his family again. In the midst of these anticipations he left his home never to return alive. The evening was Good Friday—the saddest day in the whole calendar for the Christian church—henceforth in this country to be made sadder, if possible, by the memory of our nation's loss. And so filled with grief was every Christian heart that even all the joyous hearts of Easter Sunday failed to remove the crushing sorrow under which the true worshipers bowed in the house of God.

First, then, I recognize this in his physical education, which he received, and which prepared him for enduring herculean labors. In the toils of his boyhood and the labors of his manhood, God was giving him an iron frame. Next to this was his identification with the heart of the great people, understanding their feelings because he was one of them, and connected with them in their movements and life. His education was simple. A few months spent in the school-house gave him the elements of education. He read Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, Æsop's Fables and the life of Washington, which were his favorites. In these we recognize the works which gave the bias to his character, and which partly mo lded his style.

His early life with its varied struggles, joined him indissolubly to the working masses, and no elevation in society diminished his respect for the sons of toil. He knew what it was to fell the tall trees of the forest, and to stem the current of the broad Mississippi. His home was in the growing west—the heart of the Republic—and invigorated by the winds that swept over its prairies, he learned lessons of self-raliance that sustained him in scenes of adversity.

His genius was soon recognized, as true genius always will be, and he was placed in the legislature of his state. Already acquainted with the principles of law, he devoted his thoughts to matters of public interest. and began to be looked upon as the "coming statesman." As early as 1839 he presented resolutions in the legislature, asking for emancipation in the District of Columbia, while, with but rare exceptions, the whole popular mind of his state was opposed to the measure. From that hour he was a steady and uniform friend of humanity, and was preparing for the conflict of later years.

If you ask me on what mental characteristics his greatness rested, I answer, on a quick and ready perception of facts; on a memory unusually tenacious and retentive, and on a logical turn of mind which followed sternly and unwaveringly every link in the chain of thought on any subject which he was called upon to investigate. I think there have been minds more broad in their character, more comprehensive in their sweep; but I doubt whether there has been a mind which could follow, step by step, with logical power the points which he desired to illustrate. He gained this power by the close study of geometry, and by a determination to perceive the truth in all its relations and simplicity, and when perceived to utter it. It is said of him, that in childhood, when he had any difficulty in listening to a conversation to ascertain what people meant, he retired to rest. He could not sleep till he tried to understand the precise point intended, and when understood to convey it in a clearer manner to others. Who that has read his messages fails to perceive the directness and the simplicity of his style; and this very trait which was scoffed at and derided by opponents, is now recognized as one of the strong points of that mighty mind, which has so powerfully influenced the destiny of this nation, and which shall for ages to come, influence the destiny of humanity.

It was not, however, chiefly by his mental faculties that he gained such control over mankind. His moral power gave him preeminence. The convictions of men that Abraham Lincoln was an honest man, led them to yield to his guidance. As has been said of Cobden, whom he greatly resembled, he made all men feel a kind of sense of himself—a recognized individuality, a self-relying power. They saw in him a man whom they believed would do what was right, regardless of all consequences. It was this moral feeling which gave him the greatest hold upon the people and made his utterances almost oracular.

When the nation was angered by the perfidy of foreign nations in allowing privateers to be fitted out, he uttered the significant expression, "one war at a time," and it stilled the national heart. When his own friends were divided as to what steps should be taken as to slavery, that simple utterance, "I will save the Union if I can with slavery, but if not, slavery must perish, for the Union must be saved." That became the rallying word. Men felt the struggle was for the Union, and all other questions must be subsidiary

But after all, by the acts of a man shall his fame be perpetuated. Where are his acts? Much praise is due to the men who aided him. He called able counselors around him, and able generals into the field, men who have borne the sword as bravely as ever any human arm has borne it. He had the aid of prayerful and thoughtful men every-where; but under his own guiding hands the movements of our land have been conducted.

Turn toward the different departments. We had an unorganized militia, a mere skeleton army; yet under his care, that army has been enlarged into a force which, for skill, intelligence, efficiency and bravery, surpasses any which the world had ever seen. Before its veterans the fame of even the renowned veterans of Napoleon shall pale; and the mothers and sisters on these hillsides, and all over the land, shall take to their arms again braver men than ever fought in European wars.

The reason is obvious. Money, or a desire for fame, collected those armies, or they were rallied to sustain favorite thrones or dynasties. But the armies called into being fought for liberty, for the Union, and for the right of self-government, and many of them feel that the battles they won were for humanity every-where, and for all time; for I believe that God has not suffered this terrible rebellion to come upon our land merely for a chastisement to us or lesson to our age.

There are movements which involve in themselves eternities. There are instants which seem to contain germs which shall develop and bloom forever. Such a moment came in the tide of time to our land when a question must be settled, affecting all the powers of the earth. The contest was for human freedom. Not for this republic merely. Not for the Union simply, but to decide whether the people, as a people, in their entire majesty, were destined to be the governments or whether they were to be subject to tyrants or aristocrats, or to class-rule of any kind.

This is the great question for which we have been fighting, and its decision is at hand; and the result of this contest will affect the ages to come. If successful, republics will spread in spite of monarchs all over this earth. I turn from the army to the navy. What was it before the war commenced? Now we have our ships of war at home and abroad, as well to guard privateers in foreign sympathizing ports, as to care for every port of our own coast. They have taken ports that military men said could not be taken; and a brave Admiral,* for the first time in the world's history, lashed himself to the mast, there to remain as long as he had a particle of skill or strength to watch over his ship while it engaged in the perilous contest of taking the strong forts of the enemy.

Then again I turn to the Treasury Department. Where should the money come from? Wise men predicted ruin; but our national credit has been maintained, and our currency is safer to-day than it ever was before. Not only so, but through our national bonds, if properly used, we shall have a permanent basis for currency, and an investment so desirable for capitalists of other nations, that under the law of trade, I believe the center of exchange will be transferred from England to the United States.

But the great act of the mighty chieftain, on which his power shall rest long after his frame shall molder away, is that of giving freedom to a race. We have all been taught to revere the sacred characters. We have thought of Moses, of his power, and the prominence he gave to the moral law; how it lasts, and how his name towers high among the names in heaven, and how he delivered those millions of his kindred out of bondage. And yet we may assert that Abraham Lincoln, by his proclamation, liberated more enslaved people than ever Moses set free—and those not of his kindred. God has seldom given such a power or such an opportunity to man. When other events shall have been forgotten; when this world shall have become a network of republics; when every throne shall be swept from the face of the earth; when literature shall enlighten all minds; when the claims of humanity shall be recognized every-where, this act shall still be conspicuous on the pages of history. And we are thankful that God gave to Abraham Lincoln the decision and wisdom and grace to issue that proclamation, which stands high above all other papers which have been penned by uninspired men.

Abraham Lincoln was a good man. He was known as an honest, temperate, forgiving man; a just man, a man of noble heart in every way. As to his religious experience, I can not speak definitely, because I was not privileged to know much of his private sentiments. My acquaintance with him did not give me the opportunity to hear him speak on those topics. This I know, however, he read the Bible frequently—loved it for its great truths and profound teachings, and tried to be guided by its precepts. He believed in Christ, the Savior of sinners, and I think he was sincerely trying to bring his life into harmony with the great principles of revealed religion. Certainly if there ever was a man who illustrated some of the principles of pure religion, that man was our departed President.

Look over all his speeches—listen to his utterances—he never spoke unkindly of any man. Even the rebels received no words of anger from him, and the last days of his life illustrated, in a remarkable manner, his forgiving disposition. A dispatch was received that afternoon that Thompson and Tucker were trying to escape through Maine, and it was proposed to arrest them. Mr. Lincoln, however, preferred to let them quietly escape. He was seeking to save the very men who had been plotting his destruction; and this morning we read a proclamation offering $25,000 for the arrest of these men, as aiders and abettors of his assassination. So that in his expiring acts he was saying, "Father, forgive them; they know not what they do."

As a ruler, I doubt if any president ever showed such trust in God, or in public documents so frequently referred to Divine aid. Often did he remark to friends and delegations that his hope for our success rested in his conviction that God would bless our efforts, because we were trying to do right. To the address of a large religious body, he replied, "Thanks be unto God, who in our national trials giveth us the churches." To a minister who said "he hoped the Lord was on our side," he replied "that it gave him no concern whether the Lord was on our side or not, for," he added, "I know the Lord is always on the side of right," and with deep feeling added, "But God is my witness that it is my constant anxiety and prayer that both myself and this nation should be on the Lord's side."

In his domestic life he was exceedingly kind and affectionate. He was a devoted husband and father. During his presidential term, he lost his second son, Willie. To an officer of the army he said not long since, "Do you ever find yourself talking with the dead?" and added, "Since Willie's death, I catch myself every day involuntarily talking with him as if he were with me." For his widow, who is unable to be here, I need only invoke the blessing of Almighty God, that she be comforted and sustained. For his son, who has witnessed the exercises of this hour, all that I can desire is that the mantle of his father may fall upon him.

Let us pause a moment on the lesson of the hour before we part. This man, though he fell by an assassin, still fell under the permissive hand of God. He had some wise purpose in allowing him to fall.

What more could he have desired of life for himself? Were not his honors full? There was no office to which he could aspire. The popular heart clung around him as around no other man. The nations of the world had learned to honor our Chief Magistrate. If rumors of a desired alliance with England be true, Napoleon trembled when he heard of the fall of Richmond, and asked what nation would join him to protect him against our government. This had the guidance of such a man. His fame was full, his work was done, and he sealed his glory by being the nation's just martyr for liberty.

He had a strange presentiment in early political life that some day he would be president. You see it indicated in 1859, when of the slave power he said: "Broken by it, I too, may be; bow to I never will. The probability that we may fail in the struggle ought not to deter us from the support of a cause which I deem just; it shall not deter me. If ever I feel the soul within me elevate and expand to those dimensions not wholly unworthy of its Almighty Architect, it is when I contemplate the cause of my country, deserted by all the world besides, and I standing up boldly and alone, and hurling defiance at her victorious oppressors. Here, without contemplating consequences, before high heaven, and in the face of the world, I swear eternal fidelity to the just cause, as I deem it, of the land of my life, my liberty, and my love."

And yet he recently said to me more than once, "I never shall live out the four years of my term. When the rebellion is crushed my work is done." So it was. He lived to see the last battle fought, and to dictate a dispatch from the home of Jefferson Davis—lived till the power of the rebellion was broken, and then having done the work for which God sent him, angels, I trust, were sent to shield him from one moment of pain or suffering, and to bear him from this world to that high and glorious realm where the patriot and good shall live forever. His example teaches young men that every position of eminence is open before the diligent and worthy. To the active men of the country, his example urges to trust in God and do right.

Standing, as we do to-day, by his coffin and his sepulcher, let us resolve to carry forward the work which he so nobly begun. Let us do right to all men. Let us vow in the sight of heaven to eradicate every vestige of human slavery; to give every human being his true position before God and man; to crush every form of rebellion, and to stand by the flag which God has given us. How joyful that it floated over parts of every state before Mr. Lincoln's career was ended. How singular that to the fact of the assassin's heel being caught in the folds of the flag we are probably indebted for his capture. The flag and the traitor must ever be enemies.

Traitors will probably suffer by the change of rulers, for one of sterner mold, and one who himself has deeply suffered from the rebellion, now wields the sword of justice.

Our country, too, is stronger for the trial. A republic was declared, by monarchists, too weak to endure a civil war, yet we have crushed the most gigantic rebellion in history, and have grown in strength and population every year of the struggle. We have passed through the ordeal of a popular election while swords and bayonets were in the field and have come out unharmed. And now in our hour of excitement, with a large minority having proffered another man for president, the bullet of the assassin has laid our President prostrate. Has there been a mutiny? Has any rival proposed his claim? Out of our army of near a million no officer or soldier uttered one note of dissent, and in an hour or two after Mr. Lincoln's death, another, by constitutional power, occupied his chair. If the Government moved forward without one single jar, the world will learn that republics are the strongest governments on earth.

And now my friends, in the words of the departed, "with malice toward none," free from all feelings of personal vengeance, yet believing that the sword must not be borne in vain, let us go forward in our painful duty. Let every man who was a senator and representative in Congress, and who aided in beginning this rebellion, and thus led to the slaughter of our sons and daughters, be brought to speedy and to certain punishment. Let every officer educated at public expense, and who, having been advanced to position, has perjured himself, and has turned his sword against the vitals of his couutry, be doomed to a felon's death. This, I believe, is the will of the American people. Men may attempt to compromise and to restore these traitors and murderers to society again, but the American people will rise in their majesty and sweep all such compromises and compromisers away, and shall declare that there shall be no peace to rebels. But to the deluded masses we shall extend arms of forgiveness. We will take them to our hearts. We will walk with them side by side, as we go forward to work out a glorious destiny. The time will come when, in the beautiful words of him whose lips are now forever sealed, "the mystic cords of memory which stretch from every battlefield, and every patriot's grave shall yield a sweeter music when touched by the angels of our better nature."

To the ambitious there is this fearful lesson: Of the four candidates for presidential honors in 1860, two of them, Douglas and Lincoln, once competitors—but now sleeping patriots—rest from their labors; Bell* perished in poverty and misery, as a traitor might perish, and Breckenridge is a frightened fugitive, with the brand of traitor on his brow.

The assassination of the President was only the expiring throes of the rebellion. The enemies of the nation hoped that in slaying the chief executive they would slay the nation itself; but how futile their efforts. Not only is his murderer slain and his body ignominiously disposed of; but the last armed force of any importance surrendered to national authority before the remains of the President reached their final resting place—the rebel army under Gen. Johnson, consisting of 30,000 men, having surrendered to Gen. Sherman on the 26th of April, leaving but a few small bodies of rebels remaining in arms west of the Mississippi river.

Jefferson Davis had been with the rebel army under Gen. Lee until just previous to its surrender and then escaped to that under Jonhson, remaining with it until the negotiation with Sherman, in which it was stipulated that all who surrendered should be invested with the rights of loyal citizens at once, but happily set aside by our civil rulers before it could be carried into effect. He—Davis—then endeavored to make his escape out of the country, carrying a large amount of gold of which he had plundrered the Richmond banks. He was closely pursued by the 4th regiment of Michigan cavalry under Col. Prichard, and the 1st Wisconsin cavalry under Col. Hardin, until May 9th, when he was overtaken near Irwinville, Ga., about sevety-five miles south-west of Macon. On the 9th Colonel Prichard learned that Davis and his party were encamped about two miles from the town. He prepared to surround the camp, which was done before daylight on the morning of the 10th. In the darkness some of Prichard's and Hardin's men met, and mistaking each other for rebels, commenced firing, killing and wounding five or six men. The firing aroused the camp of Davis. Finding themselves surrounded, an attempt was made to pass the chief object of search out of the camp disguised as an elderly lady going for a bucket of water. His boots betrayed him, and he was taken, notwithstanding the warnings of his wife that "The President might hurt somebody." The party consisting of his wife and children, a niece and some of his cabinet officers, were taken to Fortress Monroe.

THE LAST DITCH.

On the 13th of May Cololnel Barnett had been sent out to seize a rebel camp a few miles from the town of Brazos in western Texas. The camp was taken, but on their return a skirmish took place, during which several on both sides were killed. This, we believe, was the last fighting, and consequently this place was the last ditch in which all rebels, from the beginning, had resolved to die.

CAPITULATION OF THE LAST ARMED FORCES OF THE REBELS.

There yet remained, however, a considerable body of rebels under Gen. Kirby Smith, west of the Mississippi river, principally in Texas. Even after the surrender of the armies under Generals Lee and Johnson, he endeavored to keep up the courage of his followers by flaming addresses; but the men knowing they were utterly defeated, deserted him by thousands. On the 23d of May, Gen. Smith sent a deputation to Gen. Canby, to negotiate terms of surrender. These were easily settled, and somewhere between fifty and eighty thousand rebels, with all the munitions of war under his control, were turned over to the government of the United States. The men were disarmed and paroled to return to homes made desolate by their own hands, or to wander as vagabonds upon the face of the earth.

INDICTMENT OF JEFF. DAVIS.

On the same day that these last armed rebel forces surrendered—May 23d—the Grand Jury of the District of Columbia found a true bill of indictment against Jefferson Davis for treason against the government of the United States, and he is now, October, 1865, in the fortress where he was first taken after being captured, awaiting his trial. Whether he will be tried under that indictment, or by a military commission we know not. But if by any means he should escape the halter he so richly deserves, let there be an unchangeable decree put forth by the American people that from this time henceforth and forever no man on this continent shall be put to death for his crimes.

THE ASSASSINS.

From the time of the assassination of the President, detectives were on the alert to ferret out the murderers and to bring them to justice. The end of Booth, the principal, has been narrated. Eight persons were arrested as accomplices, and tried before a military commission. After a long and patient investigation, all were found to have been more or less guilty as accessories to the great crime. The commission finished its labors on the 5th of July, condemning David E. Herold, Geo. A. Atzerodt, Lewis Payne, alias James Thornwell Powell, and Mrs. Mary E. Surratt to be hanged by the neck until they were dead, Michael O'Laughlin, Samuel G. Arnold, and Dr. Samuel A. Mudd to imprisonment for life, and Edward Spangler to imprisonment for six years. The sentence was approved by President Johnson on the same day, and made known to the prisoners on the 6th; and those condemned to be hung were launched into eternity on the 7th at half past one o'clock in the afternoon.

OUR NATIONAL FINANCES.

The immense armies in the field at the end of the rebellion were, of course, to be discharged. The Seven-Thirty Loan authorized by congress being the principal reliance for liquidating their claims upon the government, the question naturally arose, would the assassination of the President affect our securities? In monarchical countries the assassination of a ruler always affects the national finances more or less. The sale of these securities increased as the demand for money to pay the soldiers increased. On the sixth of May, two days after the burial of President Lincoln, fifteen millions of the Seven-Thirty Loan was taken, a greater amount than had ever been sold in a single day before. The confidence of the people had been so strengthened in our ability to put down all enemies, and liquidate the national debt, that instead of it requiring $2 04 to buy $1 00 in gold, as it did at the commencement of our record, $1 29 in currency was the price of $1 00 in gold on the 10th of May.

Previous to this time, it became necessary to establish a telegraphic language for the use of the four or five thousand bankers, and others dealing in the government securities, that they might save some of the heavy expense of telegraphing their orders to Jay Cooke & Co., at Philadelphia. A knowledge of the manner of using it may be acquired by studying the annexed key:

That the key may be understood, we give a few specimens of the orders sent to Jay Cooke & Co. in this way, omitting the dates:

"BALTIMORE, Md.

"City, Luke, Marble. Will remit by express. J. W. GUEST, Cashier."

This means that two hundred thousand dollars, in bonds of five thousand dollars each, are wanted.

"NEW YORK.—"Stone, gipsy, and Emily City. FISKE & HATCH."

Interpreted by the telegraph key, means that six hundred thousand dollars in one thousand dollar notes are wanted.

"NEW YORK.—Send Luke, one-half Marble, one-fourth Stone, one-eighth Iron, and one-eighth Lath. JAMES CURPHY."

Interpreted it means that he wants two hundred thousand dollars; half in $5,000 bonds, one-fourth in $1,000 bonds, one-eighth in $100 bonds, and one-eighth in $50 bonds.

"BOSTON, MASS.—Send Alexander Stone, Martin Brick, John Iron, John Lath.

"SPENCER, VILA & Co."

That is, send us fifty thousand dollars in $1,000 bonds, thirty thousand dollars in $500 bonds, ten thousand dollars in $100 bonds, and ten thousand dollars in $50 bonds.

"BOSTON.—Total Robert.

"JAS. H. BEALL, Prest."

This banking house is reporting four hundred thousand dollars as the amount of their subscription that day.

All orders are not sent in this way, because it requires some study to become familiar enough with the key to avoid blunders, but with those who can use it readily, there is a great saving. You who have leisure will find each of those orders a nice little puzzle, the explanation to which you may find in the key.

PUBLIC DEBT.

The following is a recapitulation of the public debt, as appears from the books of the Treasury returns and requisitions in the Department on the 30th of September, 1865. Debt bearing interest in coin, $1,116,658,191 80; interest, $65,001,570 50. Debt bearing interest in lawful money, $1,260,009,120 44; interest, $72,527,645 75. Debt on which interest has ceased, $1,389,320 09. Debt bearing no interest, $866,891,093 94. Total amount outstanding, $2,744,947,726 17. Total interest, $137,529,216 25. Legal tender notes in circulation, 1 and 2 years 5 per cent notes, $32,954,230; U. S. notes, old issue, $392,070; U. S. notes, new issue, $427,768,499; compound interest notes, account of March 3d, 1863, $15,000,000; compound interest notes, account of June 30th, 1864, $207,012,141; total, $678,126,940. As compared with the statement for August, there is a reduction of the public debt of nearly $12,742,000, and of interest over $500,000; and also a reduction of $6,012,000 of legal tender notes in circulation. There is in the Treasury in coin $32,740,788 43; in currency $56,236,441 13; total 88,977,229 56—showing a decrease of nearly $12,700,000 of coin as compared with the August statement, and an increase of $13,454,157 of currency. The amount of fractional currency is $26,487,754, an increase of $143,000. There has been an increase of June 30, 1864 5-20 bonds of $8,211,000; and of the July 11, 1862, six per cent. temporary loan of nearly $3,000,000, and of the March 1, 1864 certificates of indebtedness, a reduction of over $22,000,000.

OUR ARMY AT THE END OF THE REBELLION.

It has been ascertained that at the close of the rebellion, the armed forces of the United States consisted of nearly one million of men; and that in all other respects the government was better prepared to carry on the war than ever before.

In the brief period we have been engaged in preparing this work, it appears as if we had lived almost an age. Events of such vast importance, it seems, have never chased each other in such rapid succession in any other age of the world.

In view of the unparalelled blessings that have been poured out upon us as a nation, during these four years of terrible war; in preserving friendly relations with all other nations amid so many complicated causes for strife and contention; in protecting us from pestilence, especially our unacclimated soldiers, from that terrible scourge—yellow fever—holding it almost in abeyance, during all the time it was necessary for them to spend where it prevails; in protecting us from famine, giving us fruitful fields, and filling our granaries with the most ample stores; these, and other blessings innumberable, that have been vouchsafed to us, we feel justified in receiving as evidences, that our sacrifices to preserve our national domain unbroken, and to break every yoke and let the oppressed go free, making ours a land of freedom indeed, as well as in name, has secured the approval of HIM who rules the destinies of nations, as well as of man. Let us then "go forward," each one individually, doing justice to his fellow-men, and all prompting and demanding of those we have intrusted with the duty and authority to make and execute the laws; that as servants of the people, and government of these United States, they shall do justice to its enemies, and that they shall also do justice to its friends of whatever color they may be, especially those who have risked their lives for the preservation of its unity and perpetuity. Then we may safely trust the future in the hands of that being who has given us so many blessings in the past.
